IF WE KNEW.

Could we but draw back the curtains
That surround each other's lives,
See the naked heart and spirit,
Know what spur the action gives,
Often we should find it better,
Purer than we judge we should;
We should love each other better
If we only understood.

Could we judge all deeds by motives,
See the good and bad within,
Often we should love the sinner
All the while we loathe the sin.
Could we know the powers working
To overthrow integrity,
We should judge each other's errors
With more patient charity.

If we knew the cares and trials,
Knew the efforts all in vain,
And the bitter disappointment—
Understood the loss and gain—
Would the grim external roughness
Seem, I wonder, just the same?
Should we help where now we hinder?
Should we pity where we blame?

Ah! we judge each other harshly,
Knowing not life's hidden force;
Knowing not the fount of action
Inless turbid at its source,
Seeing not amid the evil
All the golden grains of good,
Oh! we'd love each other better
If we only understood.

Base-Ball.

All Philadelphia could not defeat Hammonton last Saturday, but were taken into camp by our worthy players in a well matched game. It was the kind of a game one likes to see, and the grand stand was well filled with spectators.

In the first Cantrell knocked the ball down before the plate and swung around on a sacrifice and McWatters' hit.

Neither side scored in the second in spite of a base on balls and a three base hit by Wimbung.

The fourth was the most exciting for both sides. McWatters singled, moved up on Brown's sacrifice, and in on Mc Culkin's drive to left. The latter tallied on a bad throw to cut off Morrille on let.

In our inning Thomas singled but was finally put out at home. Gifford, Wimbung, and Conley trotted in as a result of three hits, an error, and stolen base.

In the fifth the winning run was made by Neveling. His hit to left, sacrifices by Setley and Thomas, and a single by Cordery counted the winning run for us.

A Reply Wanted.

I am told by several that dog owners are told by officials that they need only register their dogs,—no need of muzzling them,—that there is no intention to enforce the ordinance in that respect. Is this true? If so, what protection have I, or any one, from vicious or rabid dogs? What is the use of passing an ordinance, if it is not to be enforced? E. S. CAUFFMAN.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, my tongue coated, pain continually in my back and sides, gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up.
Fortunately, a friend advised trying Electric Bitters, and to my great surprise and joy the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No person should fail to try them. Only 50 cents, guaranteed, at Crowell's Pharmacy.

Criminals Often Brought to Justice by Accidental Photographs.

By both accident and intention, on numerous occasions, the art of the photographer has proved of immense utility in compassing the conviction of criminals.

An amateur photographer in Chicago recently photographed an automatic camera in the tapestried wall of his drawing-room, for the purpose of securing some reliable evidence as to the behavior of certain members of his household during his absence from home.

One moonlight night a burglar broke into the house by way of the apartment mentioned. In so doing he disturbed the spring which set the hidden machinery in motion, and left an excellent photo of himself upon the photographic plate, which, when produced in court, secured his speedy conviction.

In another instance, a man who murdered his mother was arrested by the operation of the automatic camera. The dreadful deed was committed in a forest, where a student of photography had set a camera on a tripod, and the picture was taken by the artist as he took three copies of the scene. One of these, when duly developed and enlarged, portrayed the murderer in the act of slaying his mother.

During the jubilee celebration a well-known photographer in London took a number of street scenes of historic interest. In one of these pictures, where a vast crowd of people were assembled near St. Paul's Cathedral, the camera revealed a pickpocket in the very act of playing his peculiar profession.

An old detective, who had been inspecting the photograph, said that he knew the man well. He was badly "wanted" for frauds committed on the continent, but the officers were not looking for him.

A snap-shot at a summer crowd on the sands at Margate came out so clearly that the knight of the camera showed it to a number of his friends. Among these was a Scotland Yard officer, who discovered features of a man who had been wanted for some time.

A Portsmouth photographer paid a professional visit to a large garden party at Southsea, where he took a group of fashionable visitors with excellent success. During the process of development he observed that in the foreground he had taken a picture of a woman who was a well-known figure in the city.

A French photographer in London took a picture of a man who was a well-known figure in the city. The man was a well-known figure in the city.

KEITH'S THEATRE, PHILA.

Mitch, Magio and Melody Ganga.

The entertainment at Keith's, Philadelphia, this week, the favorite theatre of residents of this town, will be one of the most remarkable ever presented in Philadelphia.

A singular result of the recent experiments of Professor Angelo Mosso on the physiological effects of high altitudes is that a mountain ascent may produce such a flattening of the lumber curve that a man may be an inch and a half shorter on the summit of Monte Rosa than when he is in the valleys beneath.

The Chinese method of producing artificial pearls by introducing some foreign substance into the pearl oyster is open to a difficulty; the oyster sometimes expels the object from its shell.

A French experimenter has devised an "improvement." He makes a hole in the shell and introduces a little bit of mother-of-pearl. The oyster cannot get rid of it, and it becomes a pearl.

In order to prove to the satisfaction of the members of the Linnean Society, London, that he had really caused a buzzard to hatch and rear a chicken from a hen's egg, Mr. A. F. Crossman recently exhibited a series of photographs showing the hatching and subsequent feeding of the chicken by its strange foster-mother.

JOHN BUCKER

"What is that dreadful crowd?" "I don't know. Either Hobson is in town or shirt-waists are unfastened down to the knees."—Chicago Record.

The Judge sternly: "The next person who interrupts the proceedings will be expelled from the court-room." This prisoner (enthusiastically)—"Hoary—Puck."

Mrs. Jones—Why don't you do something to support yourself? The train was thinking of a million of other people's troubles.

"This," said Mr. Flitter, "is a picture of the only girl I ever loved." "How cleverly," said Miss Wyse, as she looked at the portrait, "they got up these composite photographs."

Pray—Have you heard that horrible story about old Stiff being buried alive? Dr. Bolus (hastily)—Buried alive? Impossible! Why, he was one of my patients—Brooklyn Life.

Farmers (to young thief)—"Want any more? You're doing very well with that apple! Bright boy! I was just going to climb up the tree to just pick this apple, which I see, has fallen down."

Jinks—I want to buy a dog. I don't know what they call the breed, but it is something the shape of a giraffe, with a short, curly tail and rough hair. Do you keep dogs like that? Fanciful—No! I draw 'em—Punch.

He-it seems to be generally acknowledged as a fact that nearly all women admire a man who is a little taller than the married ladies, but none of the single ones would object to a good offer either.—Chicago News.

Miss Antiquary—Perhaps you are not aware of the fact that my family came over in the Mayflower. Miss Quibb—(faintly)—But when I suppose you were too young at the time to remember much about the trip.—Chicago News.

The tired help—Say, here let me have been leavin' is five or ten pounds short every mornin'. The team—Sure, it's the burin' gances of them lively eyes that melt it before me.

While Smith was playing with the Jones boys. His mother called him: "Willie, don't you know those are bad boys for you to play with?" "Yes, ma'am," said Willie, "but they're the only ones I can play with."

Father (sternly)—What is this I hear about you gambling? Son (hesitantly)—I admit I play cards, father, but it is only for small sums. Father—(frowning)—It is for something to eat I don't want to hear of it. Don't let me hear you playing for money.—Truth.

Mrs. Dangleigh—I see here, Ethel, that every name has a meaning. True Harold means "brave," Charles means "free," and so on. I know what Dick means, too. He means business. He told me last night—Boston Globe.

Little Clarence (who reads and posers)—"A, in true, as Shakespeare says, that 'all the world's a stage.'"

Mr. Callahan (who has been as long as Shakespeare's time, but as far back as to remember it has been more full of trials)—Puck.

Friend—Your wife is certainly a brilliantly handsome woman. I am jealous of her. Host (confidentially)—To tell you the truth, Robbins, I am. I never invite anybody here that a sane woman could possibly take the least fancy to.
