The Reading Disaster.

The coroner's jury reassembled on Thursday, in Town Hall. Coroner Geo.
Smit was in charge. Messrs. M. L.
Jackson, Samuel Anderson, W. H.
Barnhouse, E. W. Strickland, J. L.
O'Donnell, and Joseph R. Imhoff composed the jury.

Miss Della Nicolai, W. H. Burgess,
Walter Verrier, John McLaughlin, Dr.
Cunningham, Eugene Cogsey, Howard
Soy, John Zeno, Antonio Molino,
Wm. Giberson, Mrs. Cora Hay, Wm.
Murphy, Isaac Bontag, John Buba,
Edw. Schaffner, Wm. Oysterman, Wm.
Lieber, and J. Molino were Hammonton witnesses. Also L. E. Mood, conductor, B. R. Harrison, engineer, and Frank Stover, fireman, on train No. 20, which killed three and injured others on Wednesday evening, July 8th.

Their evidence did not vary materially, except that all witnesses swore that the regular bell and whistle signals were given, while others testified that they were not.

The whole matter is well summed up in the jury's verdict, which was rendered at 1:30 p. m., after one and one-half hours deliberation. It was as follows:
"The jury find that Antonio DePalma, Alfredo DePalma, and Philip Bruno came to their death by being struck by engine of train No. 20 on the Atlantic City Railroad, on the evening of Wednesday, July 8th, 1908, about the hour of 8:30 p. m., which killed a horse, demolished a carriage, and seriously injured one boy, and injured two others."

The evidence shows that this train had been in the habit of stopping at Hammonon at 8:30 p. m., but a few days previous the schedule had been changed. The engineer testified that a whistle post is located 400 feet from the crossing, and it takes one-quarter of a minute to run that distance. Evidence also showed the gateway or crossing watchman goes off duty at 8:15 p. m., fifteen minutes before train No. 20, is due. Evidence further shows that the whistle did not sound; but even if it did, one-fourth of a minute is not a sufficient warning.

"The finding of the jury is that the cause of the accident is attributed to the said crossing not being properly protected; and this jury censures the Superintendent of the Atlantic City Railroad for not properly protecting the crossings in Hammonon, particularly at Twelfth and Thirteenth Streets; and we recommend that Twelfth Street crossing be protected at least until all scheduled trains have passed."

Hundreds of people who suffer from backache, rheumatism, lame back, lumbago, and stiff joints are not aware that there are simple remedies which will relieve them. The cause of these ailments is the kidneys, and the kidneys are the most important organs of the body. They are the filters of the blood, and if they become clogged, the blood is poisoned. The result is backache, rheumatism, and other ailments. A dose of Fowler's Kidney and Bladder Remedy will cleanse the kidneys and restore the blood to its normal state. Sold by City Pharmacy, 12 S. Illinois, opp.

Raymond Harrison, the engineer on train No. 20, which killed several Italians, was formerly a resident here.

Latest in Foreign Fashions

Brettelette trimmings still continue to be very popular, though different considerably from the form in which they were first introduced. Some of the latest specimens even assume a sort of semi-circular appearance, some of which are quite striking. The effect is usually constructed of the same material as the skirt, and in the manner extending widely over the shoulder, descending some distance down over the sleeve, or even entirely composing it.

This type is usually constructed of the same material as the skirt, and in the manner extending widely over the shoulder, descending some distance down over the sleeve, or even entirely composing it. The narrow black brettelette starting from the waistline and passing over any sort of bodice and simply uniting it to the skirt, is now almost entirely abandoned. The brettelette as now worn, is in style, and is often the waist or the skirt, but in preference to the latter. As a separate, independent trimming it may be said to no longer exist.

Jackets of Transparent Fabrics. A very attractive and novel summer fashion consists of a jacket of semi-transparent fabric, of the same color as the skirt, but of a somewhat transparent fabric, which is worn over the skirt. The effect is very pleasing, and the corset is not visible. The corset is not visible. The corset is not visible.

White for Trimming Purposes. Very beautiful are many of the new shades of white, which are used for trimming. The effect is very pleasing, and the corset is not visible. The corset is not visible. The corset is not visible.

Use of a cloth as a trimming on woolen materials of a sheerer nature has already been referred to, and in this form its use seems to be increasing as the season advances.

Stained-out devices white taffeta is employed as applications or decorations, thus creating very deep handsome foot trimmings on skirts.

Very stylish tailor suits are composed of black woolen voile, the skirt little, if at all, trimmed with the brand and cuffs of the jacket have deep decorative facings and cuffs of white material.

Another pleasing novelty is the three-quarter length jacket of American type composed of colored flannel, trimmed with the brand and cuffs of the jacket have deep decorative facings and cuffs of white material.

A SMART LINEN SUIT

The linen suit grows more and more popular each season, or so it would appear, for the material is ever being produced in new and attractive forms and styles, and constantly growing in grace and smartness. This one is made of the French finished sort in a beautiful shade of buff, and is trimmed with white braid, and with white-linen soutache, but gray, blue and lavender all are extensively worn. White always holds its place.

Humor in Our Exchanges

Unkind. "I've got a washing-machine here," began the inventor.

The capitalist looked at him in the cold, calculating manner common to capitalists, and answered:

"Well, if I were you, I'd run straight to the nearest laundry."

That night the anarchist band received another application for membership.

Hushed It Up. A grizzled colonel, veteran of the Civil War, did not view with pleasure the recent promotion of younger and more energetic officers.

Yet he had no friends; and to boast an acquaintance from amongst the ladies was beyond his hopes. But he resolutely determined to speak to the girl who was his only friend.

Colonel said the officer, "This is the most remarkable monkey I ever saw. Why, he can talk, and he can do anything else a monkey can do."

"Sh!" cautioned the colonel, glancing about him. "Don't tell anybody. Supposing the War Department heard of it? They'd make him a brigadier-general!"

His Name Was Alexander. There was a chap who kept a store. He sold things cheap, nor asked for his name was Alexander.

He mixed his goods with cunning hands, and he sold his sugar, salt and sand. And since his sugar was half sand, they called him Alex-Sander.

He had a girl. One day she came. Then lovingly he scanned her. He asked her would she change her name.

"Oh, yes," she said, with smiling lip. "If I can be commended."

And she framed a partnership. And called it Alex-and-her.

Obedient Mother. A man had just arrived at a North Jersey summer resort. In the evening he was sitting on the veranda when a small New Jersey woman and her seven-year-old son came out.

"The little fellow at once made friends with the latest arrival. 'What's your name?' he asked."

Then, when this information had been given, he added: "Are you married?" "I am not, married," responded the man with a smile.

"At this the child paused a moment, and turning to his mother, said: 'What's his name?' 'Mamma,' he wanted me to ask him."

New Jersey Applause. A certain theatrical troupe, after a dreary and unsuccessful tour, finally arrived in a small New Jersey town.

That night, although there was no general uprising of the audience, there was enough hand clapping to arouse the troupe's dejected spirits.

The leading man stopped to the right lights after the first act and bowed profoundly. Still the clapping continued.

When he went behind the scenes he saw an Irish stage hand laughing heartily. "What do you think of that?" asked the actor, throwing out his chest.

"What d'ye mean?" inquired the Irishman. "Why, the hand clapping out there," was the reply.

"Yes," said the Irishman. "They are giving me enough applause to show that they appreciate me."

"D'ye mean that?" inquired the old fellow. "Whol, thet's not an applause. Thot's the audience killin' mosquitoes."

SAY THIS QUICKLY Betty Botta bought some butter; "But," said she, "this butter's bitter; I'd put it in my batter; It'll make my batter better; But a bit of better butter Will put in my batter better; Better than the butter butter; Made for better butter; So 'twon better Betty Botta Bought a bit of better butter."

Why She Could Not Marry Him

GEORGE REDFERN was in all things the quintessence of mediocrity. For ten years he had journeyed from Champlain to New York each morning of the week.

He was a man who lived alone in Champlain. He paid his rent for a bed-room in the village, and he was a man who lived alone in Champlain.

When he was twenty-six years of age it suddenly dawned upon him that it was time to marry. As he thought over the question one evening, he remarked to himself that there was five hundred dollars to his credit at the bank.

Yet he had no friends; and to boast an acquaintance from amongst the ladies was beyond his hopes. But he resolutely determined to speak to the girl who was his only friend.

THE STORY OF A WOMAN HATER

By F. MORTON HOWARD

THE village was noted for its information. Women, having carefully omitted items from their usual Saturday list of purchases, found occasion to drop in again, and again at the Stores to hear the latest rumors.

King's Arms, men, surmised and conjectured. Neighbors, hither-to at enmity, became amiable in order to exchange theories over garden ralls. And still nothing in the way of reliable, authoritative information was obtainable, and the postmistress was forced to declare blithely that at last she was beaten.

The origin of all this mental activity was to be found in Yew Trees, a long, rambling cottage, which stood at the cross roads outside the village. For years Yew Trees had been without a tenant, its windows a prey to small boys with big stones.

And then one day, to the surprise of the village, painters and glaziers set the old house in order, and a yard of furniture—good, responsible-looking furniture, arrived at Yew Trees and was duly inventoried by the "lookers" as each item was carried into the house.

For a week Yew Trees stood awaiting its tenants, and the curiosity of the village rose with each day's delay. At last a stranger appeared and left himself in the hands of the village. Those of the villagers who had heard of the good fortune to witness his arrival reported that he was a moderately good-looking man, but elderly. Further evidence was given by Mrs. Blogg, who stated that he was wearing a gold watch-chain, and that there were no nails in the soles of his boots.

For a fortnight the village awaited the advent of the stranger. At last he came. He looked at the village with a keen eye, and he looked at the village with a keen eye, and he looked at the village with a keen eye.

Sooner does Caleb Powers shake his pockets of the law than he contemplates himself with the bonds of matrimony. Some folk get so used to fetters that they don't mind the shackles. Some folk get so used to fetters that they don't mind the shackles.

ELM NEWS.

The berry season, just drawing to a close, has been one of the most unprofitable on record, though the railroad freight bills show an increase over 1907 of $3000 on shipments from here. Still the growers' pocket-books show a much less bulk.

Berries, as a rule, owing to the long-continued dry weather, were in very poor condition, especially blackberries. Most of the Wilson variety were actually dried up on the bushes. Thousands of quarts were never picked.

The sweet potato crop seems to have caught the infection, also, as most of the growers complain of very poor growth and a great many killed with black rot.

The pear crop is going to be short also, owing to frosts in blossom time, and peaches will not be as numerous as at first expected, being smaller than usual.

The recent rains have materially benefited the corn crop, which promises a good average yield. The farmer works hard and is poorly paid.

Chas. H. Jenison and cousin, Miss Smythe, from Seymour, Ct., who were visiting his parents, returned last Monday, Miss Sara Jenison with them, to show her the Yankee hills.

Talk of the Fourth, or of the sixteenth, for that matter, they were not in it with nature's pyrotechnic exhibition on the early morning of the 22nd. Rain began to fall in a hesitating manner about nine the previous evening, but about two o'clock on Wednesday morning we were awakened by the flash and racket of as lively a thunder storm as we ever remember witnessing. Lightning flashed almost continuously, keeping the world dazlingly bright with the most brilliant of lights, while the roar, rumble and rattle of thunder was at times almost deafening, and kept the timid in a state bordering on terror. It was grand beyond description, and well worth the loss of a little sleep to witness. With it was what we were all praying for—a brisk down-fall of genuine rain, which washed dust-laden vegetation and made the atmosphere clear and pure. Yes, we were glad enough to see and hear it all, and enjoy the breath of pure air.

C. F. Osgood is expected back to-day, from a trip to Maine.
