DR. JOHN BULL'S Smith's Tonic Syrup FOR THE CURE OF FEVER and A CUE OR CHILLS and FEVER, AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the cure of FEVER, CHILLS, and FEVER, and FEVER, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

BULL'S SARSAPARILLA is the old and reliable remedy for impurities of the blood and venereal affections—the King of Blood Purifiers.

DR. JOHN BULL'S VEGETABLE WORM DESTROYER is prepared in the form of candy drops, attractive to the sight and pleasant to the taste.

MISS QUITO.

Down the sultry summer air
Floats a singer, young and fair,
Gaily robed, a winged sprite,
Making musical the night.
Fine and faint, like fairy bells,
Or the voice of ocean shells,
Thro' our dreams the music swells;
Yet more sure to murder sleep
Than the cat's paw's noisy leap,
Or the thunder rumbling deep.

Fierce, marsh minstrel, make thy home
Nest some Orsini's royal dome.
Is it not enough to sup
Nectar from the Lily's cup?
Must you drink, small cannibal,
Living blood, or starve withal?
Omnipresent little pest!
Need you never food and rest?
Flowers bloom by woodland rills,
Berries ripen on the hills;
Seeking them by sun or dew
One is sure to meet with you.
Majesty oft things minute!
Were you big enough to shoot,
Strangle, scourge, or bind with chains,
I would pay you for your pains.

Can you tell why you were made?
And I listened, half afraid:
"I was once a golden fair,
Twining roses in my hair,
Singing gaily all day long;
But when married changed my song,
Till my scolding, night and day,
Wore my husband's life away.
Altered, by his dying curse,
Into something less and worse,
I must wander for a space
Hated by the human race."
On my nose she lightly lit,
Ceased her singing, sighed, and bit!

"John, have you any conscience?" asked a prison chaplain of a convict. "Yes, sir," answered the man, "I have one nearly as good as new, for I have never used it."

"Yes," said Mrs. Brownsmith, "I want a good girl, and possibly you might do; but have you had any experience?" "Experience, is it?" replied the dame, resting her hands on her hips, and tossing her head in the air. "Experience, is it? Faith, an' haven't I been in no less than twenty families during the last month?"

A gentleman sat in a rear corner seat in a Broadway car on Sunday evening, reading. He felt a hand on his shoulder as the car turned into Clinton Place. Looking up, he encountered the face of the conductor, a tall young fellow with pleasant blue eyes. He coughed a little, inclined his head toward the gent's ear, smiled, blushed, and in a stammering way whispered:

"Would you be good enough to move forward a little? I—a lady friend of mine is going to get on at the next corner—and I want to have a chance to talk with her."

The passenger said, "Why, certainly," and went out on the front platform. As the car bowed into University Place, a handsome girl in black got on and sat down in the seat just vacated. The conductor rang up a fare for her on the register, then retired to the rear platform, leaned in at the open window and talked with her.

The driver turned around as the handsome girl got on, and looked admiringly. He then twirled his thumb significantly toward the rear platform, winked ponderously to the gentleman, and said:

"That's Billy's gal. She gets on here every Sunday night. You see, Billy has such long hours that he ain't got time to go sparkin' himself, so the gal has to go sparkin' him. He's goin' to get married next month."

When the gentleman got off the car at 38th Street, Billy and his sweetheart were still sparking.

A YOUTHFUL EDITOR.

History of the Hardest Struggle of his Life—Of Deep Interest to All Professions. Worcester, Mass., March 23rd, 1884.

Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.

Dear Sir:—My son, a lad of fifteen, editor of the "Go Ahead," amateur journalist of this city, has been at different times most severely and apparently hopelessly afflicted with Salt Rheum. When a very small child his body was almost entirely covered with this loathsome eruption. It mostly passed away, however, after the teething period, and he was not seriously troubled with it again until about one year ago, when the Salt Rheum first appeared on his hands between his fingers, then on his limbs, then on his face and head in one solid mass. His condition was terrible. The rash resembled livid poisoning, and we at first feared it might be something fatal, so that we sent him to the physician, who pronounced it Salt Rheum, and made every effort, without avail, to cure it. We tried a pronouncement widely advertised as a specific for skin diseases, but it made about as much impression as so much cold water might have done. You can understand the situation when I say we were in despair of obtaining relief from any source.

At this point, through the advice of Mr. J. W. Bacon, whose daughter had been cured of Salt Rheum by its use, I tried Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. This was the right thing, only thing at last. The skin began to heal at once, and today the "villains" of the disease have wholly disappeared. How thankful we are, doctor, I leave you to imagine.

Yours, J. W. BATHEDNER, 17 Tenth Street.

The word "ready" was repeated by both men, and Gen. Overton shouted the signal, "fire." Dickinson almost instantly fired, thus making a hole in Jackson's coat, and he raised his hand and clasped it to his breast. His friends waited to see him fall, but he stood calm and implacable as usual. Astounded at his failure, Dickinson asked a step or two, and then exclaimed, "Great God! have I missed him?"

"Back to the mark, sir!" shrieked Overton, with his hand on his pistol. Dickinson recovered his composure, and the two eyes averted. Gen. Overton took deliberate aim and pulled the trigger. The pistol neither snapped nor went off. It stopped at half cock. Carefully he recocked it, and a second time took aim and fired. Dickinson was killed, and was caught by his friends. A deadly pallor came over his face, and his trousers became crimson from the life blood that trickled from his breast. The ball had entered one side and come out at the other.

Jackson was joined by Overton and they hurried from the field. Looking down, Overton saw that the General's shoe was full of blood. It was the first he knew that his friend was wounded.

"My God, are you hurt?" he exclaimed. "I believe he has pinked me a little, but say nothing about it," Jackson replied.

Dickinson's aim had been perfect. He struck the mark where he thought he would pierce Jackson's heart, but the slender figure and deceptive dress of his adversary rendered the wound not fatal. The bullet raked the breastbone and broke two or three ribs. Jackson was laid up for weeks, and though he lived to a ripe old age, he never recovered the eventual cause of his death. It was a case in which one or the other had to be killed, and Jackson was to blame no more than the other man. Dickinson died the following day, before his wife arrived at his bedside.

The next encounter of importance in which Gen. Jackson was engaged was in 1813. It was no fault of his. A young Captain named William Carroll, who later became a General, was the hero of Jackson. Jesse Benton, a brother of Col. Thomas H. Benton, challenged Carroll to fight a duel for some imaginary offense. Carroll succeeded in getting Jackson to be his second, though the latter said he would make a pleasant settlement. Jesse Benton was untamed and fiery, and would fight. They met, and Carroll wounded him. Jackson, who was aggravated that the fight should take place at all, made the most of the affair. He then discharged a pistol loaded with slugs at Jackson, literally tearing one of his shoulders. Jackson fell, weltering in blood. A running duel then commenced in the street, which ended in effect. The Coffey brothers with gun and knocked him down a flight of stairs, and friends of Jackson tried to kill Jesse Benton, who was wounded with a card. Jackson came very nearly dying, and carried Benton to his dying day. This was the last of the important engagements in which Gen. Jackson figured.

The Texas Cattle Drive.

The Texas cattle driven and otherwise brought to the ranges of Western Kansas, Colorado and the northern range are variously estimated at from 250,000 to 500,000. Putting the total at 350,000, it is a larger number than has been driven out of Texas to the Northern States for several years. The great majority, or 75 per cent. of these cattle have come over the usual drives, but it is believed by many of the prominent cattle men that this year will be the last in which cattle will traverse the drive in great numbers. The roads have run into the great country of Texas, and it is being found that transportation by rail to the Northern ranges is not only more expeditious than driving but is cheaper. Twenty-five per cent. of the cattle sent north this year were transported by rail. Cattle rounded in Texas on Monday were shipped and fed by Saturday on Colorado and Western Kansas ranges. The drive, too, is becoming restricted by settlement, and the blacksmiths' processes by the Indians in Indian Territory, taxing the owners of herds, has become such a burden of expense that transporting cattle by rail is regarded as the only relief. It is pretty generally affirmed that this year will see an all of 65 per cent. of the Texas cattle shipped by rail, and that in a few years the drive from Texas north will only be a camp-fire story related by old cow boys while on the western ranges.

A correspondent says he has boiled leaves and stems of tomato plants until the juice is all extracted, and finds the liquor deadly to caterpillars, lice and many other enemies of vegetation. It does not injure the growth of plants, and its odor remains for a long time to disgust insect marauders.

Republican National Ticket

For President of the United States,
JAMES G. BLAINE.

For Vice-President,
JOHN A. LOGAN.

One of the most remarkable features of the campaign is the stampede of Irish voters to the support of the Republican ticket.

The unanimity with which the English press and people have taken ground with the Democratic party and candidate in this campaign has not been lost on our Irish citizens. The attitude of the English is natural and consistent. It would be unreasonable to expect anything else but that their sympathy would be with the party which seeks to break down the protective features of the tariff and promote the importation of English goods. They have, however, manifested their interest in the success of the Democratic ticket this time to the point of cynicism, and intelligent Englishmen have begun to ask themselves whether this party which plays into the hands of Englishmen in this fashion is the one in whose success they are interested, and for whom they should labor and vote.

The unnatural alliance which our Irish citizens so long have made with the Democratic party is the prize puzzle of American politics. Fortunately, the beginning to realize the illogical and anomalous position they have allowed themselves to drift into, and are uniting with a party whose policy is in line with their deepest convictions. Let English writers cheer on Cleveland and Hendricks if they will. The success of that ticket, supported by a Democratic majority in Congress, means larger sales of English goods in America and a fatal blow at the labor of this country. Irishmen, who have seen something of this same policy as applied to their native country, will not knowingly consent to extend it to the country of their adoption.

The Denver News has the following: "An item appears in many Republican papers to the effect that when the war broke out Mr. Hendricks was a member of the first Presbyterian Church of Indianapolis, the pastor of which, Dr. Nixon, brother of Judge Nixon, of the U. S. District Court, preached a sermon declaring it the duty of loyal and Christian people to stand by the Government. Upon this Mr. Hendricks severed his connection with the church and never returned. This is true, but it is only half of the story. About the same time the pastor of Christ Church, Episcopal, in the same city was a secessionist, named Stringfellow, whose disloyalty was so pronounced that his congregation finally terminated his clerical labors in their behalf, and he was about to return South when the rebel element headed by Thomas A. Hendricks, or gained a church and installed Stringfellow as rector. They built a house of worship which they called St. Paul's, but which was better known by various nicknames suggestive of sympathy with the rebellion. Mr. Hendricks was one of its first vestrymen, and is now, or was lately, one of its members."

Ex Senator Rescoe Conkling, in an incidental way, very nearly turned the charge that Blaine is a tattooed man. "Mr. Blaine is tattooed," says Mr. Conkling, "but he is tattooed from head to foot with Republican scars. He has been at the front in every fight which Republicans have been obliged to wage for the last twenty years. This is no exaggeration of the naked fact. Mr. Blaine has been in the forefront of every fight for the Union and good government waged for many years."

The Democrats speak glowingly of the number of votes St. John will receive in Hammonton. They make no attempt to conceal their delight. If a Democrat cannot advise a Republican to desert his ticket he will be satisfied if he will do the next best thing—vote for St. John, which means half vote for Cleveland, with Hendricks thrown in.

Mr. John P. St. John, is the only Republican candidate for governor of Kansas who was ever defeated.

The Republican State Convention for the nomination of Presidential Electors was held in Taylor's Opera House, Trenton, on Wednesday. Major Pangborn, of Jersey City, presided.

The following are the Electors nominated:
First District—State Senator Albert Merritt, of Camden County, and of the Philadelphia firm of Warner & Merritt.
Second—Israel S. Adams, collector of the port at Somers Point, Atlantic County.
Third—Captain Simon Van Winkle, of Middlesex, who was in the same place in the ticket in 1880.
Fourth—Lewis H. Taylor, of Hunterdon, a large iron manufacturer.
Fifth—Henry L. Butler, of Passaic, also a manufacturer.

Sixth—Gardner R. Colby, of East Orange, who wished a vindication from the widely published charge that he was a "licker."
Seventh—Thomas B. Potter, a prominent Republican of Jersey City.
Eighth—John Ziegler, of Elizabeth, a Justice of the Peace, who was a candidate for Governor in 1880. John Taylor, of Trenton.

The failure of Congress to provide for an impartial taking of the electoral count will not matter so much, as the majority for Blaine and Logan will, by any new method of counting it. It will be merely a sum in simple addition, in which the figures will be large.

Rev. Father Wilds' EXPERIENCE.

The Rev. F. F. Wilds, with whom the editorial staff of the late editorial staff of the Massachusetts Magazine, writes as follows:
"I am, 5th St., New York, May 1, 1884.
My dear Sir: I am glad to hear that you are a subscriber to The Independent. I have been a subscriber for some time, and I can assure you that it is a most valuable paper. It is full of interesting and useful information, and it is published at a very low price. I am sure that you will find it a most valuable addition to your library. I am, Sir, very respectfully,
Yours truly,
D. L. POTTER, Editor."

The Republican.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 9, 1884.
LOCAL MISCELLANY.

Correspondence collected upon all topics of local interest. Names of contributors are requested, not for publication, but as a guarantee of the reliability of the news.

For Sale.—Two good farm horses, in good order. Also, two milk cows, one with calf at side. Call at once.
D. L. POTTER,
Bellevue Avenue, Hammonton.

Have you had rain enough?
Remember the excursion on Friday next.

Messrs. Jones & Lawson have a house to build at Elm.

Mrs. Delavan, of Owego, N. Y., is visiting her brother, Mr. Newcomb.

It is announced that Gen. Logan will be in Atlantic City in a few days.

Everybody is invited to go with the excursion, next Friday—the first of the season.

Mrs. J. C. Cordery and family are visiting Mr. C's mother (Mrs. Lak), at Ocean City.

Miss Alice Oliver has charge of Tomlin & Smith's store during the proprietors' absence.

The Presbyterian Sunday School are arranging for their annual excursion to Fairmount Park.

Messrs. Frank and William Newcomb, of New York, made a flying visit to Hammonton friends, last week.

Senator Gardner, of Atlantic, will be asked for the use of his name in the Second District Republican Convention.

W. J. Pratt.

Mr. Carlos Swift, having sold his farm, on Main Road, to Mr. Jennings, will probably leave Mr. Hood's new house, on Peach Street.

Mr. Sam. Gilbert is the father of a bouncing baby boy.—Mirror. (Mr. G. himself says it's a girl; but then we're all liable to be mistaken.)

The infant child of Mrs. Miller (whose death we recorded only two or three weeks ago) was brought here Wednesday evening, for burial.

St. Mark's Church, Ninth Sunday after Trinity, Aug. 10th, 1884. 10:30 A.M., Morning Prayer, Litany, and Holy Communion. 2:30 P.M., Sunday School. 7:30 P.M., Evening Prayer and Sermon.

Mr. T. J. Smith, with his daughter—Miss Hattie Smith and Mrs. Tomlin, and his grandchildren, Eva Moore, of Haddonfield, and Herbert Tomlin, left Hammonton on Tuesday, for a few weeks' visit in Maine.

List of unclaimed letters remaining in the Post Office at Hammonton, N. J., Aug. 10, 1884:
Miss H. L. Howard, Miss Elizabeth Addams, Mr. S. A. Matthews, Altholm Nipita, Mr. Peluso.

ANNE ELVINS, P. M.
Mr. Harl P. Christie, representing the "Button Fire Engine Co." of Watford, N. Y., was in town last Friday, on business. We understand that he gave to interested parties some good ideas in regard to the much-to-be-desired water supply.

Norton Hildridge, of Elm, unless his plans were changed quite suddenly, is in Boston, reading and visiting. Mr. George A. Rogers acts as station agent at Elm, with his ten-year-old son Harry (probably the youngest telegraph operator living) for assistant.

Little Harry, only child of Mrs. John Kears, died on Sunday last. After suffering for a time with whooping-cough, other diseases followed, and the widowed mother mourns her bright, winning little one. Funeral services at the Presbyterian Church, Tuesday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Mr. Mowbray.

The new school-house would be much improved by the addition of a bell. We know a man who will provide the bell if citizens will contribute money enough to pay for the bell. The cost would probably be about twenty-five dollars. Come now, all who take pride in public improvements, put in a dollar or two, and we'll have a twenty-two inch bell in a next tower, rather than call the scholars together with a sloop-bell.

A lady in Hammonton has a kitten whose peculiar taste amuses the entire neighborhood. A young chicken and a duckling (orphans) wandered forth until the kitten's sympathies were excited and she adopted them. You can see the ill-assorted trio—a veritable happy family—wandering about together, or lying in some favorite nook, frequently with the foster-mother's face now wound lovingly around one of her pets, while she gently attempts to cleanse their soiled plumage after the manner of her kind.
