HAMMONTON, N. J., AUGUST 12, 1911

NO. 32

AN ORDINANCE to provide for the improvement of portions of certain streets in the Town of Hammonton, New Jersey, with sidewalks and curbing, in accordance with the provisions of the Charter of the Town of Hammonton and an Act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, approved on the sixteenth day of April, nineteen hundred and nine, entitled "An Act to authorize the governing body of any municipality in this state to improve any road, street, parkway, or other public highway therein, with suitable curbing, gutters, and sidewalks, and providing for the payment thereof."

Introduced June 14th, 1911.
Passed July 21st, 1911.

Be it ordained by the Town of Hammonton, in Council assembled:

Section 1. That the following named portions of streets in the Town of Hammonton shall be improved with sidewalks and curbing in accordance with the provisions hereinafter made:

The northerly side of Twelfth Street from Grand Street to West End Avenue; the southerly side of Twelfth Street from Grand Street to Front Street; both sides of Bellevue Avenue from Egg Harbor Road to Main Road; the northerly side of Egg Harbor Road from Orchard Street to Grape Street; and both sides of Horton Street from Bellevue Avenue to Pleasant Street; always provided that such portions of above named portions of streets as are now improved with sidewalks and curb and are in such condition as the Town Council may formally adjudge satisfactory, shall not be required to be improved under the provisions of this ordinance.

Section 2. That sidewalks laid or constructed under the provisions of this ordinance shall be made of Portland cement concrete, in accordance with the "Standard Specifications for Cement Sidewalks and Curbs" adopted by Town Council July twelfth, 1911.

Section 3. That sidewalks laid and constructed under the provisions of this ordinance (excepting such sidewalks as shall be laid or constructed on Bellevue Avenue), shall consist of a cement walk four feet in width, the middle line thereof being equidistant from the building line and the inner line of the curbing; said sidewalks shall be laid to a grade of one-quarter (1/4) of an inch for each foot in width from the curb; so much of said sidewalk as is required to be paved with cement as above required shall be filled in with gravel or other suitable material to the same grade as above required; provided, however, that when Council considers it advisable for the protection of shade trees, it may order the space between the curb and cement walk, or space between the cement walk and property line, or both, terraced; in this case the cement walk shall be laid at a grade to meet the height of the outer terrace; and provided, further, that where the space between the curb line and the building line shall be so narrow as to render impossible the laying of a four foot wide cement walk, Council may provide for the laying of a cement walk of less width; and provided, further, that where Council shall deem it advisable, Council may order a cement walk to be laid from the building line to the curb line; and provided further, that when Council shall deem it advisable, Council may order the cement walk to be laid or constructed nearer to the property line than to the curb line.

Section 4. That cement walks, laid or constructed on Bellevue Avenue, under the provisions of this ordinance, shall be five feet in width, the middle line of which shall be equidistant from the property line of said Bellevue Avenue; but in all other respects the sidewalks and curbs laid or constructed on Bellevue Avenue shall conform to the provisions made in Section 3 of this ordinance.

Section 5. That all curbing required to be laid and constructed under the provisions of this ordinance shall be six inches in width and shall be laid to the same grade as above required.

Section 6. That the Town Clerk be and hereby is authorized to proceed to advertise for bids for the work hereinbefore provided for and report thereon to Council for confirmation or rejection, that the aforesaid improvements shall be made under written contract.

Section 7. That the benefits of such improvements as shall be made under the provisions of this ordinance shall be assessed and collected according to law.

Section 8. That all ordinances or parts of ordinances inconsistent with any of the provisions of this ordinance, be, and the same are hereby repealed; and that this ordinance shall go into effect immediately.

Signed, JOHN M. AUSTIN, Mayor.
Attest: W. R. SEELY, Town Clerk.

To Whom It May Concern.

Notice is hereby given that on the 21st day of July, 1911, an ordinance was introduced into the Town Council of the Town of Hammonton, providing for the improvement, with sidewalks and curbing, of the following streets: Both sides of Pleasant Street from Egg Harbor Road to Third Street; both sides of Orchard Street from Egg Harbor Road to Third Street; both sides of Second Street from Pleasant Street to Bellevue Avenue; both sides of Third Street from Pleasant Street to Central Avenue; and both sides of Central Avenue from Bellevue Avenue to Walnut Street, excepting the north-east side of Central Avenue from Third Street to Vine Street, and the south-east side of Third Street from Vine Street to Central Avenue.

The improvements provided for in the aforesaid ordinance are as follows: Sidewalks and curbing shall be constructed of Portland cement concrete; sidewalks shall consist of a cement walk four feet in width, the middle line thereof being equidistant from the building line and the inner line of the curbing; said sidewalks shall be laid to a grade of one-quarter (1/4) of an inch for each foot in width from the curb; so much of said sidewalk as is not required to be paved with cement as above specified shall be filled in with gravel to the same grade above required; provided, however, that where the space between the curb line and the building line shall be so narrow as to render impossible the laying of a four foot wide cement walk, the Council may provide for the laying of a cement walk of less width; and provided, further, that where Council shall deem it advisable, Council may order a cement walk to be laid from the building line to the curb line; and provided further, that when Council shall deem it advisable, Council may order the cement walk to be laid or constructed nearer to the property line than to the curb line.

The aforesaid ordinance will be read up for final hearing and approval at a meeting of the Town Council to be held on the 22nd day of August, 1911,

at eight o'clock p. m., in the Town Hall at Hammonton, New Jersey. At this meeting an opportunity will be given to all owners of property abutting on the streets aforesaid to make objections to all or any of the provisions of the aforesaid ordinance and the improvements provided for therein.

On the completion of the aforesaid improvements, a commission will be appointed by Council to assess upon the Town of Hammonton and upon all owners of property abutting on the aforesaid streets, such portions of the costs and expenses of the aforesaid improvements as by law should be paid respectively by the Town of Hammonton and by the said owners of property abutting upon the streets aforesaid.

Dying Shade Trees.

We give below a letter which will explain itself, and prove of interest to many.

Trenton, July 26, 1911.

My examination of the dead and dying trees on the streets of Hammonton indicates that in at least three localities the loss of trees is due primarily to the escape of illuminating gas. While I do not hesitate to say that it is always difficult to determine what caused the death of a tree, after the fact, there are in your case too many indications of gas poisoning to leave much room for doubt. In two locations the odor of gas is still distinctly noticeable in the ground. In a third, where three trees are dead near a street corner, the evidence submitted that a gas leak was stopped some time ago is strongly indicative of the cause of the death of the trees. I do not think that the tulip poplar with two withered branches on Fourth Street was in any way affected by gas, and doubt if the elm on Mr. Bassett's property which died recently was troubled in that way.

In reaching the conclusion that escaping gas is the probable cause of the death of several groups of trees, I have not failed to consider whether anything else might have produced the same result. There is no evidence of any general affection of the street shade trees, as would be the case if drouth, or lack of nourishment, were responsible. There is likewise no evidence of injury by electricity, or of special mechanical injuries. By the process of elimination, therefore, as well as by the positive evidence that was found, it seems impossible to reach but the one conclusion.

On the other hand it is proper to remind you that practically all the trees destroyed were in a more or less weakened condition by reason of decay and general neglect. I do not say that they were in poorer condition than many other trees in town, though it is entirely possible that if the dead trees had been in full vigor they might have resisted the gas poison, since it is indicated that at no place, unless it be on the corner near the Town Clerk's office, was the quantity of escaping gas very great.

As to remedies, the only course is to remove the dead trees, and the source of the poison. That is, have the gas mains exposed, and all leaks stopped, then let the trenches remain open for several weeks so that the gas may pass from the surrounding soil. If new trees are set in place of the dead ones, remove the soil entirely from about the dead roots, leaving a clear hole at least four feet in diameter and two feet deep. Fill that with entirely fresh soil when the new tree is set.

With respect to your street trees in general, I cannot too strongly urge the Town Council to provide for their systematic care. You have many fine trees, though altogether too many silver maples. Most of these are in poor condition, and will continue to lose strength, no matter what may be done. Some careful treating and pruning will, however, go far toward saving most of them for some years.

I think Hammonton should at once take advantage of the Shade Tree Act, General Statutes, page 2171, with its supplements, and appoint a shade tree commission, for though much can be done through a Committee of Council, a shade tree commission may exercise powers which a committee can not.

But whatever you do, don't count upon getting something for nothing. A couple of hundred dollars wisely expended will go a long way toward putting your trees in better condition. You cannot do much by appointing a committee to consider and advise. This office is at your service so far as its powers extend.

Very truly yours,
ALFRED GASKILL,
State Forester.

How to Sing With Ease

Beautiful singing is not only that in which the congregation feels easy in its mind that the singer knows just how the tune goes; how long each note is to be held; where to go slow and where to go fast; where to sing loud and where to sing soft—it is more than all these, yet these are all very important. It isn't necessary to punch your throat and force the tone out. Just open your mouth and allow it to come out itself. The human voice is like a large pipe or organ; the bellows must be pumped. For the engine that is doing the work must not be heard or seen by the congregation. The engine moves a lever that separates and opens the sides of the bellows so that the wind rushes in through the valves. That it presses the sides of the bellows together and forces the wind up into the windchest, there to be at the organist's disposal. It is the same with a person singing. The congregation must not hear or see her take a breath. There must be no hard gasping, as though you were forcing a loose and loose face of Miss Barclay. The singer should never be short of breath, but always manage to have a great plenty. You know how miserable it sounds when the wind whistles out on the organ.

There is only one best way of breathing in singing. The chest must be spread out to its fullest capacity, which requires a steady supply of breath, perfectly under control and the big muscles will pump as the air is needed.

Get this in your mind thoroughly as it is the most important point about singing. The singer should be the most skillful man in his profession, but if there is not a sufficient amount of wind in the organ, he will be a failure. Now try and see if you cannot get this correct breathing. Lift the chest as high as you can and spread it wide. The chest should be spread out to its fullest capacity, which requires a steady supply of breath, perfectly under control and the big muscles will pump as the air is needed.

Whenever you are out of doors, see how long you can go with the chest held up high and stretched to its widest capacity. The chest should be spread out to its fullest capacity, which requires a steady supply of breath, perfectly under control and the big muscles will pump as the air is needed.

Nobody can possibly be good looking or stylish that is out in the breast and round in the back, that walks or stands with the hips thrust forward and the head lopping down on the chest. A homely face will look bright and attractive if its owner will remember how and always to press up with the top of the head, to draw back the hips and put a little shadow back in that joint of the backbone just about two inches below the belt, maintaining all the while the high, fixed chest.

Take pencil and paper and write down these rules five times: "Press upward with the top of the head; keep the chest up; keep the hips back; keep the shoulders back; keep an inward link on the joint of the backbone two inches below the belt and back and the arms hanging on the same plane as the back."

Keep this position when you are sitting, too. Sit well back in the chair and lean a little forward. It is more restful than to lean back. If you try you will find that you can sleep well without a pillow, and this will help you to carry your heart straight.

We have not said one word about how to hold the throat to make a sweet tone. It would not do you the least bit of good so long as you did not press up with the top of your head nor instinctively keep your chest where the larynx would be strained almost to the point of burning.

A PROFITABLE PASTIME

For the woman who enjoys an outdoor life, rubbing early vegetables in both pleasant and profitable. Cucumbers always bring good prices when taken to market early in the season, and are not difficult to raise. Prepare a bed of rich soil with plenty of well-rotted manure. Plant the seed, water well and cover with glass. Keep the ground well moistened, and when it is very cold it is best to cover the glass with muslin, or a further protection. You should have cucumbers ready to market in two months. On the vegetables of profit early in the season are cress, string beans, peas and radishes.

Anderson's Reason

The Story of a Man Who Suffered in Silence.

I am not a writing man, but I believe I can set down the facts of this peculiar affair so that they may interest you. I have some right to clear Anderson's character now, for I was the only one who resolutely declined, in the face of the most damning proof and of his own admission of guilt, to believe that he was other than a clean and a straight man.

There never was a man I admired more, so you can imagine how the news of his coming to have been knocked from under me when I arrived at the office one morning to hear that Anderson had been arrested an hour before.

"Robbed the safe," one of my fellow clerks loudly told me. He supposed the keys were his handkerchief. "Fancy Anderson of all men! Last man I should have believed."

The four other clerks started in to talk loudly at that. My own mind was fogged, and out of the haze I could see clearly but one thing—the pale and white face of Miss Barclay, the typist. A fine girl she was, and is. She came up to me now, her hands working pitifully.

"It is a dreadful mistake," she said to me.

"I never heard anything so ridiculous," I told her. Anyway, I am going to the police station to hear what is said. If I get sacked for being absent. He is my best friend and—

"And my future husband. I am coming, too."

Anderson pleaded guilty! Guilty—that clean, straight friend of mine! The thing was incredible. I heard Miss Barclay whisper "No, no," I patted her arm, but she said no heed to me. Her eyes were on that tall figure in the dock.

P. G. 40 X then began to recite the result of his investigations. He found that the safe had been opened, and that a quantity of notes and gold, amounting to $35, had been extracted. A seal from the end of a watch-chain had been found lying within the safe, broken off apparently, and when the prisoner was asked to identify the seal, he said it was his.

"Then how could the note be on him?" asked his worship.

"I found it in his pocket after he had dressed your worship."

"Did his prisoner a key to the safe?"

"He has your worship."

"I see. That will do. Call James Parker, the caretaker, testified to having seen prisoner enter the office at 8.30 the previous evening. He left at 8.45, and Parker then closed the door. He found the safe broken open in the morning, and recognized the seal as that worn by Anderson."

"This ended the proceedings, and Anderson was committed to the State House of Correction. When he turned to leave the dock his eye caught mine. "Good-bye, Jack!" I cried. "I don't believe it!"

He threw back his head proudly, and smiled in his winning way. Just for the fraction of a second his eyes rested on Miss Barclay's face, but she did not smile. She might have been content to stare when he disappeared. A constant stream of tears was in his eyes, and he was not going back on him."

"Not! He is still to remain your friend!"

"Phone, Heaven you! Old Jack is no criminal at heart. He is a white man. You don't think with me?"

"Yes," I said, "I know you."

Anderson was very cold at first. She put her arms around him. "Oh," she said, "if only I had trusted you and let you explain."

"Explain! Do I need to explain? Surely not to you! Well, it is too late now. He put her arms around him. "Oh," she said, "if only I had trusted you and let you explain."

"Harder," he said. "Harder! Me! Did I not run myself to save you? And you tell me—"

"Listen!" she cried. "Listen! You thought that I—that I was the thief, and you tried to save me. Is not that so?"

"And were you not?" he asked wonderingly. "I saw you hurry from the office that night. I had left a paper waiting badly, and went for it. As I went forward you hurried away. I called to you, but you boarded a bus. I went upstairs, found the safe open—and that."

"He showed her a letter."

"Yes, and the safe was empty. I knew what had happened. I knew it instantly. You told me yourself your brother was a scapegrace. He was in trouble, and you stole for him. You stole, knowing you might be suspected, and I went to the police station to see if I could find out what you had done."

"I want to say—"

"Say nothing, please! I wish never to see your face again." Then she passed on.

"May Heaven forgive you," said Anderson. When he rejoined me his face was grey.

"I might have been spared that," he said hoarsely.

"He said that night with me and left next morning, saying no word to anyone."

"For just upon three years I heard no word of Anderson, nor did I meet anyone who had. Two years after he disappeared I married the dearest little woman in the world. She did not know Anderson, but she was a friend of Nana Barclay's, and Anderson's old sweetheart—somebody—somebody—us. But Anderson's name was never mentioned. So I was surprised when Jesse referred to him one night after Miss Barclay had gone."

"I've just found but all about him," she told me. "If Miss Barclay's information is correct, he was a pretty kind of rascal."

"See here, Jesse—"

"Wait a bit, dear. Did you know he was a gambler? Visited a gambling club when you thought him abed. Had a heavy gambling debt to meet, and met it the night before he was arrested? You don't know that?"

"I don't know it now. Who says so?"

"Miss Barclay."

"Where did she get her information?"

"From her brother. It was to him the money was paid. He showed her two of the notes that were missing. She burnt them herself. At that moment—I trace the finger of Fate here—one of the office fellows at 8.45, and Parker then closed the door. He found the safe broken open in the morning, and recognized the seal as that worn by Anderson."

"The Good Old Times"

We met a man the other day who sadly lamented the decadence of the younger generation in vocal music. In "the good old times," whenever a lot of young people met, one of their chief pleasures was the singing of hymns and secular songs. Everybody sang, and there was no fastidious about having and sharpening. A new song-book with attractive songs in it was an event. The singing school was one of the staple features of the social life.

For three days the multitude had listened enraptured, forgetful of all else, to what he taught them. Then their provisions were exhausted except for seven loaves of bread and a few small fish, and they were far from home. For Jesus to have dismissed them hungry and without food would have caused a riot.

"It is not to be wondered at," said Jesus. "Some might have died on the way before they could have reached their homes or the nearest village where bread might be bought. Yet the disciples did not see how Jesus could do any trick else than to multiply the loaves and call this the shallow, unthinking piano age. The piano must be in every home, whether it is musical or not, just as the old family Bible used to be in evidence on a stand, and whether the family was religious or not. Music is all sheer, shallow conventionalism now, not a spontaneous impulse, and though we spell art with a capital now, we are less artists than we were."

"The tears flowed faster from Jeremiah's eyes as he remembered the old days, and creation to tell how 'Messiah' and 'Creation' and 'St. Paul' and other oratorios used to be sung in great musical conventions held back in Hoop-oo County, Indiana, fifty years ago. Now you cannot get such things rendered adequately in great cities with more population than the whole of Indiana had in those days. In place of the Masons, Emersons, Bradburys, Palmers, and other great leaders who spread the gospel of the higher choral music wherever they went, we now have long-haired pianists who play chaotic takes the place of the genuine musical ideas and riot in tone-color, while the composition itself is 'without form and void.' Poor Jeremiah! he is at least half right! But still there are those left in Israel who have not bowed the knee to Baal, and when this shallow age of groping after 'good form' is over, the musical Messiah may yet come with a genuine new gospel and 'the good old times' will be forgotten to the 'better new times' that are ahead. The fact is, the sudden flow of emigration of ambitious young musicians to Germany and France a generation ago, many of whom did not drink deep enough of the Victorian spring to get the genuine inner vision and had to be content with the outer form of musical art, was not an unmitigated good. On their return they adopted the natural development of the native musical life of America, and the American music of today is the result of a fusion of the best of both worlds."

"I'll help you from now," said Nana Barclay, and her arms went around him.

DULPIT TOPICS

JESUS OUR PROVIDER.

Four thousand people in a wilderness, provided with only seven loaves of bread and a few small fish, had more than sufficient to eat, because Jesus was among them, taught and led them, and blessed them, and because they relied upon Him, followed, believed, obeyed and trusted Him. He was their Provider: "So they all ate and were filled."

How the Miracle Was Wrought. The multitude had listened enraptured, forgetful of all else, to what he taught them. Then their provisions were exhausted except for seven loaves of bread and a few small fish, and they were far from home. ## CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

TOPIC FOR AUGUST 13, 1911.

THE BEGINNINGS OF BAD HABITS.

Psalms 23: 29-35.

Those who defend the moderate use of intoxicants make a great point of the fact that the word temperance in its original significance, and as used in the Bible, does not mean total abstinence, but moderation, or self-control, and applies quite as much to eating and to other forms of self-gratification as it does to the drinking of liquor. That is very true, but it is not new; all educated people of that age, or should be, quite aware of that. But it is a very little bearing on the merits of the controversy over the liquor question.

The man who wants to be temperate, self-controlled, in all things must watch himself constantly and must avoid altogether practices which tend to develop uncontrollable habits. He must watch against the very beginning of surrender to self-indulgence; for there is no getting away from the truth of the moral appended to the story of the Spider and the Fly."

You're lost if you stand parleying Outside of pleasure's door.

One who wants to control himself so as to make the most and best of himself must not allow himself to be governed by his inclinations, but must study the tendencies of all practices, and consider carefully what pleasures are good and helpful and what pleasures are harmful or dangerous. Helpful pleasures should be heartily enjoyed, but in moderation. Dangerous pleasures should be avoided.

Any one who knows himself knows that he cannot afford to put himself in the way of temptation. Every one is weak at some point, and we shall surely fail if we allow ourselves to be tempted unnecessarily at our weak points.

The reason why so many persons who think they are strong become the slaves of some bad habit is that by nature we all judge ourselves by our strong points and overlook our little weaknesses, or think of them as excusable and unimportant. But these same little weaknesses, which seem so insignificant, are like a tiny leak in a dam which grows gradually bigger and bigger until a flood of water pours through. As Tennyson says of "unfaithful."

It is the little rift within the lute, That by and by will make the music mute. And ever widening slowly silence all, Or little rifted speck in garnered fruit.

That rotting inward slowly moulder all.

No one ever begins using intoxicating liquor with the intention of becoming a drunkard, and the vast majority of persons imagine that they are in no danger of that fate. In the earlier stages of the habit, they have no difficulty in letting it alone when they choose to do so, or in stopping when they think they have had enough; and they do not realize that the habit is growing upon them and the appetite for liquor is getting a stronger hold upon them until by and by they begin to feel that they need the poisonous drug and need it more and more. Their system has adapted itself to the use of alcohol and craves it for its own sake. Then the man cannot stop drinking without a hard fight, and he has no other recourse but to keep on drinking until he is so drunk that he cannot help but stop. And if his condition should compel him to stop, he is likely to find that he has a headache and a sick stomach, and he will be tempted to keep on drinking until he is so drunk that he cannot help but stop.

And the same is true of a greater number of our bad habits. They begin in a small way, and we have no difficulty in letting it alone when we choose to do so, or in stopping when we think they have had enough; and they do not realize that the habit is growing upon them and the appetite for liquor is getting a stronger hold upon them until by and by they begin to feel that they need the poisonous drug and need it more and more. Their system has adapted itself to the use of alcohol and craves it for its own sake. Then the man cannot stop drinking without a hard fight, and he has no other recourse but to keep on drinking until he is so drunk that he cannot help but stop. And if his condition should compel him to stop, he is likely to find that he has a headache and a sick stomach, and he will be tempted to keep on drinking until he is so drunk that he cannot help but stop.

Tuesday's Picnic.

Yes, they had the union picnic excursion to Clementon, Tuesday, about four hundred of Baptists, Presbyterians, and friends; and they were about the happiest lot of people we have seen for many a day.

The weather was fine. They say the Presbyterians were to blame for it; but we are inclined to think it was just pure luck.

The Reading had provided a special train, seven cars, and a good-natured crew. But you should have seen the youngsters—and big ones, too—scramble onto the train!

Had the conductor started on time, fifty-odd might have found walking good. They arrived at Clementon in about fifteen minutes, in the meantime picking up a dozen and a half from Winslow and Elm.

The day was spent in walks, swimming, base-ball, quoits, cats, boating, trolleying, spooning. Not a few overcame in one of the aforesaid occupations, and suffered severe headaches in consequence.

Why the city papers did not publish a detailed account of the ball games is yet to be decided, for they were certainly full of fine plays, double plays, triple plays; and to the credit of umpire Blackwood, there was not a squeal.

Captain Hollidge, of the Baptist team, and Captain Packard, of the Presbyterians, were old-time base-ball enthusiasts, and deserved the praise of the multitudes who witnessed the games.

Here are the men, their positions and the score:

Presbyterians	C.	Baptist
L. Rogers	C.	P. Small
Packard	F.	W. Myers
Brinfield, Heath	J. B.	Stinson
Johns	2nd B.	G. H. Cook
Doerfl	3rd B.	S. Claus
Mawson	S.S.	G. F. Leuz
Yost, Dodd	R.F.	Sixner
Speres	C.F.	Deardoff
Elliot	L.F.	E. Leuz

innings 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9—Total
Baptist 3 0 3 2 0 0 5 1 1—15
Presbyt. 0 0 2 0 1 0 0 0 — 3

The kids followed with a rattling good game.

We were glad to meet many former Hammonians, from Philadelphia, and elsewhere.

Arriving home about 8 o'clock, tired and happy, Clementon was unanimously voted a jolly good place to go.

Next year may see all the schools unite in a large excursion.

Town Council Meeting.

Regular session on Wednesday evening, Aug 9th. All present except Mayor Austin, who was quite ill.

C. A. Wood chosen Mayor pro tem.

Minutes of last regular and three adjourned meetings were approved.

Regular order suspended, and matter of tax rate for 1911 taken up. Collector Davis stated that the appropriations voted, with State and County taxes, would necessitate a rate exceeding two dollars on each $100 of valuation, which is not permitted by law. Only two remedies,—to make a new assessment, increasing all valuations; or reduce the amount to be raised by appropriating money from license or surplus fund.

Voted, to take $3000 from the surplus fund and reduce the highway appropriation to that amount.

Bill of Allen Clymer for grade books and blanks, $14.50, ordered paid when properly sworn to.

Report of State Forester read. We publish it on first page.

Chief of Police reported five arrests.

Clerk itemized $238.20 received by him for licenses and surveys.

Peter J. Heck asked renewal of his liquor license. Referred.

John D. Giacomo's application for renewal of license referred back to him for correction.

Electric Light Co. offered to sell lighting fixtures in the Park for $482. Referred.

Highway Committee authorized to employ a competent man to supervise laying of curbs and sidewalks.

Voted that all fees for grades, etc., be credited to a separate fund.

Much discussion as to laying walks and curbs by property owners. Resolutions and amendments all fell through, and owners may now secure their grades from the Clerk, and have the work done at once.

Adjourned at 11.58, to meet Friday evening, Aug. 11th.

Geo. A. Blake has been entertaining his brother, from Cape May County.

A party of Philadelphia young ladies are spending the week boating and driving about Hammonton. They are stopping in the Mortimer house on the County Road.

Athletic Association.

Stratton A. C. went down to defeat last Saturday,—6 to 2. Our boys battled well, and as Fitz held Stratton to one hit, the victory is easily explained.

Lobley and Birdsall made some brilliant plays, but credit must be given the whole team for fine playing. Only one Philadelphia team has won a game here this season.

—Brandywine, May 27.

The Association announces with regret the resignation of Mr. E. P. Jones as manager of the home team. He is about to leave town, and therefore cannot continue his connection with the team. Mr. J. has maintained a team for several years, against all sorts of obstacles, and given much time to it, for the good of the town.

Chas. Slack is now manager.

To-day, Hammonton Traveling Team vs. Atco, at 3.30.

Next week, Vineland.

We can now announce a series of games with Egg Harbor. They have heretofore refused to schedule any games with us. First game, Sept. 9th.

The Farmers' and Merchants' Building and Loan Association meets Tuesday evening.

GET Your Advs. in on Thursday— don't wait until Friday.

The Town experienced a short water famine, Wednesday. The gas man drilled into a water main, to make a gas connection, and they had to shut off for a time. It reminds us of the boy, somewhere, who called up his plumber, saying: "Come at once; dad's swearing; mom is most crazy. You made wrong connections, I guess, for the parlor chandelier is spouting water over everything, and the bath-room spigot is all a-fire!"

SEVEN Passenger Automobile to hire, by the day or hour. Reasonable rates. John Rubba. Local phone 1111.
