How Refreshing

is a Cup of Coffee
provided it is GOOD and also made right.

Read :

To three-fourths-cup Royal Java and Mocha (ground fine) add two or three cups cold water and one egg (beaten one minute), boil three minutes, then fill to quantity desired with hot water, and serve.

We recommend "Royal" blend above all others, as being the finest flavored coffee this town holds, and when made by the above receipt cannot fail to give satisfaction.

We are the sole agents in Hammonton for both Royal and White House, also a high grade coffee. So don't waste time looking for them elsewhere, nor waste money on cheaper coffees said to be just as good.

But if you want other kinds, we have them all from 18 c. to 30 c.

RAILROAD WRECK!

The REPUBLICAN reporter views the scene.

A most horrible disaster was that of Thursday evening. The Atlantic City Railroad express, due at Atlantic City at 6:55, ran into an excursion train of the West Jersey Road, containing a large number of Red Men and their families from Bridgeton and vicinity, at the point where the tracks cross, about a mile from Atlantic City.

In order to get at the actual facts, the REPUBLICAN soon had their representative on the ground.

Just how the collision occurred may never be known, as Edwin Farr, engineer of the Reading train, was killed, and upon him seems to rest the responsibility. The most reasonable account given is that Farr did not see the red light, and supposed that, as usual, his train had the right of way. He may have mistaken the excursion train for one on the C. & A. When his body was found, one hand was upon the throttle and the other on the air-brake lever.

The Reading engine struck just the rear of the second car, throwing it off the track, on its side. This car remained nearly whole, and but few of its passengers were killed. The third car was completely telescoped, and smashed into splinters. The Reading engine was turned completely over, and at once the boiler exploded, sending the scalding steam over the mass of dead and wounded lying about. On opposite side lies the baggage car, a complete wreck, in which baggage master Thorn lost his life. The balance of train kept the track, and the passengers escaped serious injury, so far as we can ascertain.

The wounded were first taken out and sent to the city hospital, or to some of the hotels. The dead were taken to an improvised morgue, the Fowler bicycle rooms, near Pacific and Mississippi Avenues.

Through the courtesy of City Clerk Emory Ireland, the REPUBLICAN was the first newspaper to get the complete list of killed. The last of the bodies which could be identified were recognized by friends about 4:00 p. m. yesterday. In the presence of the writer, a young man stepped up, and with whitened face and trembling lips, said "Yes, that is my sister-in-law, and, this man is my uncle."

At least sixty were seriously wounded, some perhaps fatally. Below is the list of dead:

From Bridgeton, N. J.:
J. D. Johnson Wm. Prickett
Chas. D. Houroughs Joseph Cheney
Chas. Booy Jas. M. Bateman
H. F. Bell and wife P. H. Goldsmith
John Griener Mrs. Goldsmith
Chas. Muta and sister Pearl
Chas. P. McGear Richard Treacher
Franklin DuBois Morris and Jos. Peters
Joseph Ernest Harvey Hughes
Miss Tillie Leeds Nina Shoeny
Elton May Mabel May

The following are from other points:
S. P. Murphy, Millville, N. J.
Samuel Thorn, baggage master, Atlantic City
Chas. Ecker, Salem, N. J.
Annie Fries, Yorktown, N. J.
Mary Wontzall, Alloway, N. J.
Lida Karl, Haddon, N. J.
William, Hattie, and Rena Loper, York
Edwin Farr, Atlantic City
Also six others unidentified.

The scene of the wreck was surrounded all day yesterday by thousands of spectators, most of them striving among the ruins for pieces of brass, wood or other mementos. Others of ghastly choice had pieces of blood-stained clothing; one had a piece of a skull, another a tooth.

Both the West Jersey and the Atlantic City Railroads are equipped with all the best known safety appliances, but so long as human judgment is capable of error, accidents must happen. But let us remember that such accidents as this one are most rare, and that travel is always safer thereafter owing to the naturally increased carefulness of officers and employees.

Miss Minnie Newcomb will return to her missionary work in New York, the first of the week.

BASE BALL.

HAMMONTON vs. ENERGETIC A. A.

Hammonton took the Energetics into camp Saturday, and gave them a dose of some bitter mixture, the bitter and sweet of which was in the proportion of 11 to 10. The game on both sides was a curious mixture of blundering errors and brilliant plays. The great wonder is, how the locals could hold down the visitors' score enough to eclipse it, in view of the errors made by themselves, especially in the first of the game. As a sample, the first three runs of the visitors were the result of bad throws, and the fourth, of a mud, all in the first inning.

Gartside pitched a very good game during his reign in the box, in the first three innings. It was then that the copious showers of errors by his "supporters" refreshed the Energetics and made seven of their runs. Naylor was new at short stop, and did rather poorly there, though there is some excuse for him, for he was not in very good condition. He did better work on third, when he and Watt exchanged places. Bakely tries to take things most too easy on first, and sometimes gets left.

Neither side did very brilliant work at the bat, though Conley's two base hit brought in two runs. Our fielders were singularly free from errors, and did some good work. Mathis made fine catches of Lacy in the third, Willis in the fourth, and Ellis in the seventh. Luderitz squeezed Ferguson in the fifth, making a double by throwing to first, and Lacy in the sixth, and White was miffed in the eighth.

Mr. Thos. Eggers, 130 Florida St., San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching consumption, tried without result everything else, then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medicine in coughs and colds. Free trial bottles at Croft's Pharmacy.

A PATENT
PEACH CARRIER OR CRATE.

The long-felt want for something better than a tottering small bottomed basket for shipping Peaches in, has been found at last, in the shape of a crate that holds two baskets. This carrier has a spring bottom, like a buck-board, that prevents fruit from being bruised in transit,—on wagon or car, on the way to market. It is light, but very strong, and intended for a return package. The cover is tinned on, which saves the annoyance of tying or wiring covers on baskets. Price complete, $15 per 100. Baskets for on wheels, $3.50 per 100. Sample can be seen at Brown & Co.'s store. For sale by

The reason why the coming of the silver dollar was stopped was, that before the depreciation caused by the great increase of 120 per cent. in production and the closing of European mints, it was worth two and three cents more in bullion than it was as money. Consequently, little or none of it was brought to the mints for coinage into dollars, and its coinage was stopped, and this was the "terrible crime of 1873."

The Populist says: "The bill authorizing it was passed without the general knowledge, or as stated by the Philadelphia Inquirer, 'slipped through,' and that the intention was to demonetize silver."

It is further held that $500,000 of British gold was expended here to accomplish the result. This last charge is absolutely false and has been so proven to the satisfaction of every honest man.

As to whether the bill was slipped through without debate or not we refer our readers to the Congressional Globe. They will find that the debate in the Senate on the subject before the final passage filled fifty-six columns and in the House seventy-eight columns, not counting the debates in the House of the previous year, which fill some sixty columns. It was discussed and amended in committee at numerous times. This shows as plain as anything can be that the bill was carefully considered, and that if any member of Congress was ignorant of its provisions it was his own fault.

The demand for the redemption of silver did not come until after the enormous flood of silver in the Rocky Mountains, and then the price immediately began to fall because there was no demand for the output. To meet this demand Congress passed a law providing for the purchasing of enough silver to coin from 2,000,000 to 4,000,000 standard silver dollars a month. This was the Bland act of 1876. Yet in face of this largely increased demand, the price of silver actually went down. In 1890 was passed the Sherman act, which provided for the purchase of 4,500,000 ounces of silver per month. Yet so great was the output, and so small the demand that even then silver fell rapidly, and when the act was repealed in 1893 the silver dollar contained only a little more than fifty cents worth of bullion. Even India, with its three hundred millions souls, could not keep up the silver standard, and had to abandon it when the silver coins had fallen to about one-half of their face value.

There was no "crime" in 1893. That act was a plain business proposition, passed after long debate, and with the assent of every interest in the country. People who still keep up the talk about the crime show their ignorance of the whole subject. Silver today stands in the ratio of about 82 to 1 compared with gold. No law can change that ratio. It can only be changed by different conditions entirely apart from legislation. When the commercial nations of the world agree to use silver as money we can do so. Until that time it would be the height of folly for us to undertake it alone. We would immediately lose all our gold (we are beginning to lose it now through the fear of the possibility of free silver), and our circulation would be contracted beyond our power to restore it in the next ten years.

What this country needs is a restoration of business confidence. There is a plenty of money, and as soon as business men are satisfied as to the future there will be a greater amount of prosperity in this our country than we have ever known.

The H. A. A. will hold their next meeting on Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 7th. There will be no novice race, but a new feature will be a one-mile Club race. The prizes offered are as follows:

CANNING FACTORY.

MR. EDITOR:

The late slump in the prices of berries should convince the most skeptical that something must be done by our numerous fruit culturists. Had we had even one such factory, the berry crop need not have been sacrificed. Blackberries would have brought at least six cents a quart, and that without crates, freight, cartage, or commission.

And further, I am convinced that there is no better prospect for the future except through the establishment of one or more canning factories. Even the money that our imported fruit pickers earn is taken out of town, to be spent elsewhere—a big item in itself. We should have factories established here that would give employment to our own people.

Early berries come from the West Indies and the extreme southern States; then follow Delaware and Maryland; and after our own crop comes Pennsylvania and New York, and so on, even into Canada. These facts should be looked into and arrangements made accordingly.

The coming Fall and Winter will give us ample time to look these matters up. We have a number of thoroughly practical men in our midst, and were I sure that no offense would be taken, I would name them. A few live men organized our Bank, in the face of those who said it couldn't be done. But it was done, all the same, and now we would not do without it.

What say your readers in this matter? Next time I may "call names."

Mr. Klotter, father of Mrs. Herman Fiedler, died at his home in Egg Harbor City on Thursday evening last. Born in Bavaria in 1812, employed by the government as a pomologist, came to America thirty-nine years ago, and has since that time resided in Egg Harbor City.

Yes; this is America, and the nineteenth century, and misstatements may be corrected; but we want something more than the say-so of a political crank as authority for any proposed correction. Particularly when the "correction" contains statements that seem unreasonable, and have been proved untrue.

TO HUNT. My roomy and convenient residence, on Bellevue Avenue, is for rent. Apply on premises to Mrs. E. M. FAIRCHILD.

On Monday evening, sixteen men who went to work with double teams on the new county road, quit, and made their way home, none of them with one day's experience. It is said that several men passed homeward on Wednesday night. The weather is hot, the work is hard, pay small, and accommodations minus.

The Winslow Inn, the tenant houses in the village, and the various wells, are being put in repair by E. W. Strickland and H. McD. Little. There is something of business in the wind up there, evidently a pottery plant. Glad to hear it, for Hammononton business always gains with Winslow's prosperity.

All ordered paid except Schaumburg's, in whose last month's account there was an error. To be paid after correction.

Various complaints received as to the condition of different roads,—sand, wash-outs, and defective drainage. Mostly referred to Highway Committee.

Drainage ordered to relieve section at Front Street and C. & A. B. R.

Voted, that clerk be directed to report at each meeting the balance in each department, roads, poor, etc.

Finance Committee reported progress in arranging schedule of house fees for shows, etc. Granted more time.

A long and somewhat lively discussion followed the chairman's question, "What is to be done about violation of parade ordinance?" Postponed to obtain legal advice.

Clerk stated his failure to notify Mr. Fowler of Council's desire to regain possession of Park by Sept. 1st. Mr. Fowler announced his intention to hold for another year. Adjourned.

Ten voters attended the special school meeting on Thursday afternoon. D. B. Barry was chosen chairman, Orville E. Hoyt, secretary. Mr. Adams made a statement of three lots at Rosedale offered for a school house. On motion, the Board of Education was authorized to purchase a lot, 100x125 feet, on south side of Fifteenth Street, 527 feet from Egg Harbor Road, for $100.

The Baptist Sunday School had a picnic on Wednesday, in the grove near Weymouth paper mills. There were three great wagon loads, besides a number of private teams. Of courses they had a delightful time. It is an ideal place for a picnic,—the only drawback being the long drive. Many of the party did not reach home until midnight when the storm was raging furiously; but that did not chill their ardor, and all came up smiling in the morning, ready to cry encore.

VERY QUEEN LAKE.

Excursion to Geopline in the Blue Grass Region of Kentucky.

Stinking Creek, in the northwestern part of this county, is not a running stream or creek, as one would imagine from its name, but it is a large lake, which forms only in the spring of the year, when thaw and rainfall produce an overabundance of water, says a Nicholasville correspondent in the Cincinnati Enquirer. The formation of a lake covering over 200 acres of land and sometimes over 300 comes with the suddenness of a rise in the Mississippi river.

The lake is formed in a hollow entirely surrounded by gradually inclining hills of blue grass fields and meadows. These hills are at first imperceptible to the eye on account of the gradual and even slope of the surrounding country. A close examination of the country for miles around it all gradually inclines to the place where the springtime lake forms, but the place itself is merely a slightly rolling tract of land, over which various fences, trees, and shrubbery are seen. As the lake depends on the rainfall for its supply of water, it is larger some years than others, and has been known to cover 350 acres of land, and the water all the way from five to thirty feet deep. This body of water is a veritable Mecca for duck hunters at the time of the year when ducks pass through Kentucky on their way to the Northern States.

There is no outlet above the earth in the way of a creek or hollow. There is no cave or sink hole on any of the land which is covered by water through which the water may escape. Yet within one month this immense amount of water disappears. After the disappearance the earth, which is covered, instead of being a wet, marshy place, is as the case of an ordinary springtime rise in water, is a beautiful, fertile blue grass vale, over which blooded Kentucky stock roam during the summer months and fatten on the rich pasture. No appearance of a marsh or water weeds, etc., is found after the lake has gone.

Exactly what causes the "sinking" of the lake has never been determined, although various geologists have visited the scene. It is a well-known fact that Kentucky quicksaver, which is a siliceous liquid thrown into a pond or lake will cause it to soon sink, and it is claimed that the water forming this lake, as it is drained down from the surrounding hills, brings with it a composition of some kind which causes the quicksaver in its action on sinking a lake, and that this is the key to the mystery of Sinking Creek.

Comparatively few persons have both sides of the body perfectly symmetrical proportions. One leg or one arm is shorter than the other. The two sides of the head are often of unequal size. Few persons have ears of an equal size and symmetrically placed. The size and position of the eyes vary. In the mouth and throat also we find inequality, and the cartilage separating the two nasal cavities is often deflected than vertical. This condition of inequality in the two sides of the body is called asymmetry.

Those who have observed the effects of school life on body development must have noticed the influence of habitual posture on the symmetry and health of the body.

There is a tendency among school children, and especially among school girls, to assume habitual postures both in sitting and standing. The habit of throwing all the weight of the body on one leg produces a corresponding throwing of the upper part of the body toward the opposite side in order to establish the necessary equilibrium. This leads, of course, to curve the spinal column, on which the upper part of the body is supported.

In this position the body and all the internal organs are thrown out of their normal vertical position, and the force of gravity acts further to exaggerate this result. Thus the muscles of the neck are unevenly exercised in the unconscious balancing of the head upon the vertebrae of the neck. Even the muscles of the face tend to become unevenly contracted, and this, in time, develops a condition of asymmetry of the face.

It is a well-known physiological law that the use of a muscle causes an increase in its size, while neglect causes it to become smaller.

The steady use of the same arm in carrying a set of heavy books to and from school, the propping of one arm on a table, or the excessive use of one arm or leg and the disuse of the other—each such habit slowly but surely brings about the "weak" result, unless constant effort is made to counteract it.

The growing use is more subject than any other to such influences, but every one is already so powerfully influenced by any persistent habit which tends to the exaggeration of certain muscles, upon the habitual taking of a certain posture.—Youth's Companion.

MARCO POLO'S TALE.

His Career as a Traveler's Visit to the Great Khan.

When the Two Brothers got to the Great Khan, he received them with great honor and hospitality, and showed them much pleasure at their visit, asking them a great number of questions. First, he asked about the emperor, how they maintained their dignity and administered justice in their dominions; and how they went forth to battle, and so forth. And then he asked the questions about the kings and princes and other potentates.

And then he inquired about the Pope and the Church, and about all that is done at Rome, and the customs of the Latins. And the Two Brothers told him the truth in all its particulars, with order and good sense. The nobleman as they were, and this they were able to do as they knew the Tartar language well.

When that Prince, whose name was Cublay Khan, Lord of the Tartars all over the earth, and of all the kingdoms and provinces and territories of that vast quarter of the world, had heard all that the Brothers had to tell him about the ways of the Latins, he was greatly pleased, and he took them into his head that he would send them on an Embassy to the Pope. So he urgently desired them to undertake this mission along with one of his Barons; and they replied that they would gladly execute all his commands as those of their Sovereign Lord. Then the Prince went to summon to his presence one of his Barons whose name was Copatal, and desired him to get ready, for it was proposed to send him to the Pope along with the Two Brothers. The Baron replied that he would execute the Lord's commands to the best of his ability.

After this the Prince caused letters from himself to the Pope to be indited in the Tartar tongue, and committed them to the Two Brothers and to that Baron of his own, and charged them that when they wished them to say to the Pope, now the contents of the letter were to this purport: He begged that the Pope would send as many as a hundred persons of our Christian faith; intelligent men, acquainted with the Seven Arts, well qualified to enter into controversy, and able clearly to prove by force of argument to the Latins, and other kinds of folk that the Law of Christ was best, and that all other religions were false and naught; and if they would prove this he and all under his composition should become Christians and the church's liegemen. Finally he charged his Envoy to bring to him oil of the lamp which burns on the Sepulchre of our Lord at Jerusalem.

When the Prince had charged them with all his commission, he caused to be given them a Tablet of Gold, on which was inscribed that the three Ambassadors should be supplied with everything needful in all countries through which they should pass—with horses, with coaches, and, in short, with whatever they should require. And when they had made all needful preparations, the three Ambassadors took their leave of the Emperor and set out.—St. Nicholas.

Cruelty in a Kid Glove.

It has been estimated that out of the 60,000,000 people in the United States at least 15,000,000 are grown women of an age to wear kid gloves, and yet, according to the Dry Goods Economist, the import is about 10,000,000 pairs from France, which is said to make 25,000,000 pairs. When we realize that one woman of fashion can easily wear a hundred pair during the year it would seem that many of our women are still to be converted to the wearing of that delicate necessity, a kid glove. Our large cities are immense numbers. New York stores sell a larger number of kid gloves to the average woman inhabitant than any other city, except Paris, which of course does a large trade with its floating populace.

The center of the glove trade has always been at Grenoble, a mountain city of 65,000 people in France, where even the streets and public squares ring of gloves, as one of each is named after Xavier Jouvin, a veteran in the manufacturing of kid gloves. The raw skin manufactured here in a year are valued at $4,000,000. When made into 15,000,000 pair of gloves the value is just doubled, and the making up of the skins gives employment to 30,000 people.

The skins for the so-called "real" kid gloves come from France, Italy, Spain, Mexico and South America. France ranks first, where extreme care is taken with the skins, from the saving the kid in a cover or blanket to keep the delicate skin in perfect condition. In the meantime the little animal grows until the cover fits snugly around him, but we never hear of ladies forming a society to promote the cause of kid gloves, as has been tried with the Audubon society for suppressing the fashion of bluffs on hats. But the birds are not so lucky; necessary, or a substitute may be had, with nothing will replace a good kid glove on a well-fitting woman of the utmost day. The skin from child and the Audubon are particularly liked for single gloves.

FRANK MAYO.

His Career as an Actor Was a Most Successful One.

The drama lost one of its most able and distinguished exponents by the death of Frank Mayo, on a train en route from Denver to Omaha, Neb., recently. Mr. Mayo was one of the best known and most popular of American actors. He will be most widely and most pleasantly remembered in the character of Henry Cluckett in the play of that name, which had a run of many years.

LESSON ANALYSIS.

I. OPPORTUNITY SOUGHT.

1. An Enemy Remembered:—Is there yet any that is left of the house of Saul? (1.)

Saul was David's enemy continually (1 Sam. 18: 28).

The enemy hath persecuted my soul (Ps. 143: 3).

2. A Benefactor Proposed:—That I may show him kindness for Jonathan's sake (1.)

Thou shalt not cut off thy kindness from me, house of David (1 Sam. 20: 15).

To do good and to communicate forget not (Heb. 13: 16).

3. An Inquiry Pressed:—Is there not yet any.....that I may show the kindness? (3.)

Thou shalt thou inquire, and make search, and ask (Deut. 13: 14).

The one who is in it is worthy (Matt. 10: 11).

II. OPPORTUNITY FOUND.

1. The Beneficiary Brought:—King David's son, and fetched him (3.)

She.....sent her handmaid to fetch it (Exod. 2: 5).

They came and brought him out (Act. 16: 29).

2. The King Greeted:—Mephibosheth.....fell on his face, and did obeisance (6.).

Abram fell on his face; and God talked with him (Gen. 17: 3).

The.....sister.....fell upon their faces, and worshipped him (Rev. 11: 16).

3. The Kindness Accepted:—Fear not for I will, surely show thee kindness (7.).

My faithfulness and my mercy shall be with me (Job. 39: 24).

The sure mercies of David (Dan. 9: 5).

What is thy servant, that thou shouldst look upon such (8.).

Forget not all his benefits (Ps. 136: 2).

Thank ye to God for his unspcakable gift (2 Cor. 9: 15).

III. OPPORTUNITY IMPROVED.

1. The Benefactor Announced:—All that pertained to Saul.....have I given (9.).

Behold, thine is all that pertained unto Mephibosheth (2 Sam. 16: 3).

Lo, thy son and Ziba divide the land (2 Sam. 19: 23).

2. The Land Given:—Thou shalt till the land for him (10.).

The Lord.....put him into the garden.....to dress it (Gen. 2: 15).

It is that till his hand shall have plenty of bread (Job. 12: 11).

3. An Honor Conferred:—He shall eat at my table, as one of the king's men (11.).

Among them that did eat at thine own table (2 Sam. 19: 23).

Thou preparest a table before me (1 Sam. 23: 5).

Verso 1.—"Is there yet any that I may show him kindness?" (1.) A noble purpose; (2) a searching inquiry.

Verso 5.—"King David sent and fetched him." Jonathan's son, (1) sought; (2) found; (3) brought; (4) blessed.

STAGE-STUCK BANKER.

Bernhardt Compelled to Resort to Trick to Get Rid of Him.

Stage fever is a disease that ordinarily attacks only young actors, but it has been known to attack an old actor, as was shown by a story told of a Paris banker named M. Geoffroy, who came to this country last winter with Sarah Bernhardt, and who, without previous stage experience made his debut as the father in "Camille." He studied and rehearsed indefatigably, but he was by no means a success. Yet, as he was a man of wealth and a certain amount of influence in Paris, he was not to be easily dismissed from the company. Still, it was important that he should be replaced by a more competent actor, and the star had recourse to a novel plan. When she got to Boston she sent a telegram to M. Geoffroy, signed with the name of one of her clerks, "Important business compels your presence here. Credit of the firm at stake. You must return immediately." M. Geoffroy took the telegram to her, in despair, this threatened interruption to his theatrical career. He assured Sarah that he would rather let the business go to smash in Paris than leave her and the stage. "You go to Paris," she said, "attend to the matter and then come back immediately. Leave your suitcase here, and I will explain everything to your managers. It will be all right, and you can be back with us in three weeks." This satisfied the banker, who called for his suitcase, and he returned to Paris in a hurry. When he came back he found that his suitcase had been opened, and he found that his money had been stolen. He was so shocked that he decided to leave the company. He went to the manager and explained the situation. The manager, who was a friend of M. Geoffroy, decided to let him go. He gave him a letter to Sarah, and he returned to Paris. When Sarah read the letter, she was so angry that she decided to let M. Geoffroy go. She wrote him a letter, and he returned to Paris. JOHN T. FRANCE, P. M.

Miss Hattie Seely, writing from her home at "Brookside Cottage" (on Gov. Morton's farm), says:
"The army worm attracts many visitors just now. Farmers were badly frightened when they first appeared.
The State Entomologist said that if they were not destroyed there would not be a green thing left in Ellerslie in five days.
Then you can imagine that there was some bustling done here. Fifty men were put to work digging ditches and filling them with salt, tar, paris green, etc. Now I believe they have them confined to a twenty-five acre field, where they can eat everything if they will. I tell you, that field is a sight.
The ground is one black squirming mass,
—not a clear spot anywhere. No other place near here has them; but there are plenty in other parts of the State and Long Island. * * * (A week later.) The army worms are all dead now, they only lasted a week; but now the place must be burned over, or something done to destroy the next Summer's army."

The garden party given by the Guild of St. Mark's Church, Tuesday evening, on Mrs. Conkey's lawn, was well patronized. Ice cream and other refreshments were on sale. An enjoyable entertainment was given, consisting of tableaux, etc., and an exhibition drill
by the Sons of Veterans.

Mrs. North, widow of the late Dr. Joseph H. North, died about 8:30 o'clock yesterday morning, aged 81 years. The family came to Hammonton in '58, and the sons and daughters, known to all, are a better eulogy upon the mother's life than our pen could write. Funeral services will be held at two o'clock to-morrow afternoon, probably at the homestead, Central Ave.

Old People
Old people who require medicine to regulate the bowels and kidneys will find the true remedy in Electric Bitters.
This medicine does not stimulate, and contains no whisky nor other intoxicant, but acts as a tonic and alterative. It acts mildly on the stomach and bowels, adding strength and giving tone to the organs, thereby aiding Nature in the performance of the functions. Electric Bitters is an excellent appetizer, and aids digestion. Old people find it just exactly what they need. Price 50 cents and $1, at Croft's Pharmacy.
