Parricide.

Our community's usual quiet was rudely disturbed, last Saturday, about six o'clock, by the announcement that a well known citizen, William John Elder, had been murdered in cold blood by his son, Robert Elder, Jr. Many proceeded to the scene of the tragedy. and the earliest on the ground found Mr. Elder's body lying dead in the road, nearly in front of his residence. The parricide had escaped to the woods. We give the story as it was developed at the Coroner's inquest, which was held on Menday morning, in the Council room. Herbert J. Thayer, a thirteen year old nephew of Mr. J. S. Thayer, who is living with Mr. Chas. Woodnutt, started for Hammonton station about half-past five, P. M. with the carriage. When near Robert Elder's residence, Rob spoke to him, in effect asking for a ride to town. Bert said, "Hurry, and I'll wait for you," then drove on a few rods, just past Wm. J. Elder's, and stopped. Looking back, he saw Rob and his father going into the house. Looking again, Rob was coming to ward the carriage, from his grandfather's (nearly opposite), and Wm. John was standing on the bank by the side of the road. The two were talking in ordinary tones, too low to be heard; but as Rob approached, his father stepped down towards the son, and immediately Rob raised his hand, containing a revolver, and fired (the witnesses said) three shots, at the last of which, the father fell dead. Bob walked once around the body then started leisurely down the road, saying not a word to any one. Bert whipped up his horse, and hastened to Union Depot, told Mr. Woodnutt, who quickly notified Coroner Valentine and Constable Bernshouse, who proceeded at once to the scene, and removed the body into the house and set the law's machinery at work. Mr. Evan Johnson, who was about two hundred yards away, heard the first shot, looked, and corroborated the first witness. These two, and three little children of Chris Rehman, who were picking berries for Mr. Elder, were the only witnesses.

Messrs. Chas. Woodnutt and W. R. Seely testified that on Saturday, July 28, Rob (being in liquor) told them that he intended that night to kill his father, because he had said very evil things about his mother; but they supposed "it was the liquor talking." During the past week he had worked every day except Tuesday for Mr. Woodnutt, until Saturday, when he borrowed Mr. W.'s horse and cultivator and worked his own crops until afternoon. He said nothing more to him about his intentions, but seemed uncommonly sullen ail the week.

After committing the fearful deed, Rob walked down Chew Road. Proj. erly authorized persons started for him as soon as possible, searching until midnight, without success. Sunday's search resulted the same. Prosecuting Attorney Thompson and Sheriff Johnson came up Sunday and did their legal duty, the latter assisting in the search. Monday, parties strove to follow up certain clues, but did not find the man. After the arrival of the Monday evening train from Philadelphia, the community was again roused by the news that Kob had surrendered himself to Judge Byrnes, which proved true. He had passed through East Hammonton to Batsto, to Atsion, then to the residence of his uncle, John Robbins, at Milford, near Marlton, where he decided to return. He was taken before Justice Jordan, who committed him to the lock-up for the night.

The revolver used was one of those known as a "British bull-dog," short, large, carrying a thirty-two calibre ball, -a very ugly weapon at short range. Tuesday morning, Robert was bro't No charge for extracting with gas, when guilty." In the afternoon, witnesses were heard and the prisoner committed to the county jail for trial. Robert claims that his crime was committed in self-defense; that his father had repeatedly threatened his life, and he bought the revolver for protection; that on Saturday he went to his father's, according to a previous agreement, to get his little brother's clothing. (He told Chas. C. Combe on Saturday morning that his father had asked him to do so.) Being told that the clothes had been taken over to his grandfather's, he went there, but found that some needed washing, and left them for that purpose; that his father had continued to curse him, his mother, and others, while on his premises, and when he came from his grandfather's, intending to go direct to the carriage, his father called to him and renewed the abusive language, finally starting toward him with a curse and saying, "Bob, I'll kill you !" Bob warned him off, or he would shoot, and as John did not stop, Rob fired.

It is well known that difficulties and quarrels have been frequent, especially since the advent of the notorious Dr. Marion J. Franklin, to whose presence in the homestead Bob objected. But murder was not justified by anything that seems likely to be proven.

There are stories and stories in relation to the sad affair, but we have tried to give the truth in condensed form, uncolored by feeling for or against the LESSON SURROUNDINGS. The full significance of the present esson cannot be understood unless it be regarded as the culmination of all In chapters 1-15 we find three distinct parts,—chapters 1-7 treating of sacrifices and offerings; chapters 8-10 (historical) telling of the consecration of Aaron and his sons, with the punishment of Nadab and Abihu: chapters 12-15 giving minute directions respecting ceremonial uncleanness. With each of these lesson has a close connection,-The high priest entereth into the holy as occasioned—in part, at least—mony; as occasioned—in part, at least by the historical occurrences (see v. 1); and as specifically enacted "because of the uncleannesses of the children of

The second part (Lev. 8-10) describes upon them, and of the stern repression . The third part shows great sanitary wisdom, which is made to serve the purpose of religious education. The physical uncleanness against which Leviticus 11-15 guards, was related actually as Aaron shall present the bullock of the Well as figuratively to the moral defilement from which God's people must be . freed. The specific injunctions are respecting animals to be used for food (Lev. 11), the purification of a mother (Lev. 12), diseases of the skin indicatpurity arising from issues of blood, etc. (Lev. 15).

The place of the lesson was the camp at the foot of Mount Sinai. The time was shortly after the death of Nadab and Abihu, which seems to have occurred on the eighth day of the first month of the second year (comp. Exod. 40: 17; Lev. 9:1;10:1).
