THE WAR AND THE POST AND THE PARTY AND THE P

Pretty Women.

Speaking of pretty women, the Satur very abourd in love its of pretty woman? Is woman so very ridiculous in her chase after beauty? A pretty woman is doing woman's work in the world, not making speeches nor making puddings, but maklaw-life suggler and more beautiful. Man has forsworn beauty altogether. It is honeless to recall the Periclean idea of manhood, to insist on the development of personal beauty as not less manly than that personal virtue, to demand the grace of Canning from our statesmen or the dignity of Robertson from our new divines. The world of action is a world of ugliness, and the good looking fellow who starts for the prizes soon discovers what Madame de Girardio calle le malheur d'etre beau. He is guesed to be trivolous, he is assumed to be poetic, there are whispers that his morarls are no better than they should be. In a society resolute to be ngly there is no post for an Adonis but that of a model or a Guardsman. But woman does for mankind what man has ceased to do. She clings to the Periclean ideal. Her sim from very childaood is to be beautiful. Even as a school-girl she notes the progress of her charms, the deepening color of her hair, the growing symmetry of her arm, the ripening contour of her cheek. We watch with a silent interset the mysterious reveries of the maiden; she is dream ing of a coming beauty, and panting for the glories of eighteen. Insensibly she be-her, but she works with the hours. "What silent musings before her min beauty in the silence and the loneliness of her chamber; she grows like any art-creation, the result of patience, of hope, of a thousand delicate touchings and retouchinge. But even to the Gioconda the moment of perfection, of completion, comes a last; the master takes his work from the easel and gives it to the ages. Women is never pertect, never complete. A restless night undoes the beauty of the day; sunshine blurs the evanscent coloring of her. cheeks: frost nips the tender outlines of her face into sudden harshness. Her pen oil has ever to be at work even while th hours work for her, and the hours work against her at last. Care ploughs its lines ncross her brow, motherhood destroys the elastic lightness of her from : the bloom of her cheek, the quick flash of her eye, fade and vanish as the years go by. But woman is still true to her ideal. She won't know when she is beaten, and she manages to steal fresh victories evenin her defeat She invents now conceptions of womanly grace; she rallies at thirty, and fronts us with the brauty of womanbood; she makea last stand at sixty with the beauty of age. It is the same great artist who exhibits year after year, but whose style ranges from the girlish innocence of a Fra Angelico to the severe matronage of a Zubaran. She falls, like Cosar, wrapping her mantle round her-'buried in woolen! About Yaller Dogs.

BY MARK TWAIN.

When Noah disembarked at Ararat be had scarcely touched the pier when he proceeded to tally his passengers. He had just checked his last item in the list-a Mr. and Mrs. Bedbug-when a cringing figure of a quadruped came sneaking down the gang-plank with his tail between his legs. Drat it! if there ain't that valler dog! says Noah, aiming a victous kick with his brogan at the brute. But, with a facility both of long and bitter experience, the brute dedged the projectile, and, ciaculating "ki yi"-which is Syriac for "declined thanks," or "not for Jo "-ho disappear ed while Nogh who had his scalege on was unable to recover his equilibrium, and sat down on the back of his head.

Noah arose, and in accordance with the style provalent among the patriarche, he proceeded to soothe his affronted dignity by pronouncing a varigated anotherna upo the yaller dog, which had characteristically aneaked unobserved on board, in the confe sion of putting to sea, and capsized the caprain at the first port. He coused that dog in body, limb, bark, hide, bair, tail, and wag, and all his gonerations, relations, and kindreds by consanguinity or affinity, and his believed assigns. He curved him with endless hunger, with perpetual fear, with perennial laxioess, with hopeless mangewith his tail between his legs. He closed his stock of maledictions by a sporkling display of pyrotechnics, from the demoralizing effect of which the yaller dog has nevor recovered.

With this curso sticking to him like a revenue stamp the yaller dog can't help being "cussed." He don't try to help it. He follows Noah's programme with sneak ing infiduity. He is an I-hunelite among dogs. He receives the most oppressive courtesies, in the form of brickbarn, boots, and hot water, which makes his life an animated target excursion: If a boards around to pay his board to Mrs. Easy. The reason is probably, that he is never haunted by a sense of the rediculousness of his face as he purses his mouth into the form for whistling. Happening, however, to raise his eyes toward the conclusion of the nir, he saw to a large mirror before him, the countenances of his auditors some of whom were trying to restrain their mirth; this was too much for him, and the tune was abruptly put a stop to by a loud burst of laughter from the gentleman himself. Concerning Sea Bathing

Saturday Review-

There are lew natural tronics so beneficial to the health as sea bathing, when practiced regularly and continuously, and not carried to excess.

Medical writers say that the water of the sea remaining at nearly a constant temper-ature the year round, is consequently cold, and that the application of cold to living bodies produces primarily a diminution of vital activity, attended by reduction of the temperature, a quickened pulse, and a diffused feeling of exhiberation. Hence the use of the ses bath to persons of a scrotuloss of other temperament where the need of a general stimulent is indicated. For dyspepsia, rheumatism, and other complaints a trip to Atlantic City or any of the other resorts where the bathing is good and the beach safe, is worth a whole ence and sight of many hundreds of bath-rs, all turnshing and spluttering in the breakers at once. Then the change of at the pinete: the bath, the striking of the cold wind upon the surface of the bady in ing to and returning from the sea, and exemeral ou -door life led, all contribute the general on door life led, all contribute to make the sea bathing the very best method of summer recreation. Ben water, it may be added, contains common salt, chloride of magnesia, surphate of magnesia sulphate of lime, smal proportions of chloride of potassium, bromide of magnesium and carbonate of lime, with traces of todine, aminonia and silver. People who are at according to an adderson to the same supplies the same supplies to the same supplies to the same supplies to the same su tratted to wonderous "neacecual aprings," by an imposing chemical analysis of the water—while they do not understand—will thus perceive that the sea is not to be surpassed in the way of imposing chemical ormulas by any of the lesser watering

Sea Water as a Remedy.

Sea water contains four percent, of salts

Les water contains four per cent. of salts, the chief of which are chloride of sodium, or common table salt, sulphare of magnesia. Or Epsom salts, and chlorde of magnesiam or Epsom salts, and chlorde of magnesiam or bitter purging salt, bromide, and, in minute proportions, sulphate of lime, chloride of passium, salt carbonate of lime, or chalk of magnesiam ledine has been found in the waters of he Medicerraneau. Bea water is drank, medicinally, either as a purgative or an alterative. A pint in the wording before breakfast, in two does of half an hour's interval between them, will suffice to act freely upon the howels. If it does not pass off readily, it is apt to irritate and derange the system for the rest of the day. A preferable practice is to drink halt a pint at bedtime, and the same quantity mixed with as much boiling water as will warm it on the following morning. This will hardly fair to produce the desired effect.

LIGHT STARS.—Like dropping, dying starr our loved ones go away from our sight. The stars of our hopes, our ambitions, our prayers, whose light shine ever before natesping on and up, then suddenly fade from the firmament of our hearts, and their place is empty, cold and dark. A mother's steady soft and carnest light, that beamed through all our wants and corrows; a tash er's strong, quick light, that kept ou fe from stumbling on the dark and treacherous ways; a start's light, so pure, so mild, so constant, so firm, shining upon us from gentle, loving ever, and pursuading us to grace and goodness; a brother's light, beliming and honest; a bourther's light, beliming and honest; a bourther's light, the LOST STARS - Like dropping, dving star stractand goodness; a form on single, their bright and honesty a forer's light; for we shoping in our souls and illuminatine on goings and comings; a fixed a light, transmittenesty—general torever?
