EDITOR REPUBLICAN,

Dear Sir:—I did not intend to make two letters of my trip here, but the fire broke me off and I wanted to get a letter to you by the next mail, so it had to be broken in two. I left off at Chicago. When I got my business done, I concluded to see the interesting sights as far as time would allow. Strolling down to Lake avenue, I beheld a lovely view. The lake, with numerous sailing craft on it, lay like a mirror before me, and the street was lined with structures as fine as any street I ever saw. Passing along it, I noticed a new hotel, built of granite, many stories high—I forget the number, but remember to have counted many buildings of ten and twelve stories. I went in the reception room. The walls of this room were of onyx. Philadelphia can show nothing so magnificent, so far as I know. Passing on, I saw a sign which read: "Art gallery, admission free Saturdays and Sundays." This being Saturday, I went with the crowd into the fine building, to see the works of genius. Here was a surprise. I was ushered into an exhibition of not merely beautiful paintings and fine statuary of modern art, but into the presence of the gods and goddesses. There stood Venus in various forms; there were Mars, Apollo, Mercury, and Jupiter. Some were veritable creations of the ancients, centuries before Christ, and others were modern copies from ancient works. Here was a feast I had not looked for. I studied these forms of marble with an interest than anything I can remember. Besides these, there was Augustus Caesar, the victor in a hundred battles, and Rome's greatest conqueror, worthy of a place with Alexander, among the gods of his age, B. C., 49.

Here I lingered, unable to get away till my watch told me I must; if I was to take the six o'clock train. I left regretting I had not another hour to spend here, and hastened to the depot, got my trunk checked for Denver, boarded the vestibule train of chair cars on the Rock Island Road, and was soon off, passing slowly through the many miles of Chicago, the second city in population in America. I saw this city in 1852. It was then a mud hole, and you had to carefully choose your way in passing along its streets, or you would be swamped. Now, New York cannot show such fine streets. What a change! And in so short a time! Verily man is a creator. Civilized man, with the aid of contrivances, compels the forces of nature to do his bidding, and what can he not do? He transforms the marsh into a magnificent city. The discoveries of science, and its application by machinery to the necessities and comforts of men, more than his genius as a conqueror, entitles him to a place with the gods.

At last we leave the suburbs of Chicago and speed through the rich farms of Illinois, the garden state of the Republic. I lived in this state ten years. It is here I grasped the hand of the immortal Lincoln, and labored for his election. My office was headquarters of the Republican committee of our county. Here several of my children were born, and two of them buried. I always feel an especial pride in this grand state. The crops looked well as far as the light of day would allow observation, and then I resigned myself to the comforts of my reclining chair for the night. Next morning we were in Missouri, passing through a most lovely country of rolling, rich lands, well cultivated with fine crops of wheat and corn. Here some wheat had been thrashed and corn was well tasseled out. We arrived at Kansas City at 10.30 A. M., stopped only 20 minutes, then sped away for Topeka, the plains, and Denver. This was Sunday, and but little was going on. The sun, however, was working, and blazed out on us with torrid force. At a stopping place I inquired of a man at the depot how far it was to the "hot place," as the air seemed to come from a furnace thrice heated. He replied that I need feel no alarm until I began to smell the brimstone. The thermometer stood at 108 in the shade, the hottest day they have had in Kansas in years. I learned that they have very hot winds that dry everything up and that is why it is so arid in western Kansas and eastern Colorado.

We arrived in Denver at 7.30 o'clock A. M. Here I stayed till next morning at 8 o'clock, and put in a busy day. This is the queen city of America, the most beautiful gem set in the diadem of the Republic. Its clear atmosphere, its rolling surface, its mountains in the distance, its balmy air, and its mild and healthful climate, its beautiful residences, its railroad facilities, and favorable location to supply the mining region with its needs, and its being the Capital of the state, render it an important city, and a desirable place of residence. It is growing very rapidly. Lots offered me five years ago for $400, are now selling for $3,000. Why could not I have known this then? How easy to get rich if you have foresight enough. I will not stop to moralize here. It gives me pain to think what I lost.

We start for the mountains, fifteen miles away. The land is irrigated, and produces pretty good crops. We reach the mountains and go up a little stream, the head water of the South Platt river. We wind along its crooked banks, crossing it frequently, as the stream crowds against the rocks. The scenery is grand and interesting, until you have seen it often, and then it becomes commonplace. We go up, up, up. Our locomotive puffs and tugs away, and at last brings us to the top of Breckenridge Pass. Here the air is rare and cold. I have taken the precaution to put on heavy undergarments, but I button my coat to keep warm.

We now descend. We have reached the continental divide; water runs to the Pacific ocean. On the heights we see snow. No steam is needed to carry us on,—the brakes are applied, and we drop down along the side of mountains, running as far as possible to make the grade a minimum, to Breckenridge, 11 miles from the summit, but only nine by wagon road, and a little over 2000 feet below. Here I stop. Acquaintances are at the depot, and welcome me back for the summer, giving a cordial shake of the hand. I give my hand-baggage and check to the expressman, and hurry on to the neighbor who has the key to my cabin. I get this and open my little house of two rooms—12 x 14 feet each—and two closets, and find everything intact, but wondrously dirty. I go to work with a will, and by night have things in tolerable order, and begin my season's residence in "bachelor's hall," in this picturesque little town of a thousand inhabitants, in the valley of the Blue River, surrounded with towering mountains, and in perpetual sight of the "beautiful snow." Yours,

A. J. KING.

Those Pensions.

To the Editor of the Republican:

I wish to make a few remarks on the above, and I propose to leave the inference for others to comment upon.

"The expenditures for pensions for the year ending June 30th, as now officially stated, amounted to $109,357,334. In the previous year we paid $57,024,773.11, while in the year before that we paid $30,238,508.77. The cost of the German army, it may be interesting to note, is for this year estimated at $91,725,293. Besides our pensions, our army costs $30,000,000."—N. Y. Herald.

What have we to do with the German army and its cost? "Our army costs thirty millions of dollars." I don't doubt it; but who will doubt that that is too much by $5,000,000? We want no such army,—it's a huge steal. But then, places must be made for rich men's sons, you know. And again, costly ships of war are being built, costing millions each, not mentioning the enormous expense of running them, even in times of peace. Ah! that too, in the Herald's eyes, is all right.

But it doesn't tell it all. Here is a little item, and it's the square truth, too. The politicians, of all grades and parties, steal more than two hundred million dollars annually from the people. But that is all right,—we're accustomed to it. "Let us pray," is their motto.

And again: more than one thousand millions are spent annually for drink, under the seal of the government,—be it Democratic or Republican. "Let us keep silence in the Churches," for it is "a shame for a woman to speak in Church," is it, on temperance.

Yes; the Nation has decided to spend annually some two hundred millions among the crippled soldiers, and their widows, in this the strongest and most prosperous nation on earth. But the milkop editors and thieving politicians are crying over it. Did they go to the front in the hour of peril? No. Two many stayed at home and got rich while we risked our lives to make their bonds good.

The British army, the tool of the worst form of human slavery the world ever saw, costs $200,000,000 annually, in times of peace; and yet this goes on and on, while the "fanatics" have been leaving her shores for the past two hundred years. The good Queen and her semi-imbecile "family" cost the poor people of Britain three millions of dollars annually, while many of her loyal subjects haven't even a "lowly thatched cottage" to shelter their half-starved families in.

And again; Britain's nobility and moored aristocracy have invested over two thousand millions of dollars in American securities. Why? because they are fleeing from the wrath to come. I quote: "England, like Greece, shall fall. Despoiled, defaced, And weep the sadness of a watery waste. The waves shall mock her lone and manless shore; The deep shall know her freighted wealth no more; And unborn wanderers in the future world Shall ask where London stood."

Yes, the representatives of this British capital did all they could to break up our country, by furnishing the South with (so-called) men, ships, and munitions of war. They afterwards learned something at Geneva,—called the "Geneva award" of fifteen millions of dollars—called back to pay for their little fun.

These two hundred millions will help the old soldiers, and their families, out quite a "good bit."

The Herald of July 28th, in speaking of pensioning the widows of Generals McClellan, Crook, and Fremont, rightly says:

"We dissent from the objection urged by Senator Culler to the proposed pensions. These eminent men rendered the country services which can be regarded in no more grateful way than by caring for their widows."

That's O.K. The old soldiers loved their "widows" just as much as these Generals loved theirs. "What's sauce for the goose"—etc.

Before the war, millionaires were as scarce as hen's teeth. Now, every large town and city can boast of them by the score. The soldiers helped to bring this about. The Nation is becoming richer and richer, and untold millions of people are flocking to our shores, to make it even richer still.

The old boys earned their little $8 to $12 per month. Give it to them. It will be but for a short time, at the best.

Citizens living on Railroad Ave. want a sidewalk from Fay's corner to Fairview; and they need it. Well, get up a strong petition, and send it to the Council at next meeting. That's the only way to get it.

LOCAL MISCELLANY.

G. A. R. Post meeting to-night.

Miss Nora Montfort is visiting at Ardmore, Pa.

An abundance of rain, the first half of this week.

Pastor Randall is absent, on his summer vacation.

Miss Maud Wilson is visiting relatives in Philadelphia.

Harry Trowbridge moved into his new store, Wednesday.

Miss Jessie Rutherford spent a pleasant week at Williamstown.

Cider apples wanted, by D. COLWELL.

Mrs. Henry D. Moore, of Had-donfield, visited her relatives here, this week.

Mrs. W. B. Matthews spent part of the week with her parents, at Pleasantville.

Did you read Mr. King's letter last week? We have another good one this week.

Mrs. T. P. Dixon and son, of Philadelphia, spent a few days at Mr. Rutherford's.

Mr. C. P. Hill and Col. Daniel Stone have been appointed Commissioners of Deeds.

Quite a number of young men from Hammononton spent last Sunday at Atlantic City.

Mr. C. H. Ludres and family have rented and are occupying Mr. M. Stockwell's house.

Mrs. D. Lake and children, of Hornesville, N. Y., spent part of this week in Hammononton.

Mr. A. J. Smith, our worthy Town Clerk, spent the past two weeks in Maine, his native state.

Mr. S. E. Brown has received his appointment as member of the School Board, and is now District Clerk.

The Misses Agnes and Genevieve Nicholas, of Philadelphia, have been visiting their aunt, Mrs. C. F. Crowell.

Loan Association meeting next week,—the Workmen's on Monday evening, the Hammononton on Thursday evening.

Mr. Edwin Jones has broken ground for a new house on his place, corner of Bellevue Avenue and Liberty Street,—a fine location.

Dr. A. A. Yarrington, of Reading, Pa., for many years a resident of Hammononton, is visiting friends here, and receives many warm greetings.

Rev. A. Gilmore will preach in the M. E. Church to-morrow morning, and the Pastor in the evening. Holy Communion after the morning sermon.

If not too late, why not make the new cross-walks three feet wide? On the old ones, when persons meet, each steps aside for the other, and neither uses the walk.

Remember the Sunday School excursion to Atlantic City, next Wednesday, over the Reading road. Adult ticket, $1; child's, 50 cents. Our band has been engaged.

St. Mark's Church, 9th Sunday after Trinity, Aug. 3rd. Litany, Sermon, and Holy Communion, 10:30 A. M. Evening Prayer at 4:30 P. M. Sunday School at 3 o'clock.

It is rumored that Miss Nivison will be compelled to move her Sanitarium buildings, as they will be rendered unsafe by the widening of the railroad cut, for a double track.

Why not fix up the sidewalk in front of the Fay property? On rainy days it is simply a mass of mud. Whose business is it to put in shape?

A CITIZEN.

THANKS.—We desire to express our gratitude to those who kindly manifested their friendship during the illness and since the death of our husband and father. Mrs. R. LITTLE & FAMILY.

Mr. Henry J. Montfort, it seems, has a pet snapping turtle of large dimensions. It dwelt under his door-step, and being too large to get out, it tried to draw a chicken in. Turtle soup for dinner on Sunday, at 3 P. M.

Moonlight Concert by the Temperance Band, this (Saturday) evening, in the grove adjoining Union Hall. Alpha Drum Corps, of Pleasantville, will participate. Various kinds of refreshments will be for sale.

Insure with A. H. Phillips, 1323 Atlantic Ave., Atlantic City.

An English edition of The Latter Home Journal is to be brought out in London on a scale never before attempted by an American magazine, and Mr. Curtis, proprietor, and Mr. Bok, editor, have sailed for Europe to perfect their arrangements.

Pastor Swett, of the Baptist Church, will give, to-morrow morning, the sixth of his series of very able and intensely interesting sermons on the inspiration of the Bible, designed to meet the objections of modern infidels. The topic will be, "The Astronomy of the Bible."

We quote the following from a letter written by R. T. Starr, Supervisor of U. S. Census, to the Hammononton Enquirer: "Your final returns are received, and many thanks for your promptness. I consider you had the worst district of the lot, and I beg leave to compliment you on the way in which you have handled it."

On Thursday, Miss Bertha Gage went into the barn-yard belonging to her uncle, Mr. Sturtevant, when one of the cows attacked her, threw her to the ground, and continued the assault until the young lady's screams brought some one to the rescue. We understand that Miss Bertha's injuries are not serious; but it was a narrow escape.

The members of the committee of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Mark's Church wish to express their very hearty thanks to the members of the Hammononton Band, for their music at the Fete Champetre, last Wednesday. Also, to the many others who in other ways helped to make the occasion such an enjoyable one.

A very large congregation attended the M. E. Church, last Sunday evening, and all were well pleased with the impressive discourse given by the "boy preacher," Rev. Mr. Boddie. Subject, "Divine Providence." Text, Ezek. i. 15-20. In the morning, Pastor Cline preached on "Pre-eminence of Love," to a mixed congregation of Presbyterians and Methodists, together with the Junior Order of U. A. M.

That "Fete Champetre," was a grand success. It was postponed from Tuesday, until Wednesday, on account of rain. Judge Byrnes' spacious lawn was illuminated by numerous Chinese lanterns, booths were erected here and there, with bright-colored awnings, and with the happy-faced attendants, in holiday attire, formed a brilliant spectacle, admired by all. Judging solely from appearances, the financial results must have been satisfactory.

Look at a map of New Jersey, and see whether you do not think it would be better for the Reading Railroad Company to build their new branch railroad from Hammononton, instead of from Elwood. An air line from this point to Tuckerton would go through Pleasant Mills and Harrisville, and run close to Darsto, Green Bank, Wading River. Perhaps prompt action would secure it. Isn't this worthy the attention of our Board of Trade?

The tax-collector is having an entertainment of his own, every day. This week he sent out a somewhat personative appeal to chronic delinquents, and though they didn't bring in much cash, the responses were as varied as they were numerous. Some acknowledged the debt, and settled; others remembered (?) that they had paid, but produced no receipt; several fairly quivered with rage, to think that the Collector had the audacity to even hint at compulsory measures. Well, he can stand the racket; and so can Squire Pressey, when the matter is referred to him, as it will be.

Some people appear to think that the term "fete," as applied to this country, means free to do as you please, irrespective of the rights of others, and in defiance of law. For example, the pasturing of cattle on streets or sidewalks is forbidden; yet some people do, compelling pedestrians to turn out, and frequently frightening horses. Last Wednesday, a gentleman and daughter were quietly driving down Pine Road, when a young critter suddenly sprang out from the hedge, frightening the horse, which turned so quickly that the young lady was thrown to the ground, and the wagon ran over her, inflicting what may prove to be a serious injury. If the father had not been quick in his movements, the wheels would have passed over a vital part of her body?

Query.—Isn't this town populous and rich enough to appoint a Marshal who will devote his whole time to the duties of the office,—looking for violators of laws and ordinances, and entering complaints when necessary?

The Pitman-Grove Camp Meeting

began on Tuesday. The last three days were devoted to the W. C. T. U., the Epworth League, and Women's Home Mission Society. The meetings will continue until Aug. 14th.

Council meeting, last Saturday evening, July 26th. Town Clerk being absent, Mr. Bernhouse was chosen Clerk pro tem. Members all present except Mr. Colwell.

Bills ordered paid: J. D. Fairchild, supplies, $ 0 00 G. Valentino, baring painter, 8 00 H. Buzby, boarding poor, 23 00 C. E. Fowler, painting and repairs at the Park, 117 00 Highway Bill, 430 78

W. H. Burgess, $106 00 Henry Bost, 28 88 Wm. Purdy, 24 88 J. S. Thayer, 3 75 L. Grunwald, 7 75 Antonio Capella, 2 00 Daniel Root, 4 50 J. G. Hanson, 12 00 $238 77

Highway Committee reported that they had purchased stone for new cross-walks, and looked daily for its arrival. Also, that side-walks were being graded on the north side of Egg Harbor Road. Just here a question was asked as to who should pay for grading side-walks. The law-book was consulted, and made it plain that property owners must make such walks when ordered, except where a stream or gully necessitates bridging or an unusual filling-in, when the town is required to do the work. Such an exceptional filling was done in front of G. W. Pressey's property, and Council voted to appropriate twenty dollars to pay for the same.

Property Committee reported painting and other work done at the Park, as ordered.

Chairman Woodnutt authorized to purchase a copy of "Laning's Help for Township Officers."
