The ladies have taken this space by the year, and are responsible for all that it may contain.

American women possess the secret of making themselves attractive; and at no season of the year does she make herself more attractive than in the summer. Young women of the purest minds and most lofty aspirations are women; and being women, they are attractive for a purpose. Bless them, they cannot help it. It is a part of the great law that controls them. It is right that it should be so.

But girls this season are doing many stupid things. One of these, due to the desire to be thought a "good fellow," is the drinking of "cobbles," "cocktails," and such stuff. It is a lamentable fact that at all the resorts there is a common observation.

Some years have brought forward the summer girl as a "mannish" type, or "horsey" type, or "athletic" type; but this year it is the "drinking" girl. Of all types, this is the very worst.

Young girls may well seek to be bright, and pretty, and vivacious, and they may earnestly endeavor to be attractive, but they should shun the man as an enemy who asks them to "drink after the bath."

SATURDAY, AUG. 2, 1902.

For Congressmen,
Hon. John J. Gardner.

After serving over fourteen years as a member (two years as Director) of the Atlantic County Board of Freeholders, Hon. M. L. Jackson has resigned, — the Post Master General having decided that he could not hold that position and the Post-mastership of Hammondon. We regret the loss of the oldest member of the Board. His long experience made him familiar with the county's business, particularly bridge work, he being chairman of the bridge committee for years, and fitted him to be very useful to the county at large, and watchful of Hammondon's interests.

Mr. C. F. Osgood, who was elected by our Town Council to fill the vacancy, served on the Board of Freeholders, years ago, likes the work, has the ability, and will make us a good representative.

Rum—Revolver—Jail!

Harry Lockory is a Philadelphia, but came to Hammondon on Monday, on the B & R Reading Express. He was drunk, everybody admits; but as to what followed his arrival, there are two stories. For some unknown reason, he broke a window in the station office, then assaulted Mr. McGovern, the agent, who promptly knocked him down. He went to his aunt's residence, (Mrs. McClelland) on Orchard Street, where he had been boarding, and procured a revolver, which he fired several times, — don't know why. Evidently hunting for trouble, they say he started back to the Reading, but was persuaded otherwise, then walked to Railroad Avenue, to Twelfth St., and turned south. Seeing Walter Vaughn, Jr., assistant of the Reading, he fired two shots at him, but fortunately missed his mark. Just then Justice Garton came along and arrested Harry, disarming him. There are various stories interwoven with the above, of several more shots fired, and other disorderly conduct, but they don't seem to fit into each other. The Justice issued a warrant on complaint, for disorderly conduct, atrocious assault, etc. After a hearing, the young man was unable to secure bail, and on Tuesday morning was taken to May's Landing to await trial.

The other story is that Harry procured an ancient fire chambered revolver, and in a fit of his own door, fired four shots into the branches of a tree: that he shot at no one, for one of the five cartridges was in the pistol when he was arrested.

Of course, these stories do not agree, by a considerable, and probably the whole truth will not be known until the trial, in September. The moral remains, however, — let run in all its forms alone. Harry is said to be a fine fellow, belongs to a good family, but has that terrible appetite for strong drink. He remembers nothing of his escapade, and feels disgrace keenly. But he does remember drinking liquor in the city; and there the offense began. Drunkenness is no excuse for a criminal to offer, for drunkenness is itself a crime, and no man will get drunk unless he begins to drink while he is sober. If he commits a crime while drunk, there are two crimes to answer for, and both should be considered in the trial.

Reader, let the bellish stuff alone, and it will never make you drunk. It is the most treacherous agent in the old Sordani's service, and gets the better of ninety-nine out of every hundred who begin its use.

Tony Reuz was arrested by Constable Myers, on Wednesday, charged with obtaining goods on false pretenses. He went to Milton Keyser's residence and told Mrs. K. that her husband had got his feet wet, and wanted a pair of shoes. She let him have them, and he was wearing them when arrested. He got a clean shirt at C. E. Small's, by representing that Will had sent him for it; a suit of clothes and various other goods at different stores, in the name of patrons. As some of the victims were reluctant about prosecuting, Mr. E. W. Batchelor, chairman of Council's Law and Order Committee, took the matter in hand. Justice Garton gave him a hearing on Thursday afternoon, after which he was permitted to join the numerous colony under temporary care of Sheriff Johnson.

Meets, John Hoyla, H. L. McIntyre, A. E. Holman, Henry Manley, and Frank Horne, will spend a few days "on the bay" and river, fishing.

Base-Ball News.

The home boys had little difficulty in disposing of the North-Penn. A. A. team, last Saturday, defeating them
by a score of 4 to 0.

This makes the fourth game this season in which the visitors have failed to cross the plate.

Both pitchers did fine work, but the hits of our local team were made at opportune times, and nearly all figured in the scoring.

The infield was shaken up, Harrar going to third, J. Jefferson to short, and Setley back to his old position, at second. The change seemed a good one, only one misplay being made.

The features were the battling of Setley and Naylor, and the fielding of Cordery.

The Best Liniment for Strains.
Mr. F. H. Wells, the merchant at Door Park, Long Island, N. Y., says: "I always recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm as the best liniment for strains. I used it last winter for a severe lameness in the side, resulting from a strain, and was greatly pleased with the quick relief and cure it effected." For sale by J. H.
Rogers, druggist.

death for Mrs. Lela Oragg, of Dubuque, Iowa. For years she has endured untold misery from a severe lung trou-
