THE WATER MILL.

Listen to the water mill—
All the livelong day—
How the clanking of the wheel
Wears the hours away.
From the field the reapers sing,
Binding up the sheaves;
Merry hearts the workers bring,
Every sorrow leaves.
And a memory o'er my mind
As a spell is cast:
The mill will never grind
With water that is past.

Take the lesson to yourself,
Loving heart and true;
Golden years are fleeting by;
Youth is passing too.
Strive to make the most of life,
Lose no happy day;
Time will never bring you back
Chances thrown away.

Leave no tender word unsaid,
Love with life shall last—
The mill will never grind
With water that is past.
Work then while daylight shines, Man of thought and will;
Never does the streamlet glide
Lazier by the mill.
Wait not till to-morrow's sun
Beams upon your way;
All that you can call your own
Lies in this to-day.

The American Name.

This name hangs high in the brilliant galaxy of national titles which illuminate the world. It is everywhere a name of influence, distinction and power; a terror to evil-doers and the light of a golden star to the down-trodden and oppressed. He who bears the name is a respected man the world around. The savage tribes of the "Dark Continent," the superstitious devotees of the "Land of the Veda," the high born sons of the "Celestial Empire," the fur-clad denizens of the frozen zone, and the aristocratic continental, rise up to do him honor. He is honored because he is the citizen of a great and prosperous nation. Paul boasted that he was the citizen of no mean city, and so may we boast that we are the citizens of no mean country. The next thing to being a great son is to have a great father; and to being a great workman is to have a great master; so the next thing to being a great citizen is to have a great country; that is, in the estimation of others. We have a land to be proud of, and which is the admiration of other nations, and that is why our name is so wonderful. But what constitutes our greatness? Not our numbers; other lands have thousands where we have hundreds. But multitudes do not make a great nation any more than the requisite number of fingers and toes make a great man. A few may be mightier than many. We are not great because of our military and naval force and equipment. At the close of the war of the rebellion our government retained an army of 50,000, which has since been reduced to 25,000. This is all we have on land and sea. Of vessels we have only a few of wood for naval practice. There is not one of them fit to go to sea for battle. Any other country would be ashamed of our army and navy; and if this makes greatness we are not great. We rather are great because we have no need of more. We are on such good terms with all nations, and so far removed from danger as to be under no necessity of maintaining a fighting attitude. But to return to the main question: Why are we so great? We answer, first: because of our immense territory extending from Cape Cod to the Pacific, 2,800 miles, and from the northern boundary of Minnesota to the southern boundary of Texas, 1,600 miles. This vast area possesses every variety of climate. We have perpetual winter, and can take our neighbors snowballing in the month of August; we also have perpetual summer, where December is as pleasant as May; we therefore have an unlimited abundance of mineral and vegetable productions. Here the homeless find homes, and to this land the continent of Europe looks for bread.

We are, secondly, a great people because we stand in the front of civilization, business enterprise, and human progress. In learning and educational facilities, in mechanical industries, inventions, and productions of art, in discovery, statesmanship and war; we are behind none other. We are a great people, doing great things, and teaching other nations. What we may yet succeed in doing no one can tell; perhaps we may, sometime, show other people how to utilize their noses in holding up their trousers and pulling on their boots. Being of the character described in a former article, the American could not help but astonish the world by his achievements; such a race of men must do something notable, and produce the most eminent specimens of manhood. In this respect, this young nation compares favorably with all others, as is evidenced by the list of worthies given in our article last week.

Our Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 19, 1880.

General Arthur's letter of acceptance is published here this morning. Of course it does not excite the comment and general interest that Gen. Garfield's did. It is, nevertheless, a well-written paper, and the views expressed in it are in full accord with Republican beliefs. The only marked difference in opinion between it and Gen. Garfield's letter is the treatment of the civil service question. Gen. Arthur believes the acceptance of public office does not in any way impair the right of a citizen to think, speak, and act in political matters in accordance with his own desire, "provided he honorably, faithfully and fully discharges all the duties of his office." Upon other questions of national welfare he shows himself to be a thorough and consistent Republican, well deserving the trust imposed upon him.

In Washington, increased confidence is felt in the success of the Republican party, and, as I have often said, Washington is a mirror, as it were, in which is reflected national opinion and belief. I find this confidence in all portions of the country. Hopeful reports come from all sections, and where we cannot hope to carry some Democratic States for Garfield, many Congressional districts in them will be won. This is particularly gratifying, as a Republican House next Congress is the thing—next to winning the Presidency—that Republicans most desire.

Right here I wish to say, in reference to the alleged abandonment of the Republican party in the South, as charged by Democrats, that it is not a fact. The Republican organization is to be made effective and thorough in every Southern State. Speakers from the North will be sent into that section, and every effort will be made to secure full and fair elections, an honest count, and if these are secured, a Republican victory will necessarily follow. As it is, we have fair hopes of carrying Virginia, Florida, and North Carolina, though these States are by no means considered as sure.

Chairman Jewell has just returned from an extended Western trip. He reports the enthusiasm and confidence everywhere remarkable. In Indiana, the fatal nomination of Landers for Governor, cripples the Democratic party badly in the October election, and the personal unpopularity of English, among the working classes, make the State almost sure Republican in November. In New York and Pennsylvania the situation is of course gratifying; and in Connecticut, Mr. Jewell's own State, the outlook is brighter than at any time for years.

Another fact, and one which may well make Republicans feel confident, is that the nomination of Garfield and Arthur is steadily growing in favor with the people, while the flash enthusiasm at first aroused over Hancock is fast dying out. This is a fact, and any impartial observer of the two parties cannot fail to notice it. The Democrats deny it, of course, publicly, but in private they acknowledge it, and are entering even now upon the dismal period of doubt that usually succeeds an unwonted burst of Democratic enthusiasm before election.

MAXWELL.

The most fashionable fan is fan-tastic.

MR. EDITOR:—I see I have gained considerable notoriety by my communication, signed "D," a short time since. One would suppose, from the amount of floundering produced by it, that somebody's cause was in very great danger. I had no thought that my brief note would stir up such an amount of feeling as has been developed. In the first place, the Doctor says it is contrary to his rule to publish an article without the name of the writer; but the nature of my article is such as to justify a breach of rule in its publication, on the same principle, I suppose, that a person would cease religious devotion if a burglar was heard in the house. But for some reason the Doctor did not tell us of anything very bad that I said, (perhaps being "narrow-minded" I could not see it.) Would it not have been as well if the Doctor had shown the impropriety of my position, rather than make the charge of imbecility? Doctor, if the thought that prompted that communication is "bad stuff," (as you called it,) I have more in me of the same sort. My cause has not been assailed, hence I will not try to strengthen it. I am only ridiculed for vindicating it. I did not give my name, not because I was afraid or ashamed; I wished simply to state a fact, without reference to its author. By the by, who is "Contributor?" Why did he not give his name? Not afraid or ashamed, of course! I want to know who my friends are. "Publican" says he is a church member. Out with your names, gentlemen, you have mine, below.

I have noticed one thing in my life; when men have no argument to meet the statement of another, they often, as in this case resort to sarcasm and unkind epithets. One says "filled with bad stuff," and "narrow minded." Another says, "Pharisee!" and the class I represent "will both lie and cheat." Another says, "bully language." Perhaps, gentlemen, you have been somewhat restrained in your language, not knowing whom you were aiming at. You have the name, I hope you will free your minds.

MYRON DUPUY.

MR. EDITOR:—Again comes that periodical wall from a party located at or near that great centre of all that is respectable—the station. This time there are two old grievances brought up—post office and street crossings. Now, my candid opinion is that if "our merchants" are not satisfied with present Post Office arrangements, they would not long be satisfied with any other. Mr. Elvins is doing more—at his own expense—for the accommodation of that part of the town than any one or all the chronic grumblers would do for us were the office removed.

As for the crossings, I know that Mr. Gay will do all in his power to gratify them, and when some of our slow-coaches come up to the mark with their arrears of taxes, perhaps he will get his pay. Gentlemen who wear shiny boots should remember that there are many miles of roads in town to be kept up, and it costs money.

TO ACQUIRE WEALTH.—Be honest. If Satan tempts you to defraud your neighbor, it is only that he may rob you of your ill-gotten gains in the end.

Be temperate. Liquor has made more paupers than all the other vices combined.

Be industrious. Indolence, debt and disease, are brothers.

Let your word be your bond. Good credit is a fortune to begin with.

Limit your expenses by necessity and comfort, leaving a good balance for margin saved.

Invest your funds carefully and intelligently. Beware of the brilliant bubbles that are blown up to tempt ingenious speculators.

Give your personal attention to your business. To do this keep body and brain healthful.

One hypocrite will do more harm to a good cause than a thousand open foes, yet the avowed advocates of every cause spend far more time and energy fighting real or imaginary foes than in exposing the hypocrites in their midst.

There is a farmer in Berks county so mean that he would not stop harvesting and let his city cousins drive round the country with his horses.

The Kirkwood Strawberry.

Knowing that fruit growing is the leading interest of many of the readers of thy paper, I give the figures of a crop of strawberries of one of my neighbors the present season. I saw them during the picking season, was so well pleased with them that after they were gathered I measured carefully the ground occupied by them, and found it contained thirty-four hundredths (.34) of an acre, with four bearing apple trees growing upon it. From it were gathered 3414 quarts of berries, which were sold by Buzby & McCully, of Philadelphia, for $614.51, an average of 18 cents per quart. The ground was somewhat moist, which was an advantage, this season. In 1878 they were grown upon high ordinarily dry ground. Four one-hundredths of an acre (by actual measurement) yielded 400 quarts, which sold for over sixty dollars. They were grown in the common matted bed system. A new variety, grown by Theodore Bishop some years since, but not brought prominently to notice before—Fruit large to very large, very bright color, regular and good shape, quality fair, enormously productive, good bedder, plants strong, season one of the very latest. Moderately firm, and deserves a trial by all strawberry growers.

Pure Water.

Those who have heard John B. Gough apostrophize a goblet of water—lifting it on high—in his glowing imagery of the good, the pure and true; will not fail to mark the following beautiful thoughts of Bro. A. E. Ballard, all the more grand, because clothed in poetic language:

"God never gave us the intoxicants. None of them are of His making. He gave us the water. He mingles the pure gases together and produces it. Then he pours it into the rock basins of the sea for preservation while he purifies it. Then he divides it into pieces of vapor so small as to defy the vision, and lifts them with the gentle arms of the winds into the firmament. When every article is examined through the clear glass of the sunlight, purifying them with its glory, he puts them into the pools of the clouds, where He rounds them into drops by the fiery flashes of the lightning and pours them down upon the earth in showers for the drinking of its flora. Some of these particles he folds around with the cold, forming them into beautiful snow crystals and laying them down upon the tops of the mountains, where he sends the sun to kiss them into a waking of warmth and life. Then they go down that mountain side in the sportiveness of gladdened childhood; they leap in cascades; they rush over the rocks foaming with laughter; they hide among the bushes, they reappear in streamlets; they murmur to the fern fringes of the margins; they find the hidden paths of nature, and go down secretly to the mountain's foot, where they bubble their joy in springs, or seclude themselves in the cool, damp cellars of the earth which He has masoned into reservoirs, till the wells go down to them and bring them up for the cooling of thirst and the sustenance of life.

For human disorders He medicines it with the salts, and the sulphur, and the magnesia, and the iron.

For luxuries, he puts it to the mouths of roots, and pours it through the sap veins into the fruit of the grape and the berry, and the peach, and all the myriad forms of life.

For our sense of beauty, He causes it to diamond the dew drop, and sapphire the rain fall, and the flash in the Streamlet, and sparkle in the cascade, and whiten in the waterfall, and color in the rivers, and emerald in the ocean; shimmering everywhere in blushes of silvery gladness over the sun smiles of the creator.

Beyond us, the one deep curse of the lost world is, that there is NO WATER. In the first Eden, there was a stream in its center, which parted into four heads, so that everywhere the eye rested on water.

In the Eden which is to come, the river of the water of life is its greatest attraction.

For the Angels, who are at home in the other world, there flows from beneath the throne a pure river of water, clear as crystal, for the refreshing of their Glory.

Everywhere water; never once a rotten fermentation.

General Weaver opened his campaign by writing on a piece of paper, "This is a great speech," and on another, "This is an immense and enthusiastic assemblage." Then he laid them close together and gazed at them with feelings of ecstatic bliss.

New Jersey for Garfield and Arthur should be the motto of every Republican paper, and every Republican organization. Hard work to accomplish it, to be sure, but it can be done.

North Carolina Republicans who are visiting Washington express great confidence of carrying that State. They purpose making an active canvass and polling their full vote, and will do their best to secure a fair count. North Carolina is naturally a Republican State, and has a larger proportion of white Republican voters than any other south of the Potomac. It was in that State and in the counties bordering on South Carolina that the Ku-klux-Klans committed their first and worst atrocities, and prepared the way for the present Democratic ascendancy.

Capt. John B. Adams is again brought forward by his friends as a candidate for the Legislature in the First Assembly District of Camden county. It is urged that the Captain has stepped aside on former occasions in the interest of harmony, and now his claims will be presented with the confident belief that they should be allowed. If nominated he agrees to make it lively for his opponent and a thorough canvass will be made, and prosecuted from the opening of the campaign. The nomination will be likely to be made early.—W. J. Press.

Capt. Adams is a son of Israel Adams, of Somers' Point, and if he is a "chip of the old block," as no doubt he is, he will make things lively, and we only hope he will be successful in receiving the nomination. There would be no doubt of his election.

General William J. Sewell who was one of the delegates-at-large to the Chicago Convention, in correcting in the Press the absurd story of a New York Herald reporter regarding the political standing of the Society of the 3d Army Corps, takes a most hopeful view of the outlook for the success of the Republican party. A clear, cool-headed politician, of sound judgment and never over-enthusiastic, he speaks most encouragingly of the prospect in New Jersey, asserting the strong probability of the rejection of the free-trade Democratic platform and candidate, and the inevitable election of a Republican United States Senator as Mr. Randolph's successor.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

It is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The VIGOR cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair

The Vigor is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

Above product, our "specialty," is the pure unfermented juice of the grape as it leaves the press, and equivalent to this delicious fruit in liquid form. Possessing no alcoholic prop-

"Our" MUST must not be mistaken for other so-called unfermented wines, as it is not boiled and hermetically sealed to keep it from spoiling.
The only "Process" resorted to by us is to permanently stop fermentation, which naturally must result in the juice remaining as it grew.

NOTICE!

To those holding Policies in the Millville Mutual Marine & Fire Insurance Co.

Your insurance is as good to-day as any insurance can be—being protected by our insurance notes—and from the responsibility on the premium notes, the law allows no escape. The policies of the company must remain good untill the court of chancery fixes a time for responsibility to cease by surrender of premium notes.
This we believe now we shall escape, but in any event ample notice of such order, must and shall be given.

To those who are thinking of re-insuring in other companies we say that such a course is of all others to be avoided. By so doing, you raise a grave question as to whether your insurance is not rendered void—and you still remain liable for the assessment in the Millville

IMMORTALITY.

There is no death! The stars go down
To rise upon some fairer shore;
And bright in Heaven's jewelled crown
They shine forevermore.

There is no death! The dust we tread
Shall change beneath the summer showers
To golden grain or mellow fruit,
Or rainbow-tinted flowers.

The granite rocks disorganize,
And feed the hungry moss they bear;
The forest leaves drink daily life
From out the viewless air.

There is no death! An angel form
Walks o'er the earth with solemn tread,
He bears our best-loved things away,
And then we call them dead.

He leaves our hearts all desolate;
He plucks our fairest, sweetest flowers:
Transplanted into bliss, they now
Adorn immortal bowers.

Born into that undying life,
They leave us but to come again.
With joy we welcome them—the same
Except the sin and pain.

And ever near us, though unseen,
The dead immortal spirits tread;
For all the boundless Universe
Is life—there are no dead!

How dear to my heart is the school I attended,
And how I remember so distant and dim,
That red-headed Bill and the pin that I bended
And carefully put on the bench under him!
And how I recall the surprise of the master
When Bill gave a yell and sprang up with the pin
So high that his bullet-head busted the plaster
Above, and the scholars all set up a grin.
That active boy Billy, that high-leaping Billy?
That loud-echoing Billy that sat on the pin!

Take your Choice.

Insurance.

CUMBERLAND MUTUAL Fire Insurance Company.

BRIDGETON, N. J.

Conducted on strictly mutual principles, offering a perfectly safe insurance for just what it may cost to pay losses and expenses. The proportion of loss to the amount insured being very small, and expenses much less than usually had, nothing can be offered more favorable to the insured. The cost being about ten cents on the hundred dollars per year to the insurers on ordinary risks, and from fifteen to twenty-five cents per year on hazardous properties, which is less than one-third of the lowest rates charged by stock companies, on such risks—the other two-thirds taken by stock companies being a profit accruing to stockholders, or consumed in expenses of the companies.

The guarantee fund of premium notes being now Three Millions of Dollars.

If an assessment had to be made of five per cent only, twice within the ten years for which the policy is issued, it would yet be cheaper to the members than any other insurance offered.
And that large amount of money is saved to the members and kept at home. No assessment having ever been made, being now more than thirty years, that saving would amount to more than

One Million Five Hundred Thousand Dollars

The Losses by Lightning.

Where the property is not set on fire, being
