[For the SOUTH JERSEY REPUBLICAN.]

AU REVOIR.

BY JAMES NORTH.

I will not ask you if you have forgot,
Those golden days, that we two spent in Rome,
Haunting old galleries of Masters dead,
Like two small children when away from home.
We laughed and loved beneath Italia's sky,
Nor deluged to think such happy days could die.
"You say 'twas long ago," well—not so long.
Old Time has touched us lightly through three years.
You have the selfsame glorious eyes as then—
One would not think they had been dimmed with tears.
Thy brow is as fair, thy cheeks as soft as glow
As when in Rome I loved thee—years ago.
I will remember as one ere we stray'd,
Through a dim window arch, I chanced to see
A picture, which I thought looked much like you.
I bought it, here—I have it now with me.
It brings back scenes that I can never forget,
And for the first—I often kiss it yet.
"You have the picture, that I gave you then?"
I have grown older you see, I show it
More than you—"and all the poems I sent you then?"
Yes—they thought I'd make a famous poet."
But like good wine, I grow not rich with age,
I only serve as Poby's humble page.
Ah yes! Those days were like the wine we drank.
They made us very dizzy for a while.
How soft that picture is you're painting now—
The girl you saw in Rome—I knew that smile.
A kiss—and an au revoir, for I must go,
And let me hear from you,—I stop at Pau.

WHICH?

"Spurn the woman, she is guilty;
Let the man go free;
She is sinful, he but human,
We can all agree.
This the verdict that we render
In the courts below,
Never asking: "Up in Heaven
Says the Master so?"
We can listen, all unheeding,
To her plaintive moan,
To her frantic, hopeless pleading
And her dying groan.
For the sake of fallen woman
Nothing can atone;
"We are sinners," thus we reason,
"Cast me the first stone."
But with tender words and glances
Greet him, press his hand;
Show him how much loving favor
He may still command.
Should he ask us for our daughter,
Gladly we'll consent;
He is rich, his rank is noble,
We are well content.
What if he has crushed forever
One poor bleeding heart?
He was but the victim of that
Wicked woman's art.
He the tempter, she the tempted,
In the sight of Heaven;
But on earth, for her the judgment,
All to him forgiven.

Our Next Assemblyman.

Mr. Editor:—
Time is rapidly slipping away, and it becomes the duty of every serious, thinking voter in Atlantic county to deeply consider the elections now coming on. Not the least thing of importance should be considered the election of an Assemblyman from this county, for much depends on the complexion of the next New Jersey Legislature, as every voter knows, and it behooves all good Republicans, especially in a county that will be contested as Atlantic county will, to be casting about them for a suitable candidate, in order that we may be united; and from the fact of our getting early into the traces, disarm hard feelings and save that contention in our own party which often causes the disaffection of many voters.

It is clear, in the first place, that we want a man devoted to Republicanism—a man of stalwart principles, who will stand up undaunted by threats, unmoved by bribes, and straightforward in the advocacy and defense of those good Republican principles that have saved the Nation. Then again, we want a man who has for a long time been identified with the politics of the county, and has always taken an active part in our campaigns. In fact, we must have a man who is well known for his devotion to the party, and a man who will poll his party vote.

Another thing which I consider as well understood through the county, is the fact that the naming of the candidate belongs to Hammonton. I understand this is generally conceded so now that we have got narrowed down to our own town, it becomes less difficult to find the man we want. I have one in my mind now who has for many years worked unceasingly in the interests of the Republican party and who has always worked for what he deemed the best interests of the county, and the community in which he lived. He is well known personally by every prominent man in the county, and by reputation he is well known to nearly all—known to be up and down on every issue, standing squarely on his conscientious convictions, so that no one could mistake his position. I refer to Dr. H. E. Bowles, for eight years Editor of the SOUTH JERSEY REPUBLICAN, than whom none other has ever stood up more square to his convictions, more firm for the eternal principles of Republicanism, or more steadily for what he judged to be for the best interests of Atlantic county, and, indeed, South Jersey. On no issue was he ever known to cover or hide his sentiments in any way, shape or manner. As the West Jersey Press said: "You always know where to find him."

Isn't this the kind of a man we want to represent us at Trenton, next winter? A man whose sentiments we know on the main issues, whose opinion we can easily find out on the local issues, and who will stick to his convictions?

I put this out as a suggestion, made by one who feels deeply interested in the result, and one who feels that in the victory of the Republican party we shall see the best interests of the people prosper. That some earnest move be made in this matter, looking toward unity and victory in the fall is the sincere wish of A VOTER.

Our Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 9, 1880.

If the Democracy at any time deceived itself with the idea that by its loud shouts for Hancock it could stampede the Republican forces, it will now have to settle down to the realization of the fact, distasteful as it may be, that the Republicans are not to be stampeded; that the party is more united than for years, and that at no time in its history have its great leaders been so happily pleased as with the nominations of Garfield and Arthur. This state of feeling now existing in the Republican party, though nothing to be surprised at, was not seen in the campaign of 1876 and is now a stranger to the Democratic camp.

But one cause can be assigned for this unusual amount of confidence and enthusiasm among the Republicans everywhere: it is the awakening of the people to the fact that Republican rule has given to this land the greatest prosperity ever known. Business men care nothing for sectional politics; nothing for personal differences; they know that a change, for change's sake only, is not safe in business, and they know the rule applies with equal force to politics. Their interests are protected, as are those of their customers, and they want no change simply because the Democratic party has put on its old mask of loyalty and asks for power; for a grip upon the national purse; asks leave of the Nation to introduce the new "Mississippi plan" of counting out into New York, Indiana, and Connecticut; leave to experiment with the currency and the tariff, and to abolish the national banks; asks the people to choose adversity when prosperity is with them. No wonder the Hancock enthusiasm is fast dwindling away; no wonder the notes of Republican preparation are heard on every hand. The Republican party appeals to the patriotism of every man, to his love of liberty, justice and law. It has identified itself with the national life in a manner at once grateful to our industries and to the preservation of the liberties and form of government we all love so well. These considerations, I have no doubt, will force themselves upon the minds of every intelligent voter, and a careful study of the subject will result in more votes for Garfield and Arthur.

The Conference in New York, last week, will awaken in every Republican heart a new confidence in the harmony of the party. Our leaders met there to coolly and calmly talk over the situation. They did not hide the weak points. If doubts exist, they admitted them and took steps for their correction. They knew that enthusiasm, though a powerful auxiliary, cannot elect Garfield, and they made preparations for a close canvass in every doubtful State. It will take an effort—it will be no holiday campaign—but it will be won.

Within the past few days a large number of persons of both sexes have received appointments in the Census office, and many more are yet to be appointed. Although Government clerks are generally better paid than others, few of the more recent appointed receive more than $600 per annum. The pressure for place is tremendous, and competent clerks can be had for $400 per year.

MAXWELL.

Frequently we find sick people whose stomachs reject all kinds of nourishment, until conditions follow that often terminate fatally. In twenty instances in which I have heard the popular sick-bed nourishment prescribed, and rejected by an invalid's enfeebled stomach, I have never known the simple saucer of parched corn pudding or gruel refused. The corn is roasted brown, precisely as we roast coffee, ground as fine as meal in a coffee-mill, and made into mush, gruel, or thin cakes, baked slightly brown and given either warm or cold, clear, or with whatever dressing the stomach will receive or retain. Parched corn and meal boiled in skimmed milk, and fed frequently to children suffering from Summer diarrhoea, will almost always cure, as it will dysentery in adults, and, we believe, the cholera in its earliest stages.—An Eminent Physician.

The Hon. William E. Dodge, in his recent lecture on "Old New York," or New York as it was fifty years ago, when he was a young man of twenty-five years, and gave the following financial advice to young men:—"All young men should aim to save something, even at the expense of a limited wardrobe and many little things they think necessary. If there were none but young men here, I would say, that from the first year when I entered a store, with a salary of fifty dollars, to my last year, when, as a salesman, I received, for those days, very large pay, I never failed to save a part; and, when I started in business, those savings and experience were all my capital."

The advice here given, illustrated by such an excellent example, is worth its weight in gold to any one who practices upon it. Almost every one who is in the working condition can make his expenses less than his income. If the latter be small, he can so cut down the former as to leave a small surplus each year. If, on the other hand, his income be large, he can make a larger saving, without any meanness or sacrifice of decent appearances. What he thus saves by not expending it, is his capital; and if he saves something each year, then with each year his capital increases. This course, pursued for thirty or forty years, will make any man moderately rich, and some men very rich, unless the mishaps of business shall sweep away the accumulation.

General Hancock in his letter said: "Power not delegated to the United States by the constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, belong to the States respectively or to the people." This would have been a fine opportunity for a general in the United States army to denounce rebellion, but the opportunity was for some reason lost.

"Nothing can intimidate me from doing what I believe to be honest and right."—Hancock. If you were a colored Republican in the South and should talk so bravely, you would be gathered to your father's before the next election and all your family assaulted if not murdered. That is the way the South is kept "solid," and you, General Hancock, know it.

Political recruits are not all on the side of Hancock, though one would be inclined to believe so, if he only read Democratic papers. Forney's "fourteenthly" back somersets has so elated them, and concentrated their sight on him, that they are unable to see the host of honest and prominent Democrats who are forsaking the party, and coming into the Republican fold. The latest report is, David D. Bruce, a leading lawyer and Democrat, of Pittsburg. But with the Democracy, they say, with every one who leaves them, "This one don't count." Every one will count double in November, for the Republican majority.

THE BEST REMEDY

FOR
Diseases of the Throat and Lungs.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

In diseases of the pulmonary organs a safe and reliable remedy is invaluable. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL is such a remedy, and no other so eminently merits the confidence of the public. It is a scientific combination of the medicinal principles and curative virtues of the finest drugs, chemically united, of such power as to insure the greatest possible efficiency and uniformity of results. It strikes at the foundation of all pulmonary diseases, affording prompt relief and rapid cures, and is adapted to patients of any age or either sex. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it readily. In ordinary Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Influenza, Croup, and Catarrh, the effects of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL are magical, and multitudes are annually preserved from serious illness by its timely and faithful use. It should be kept at hand in every household for the protection it affords in sudden attacks. In Whooping-cough and Consumption there is no other remedy so efficacious, soothing, and helpful.

Low prices are inducements to try some of the many mixtures, or syrups, made of cheap and ineffective ingredients, now offered, which, as they contain no curative qualities, can afford only temporary relief, and are sure to deceive and disappoint the patient. Diseases of the throat and lungs demand active and effective treatment; and it is dangerous experimenting with unknown and cheap medicines, from the great liability that these diseases may, while so trifled with, become deeply seated or incurable. Use AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and you may confidently expect the best results. It is a standard medical preparation, of known and acknowledged curative power, and is as cheap as its careful preparation and fine ingredients will allow. Eminent physicians, knowing its composition, prescribe it in their practice. The test of half a century has proven its absolute certainty to cure all pulmonary complaints not already beyond the reach of human aid.

MUST!

Above product, our "specialty," is the pure unfermented juice of the grape as it leaves the press, and equivalent to this delicious fruit in liquid form. Possessing no alcoholic properties, it is invaluable to Invalids, Temperance people and Churches for Sacramental purposes.

"Our" MUST must not be mistaken for other so-called unfermented wines, as it is not bottled and hermetically sealed to keep it from spoiling. The only "Process" resort to by us is to permanently stop fermentation, which naturally must result in the juice remaining as it grew.

The undersigned are now disposing of their new stock prepared from their last grape crop, and warrant that it will keep without special care.

NOTICE!

To those holding Policies in the Millville Mutual Marine & Fire Insurance Co.

Your insurance is as good to-day as any insurance can be—being protected by our Insurance notes—and from the responsibility on the premium notes the law allows no escape. The policies of the company must remain good until the court of chancery fixes a time for responsibility to cease by surrender of premium notes. This we believe now we shall escape, but in any event we give notice of such order, must and shall be given.

To those who are thinking of re-insuring in other companies we say that such a course is of all others to be avoided. By so doing, you raise a grave question as to whether your insurances are not rendered void—and you still remain liable for the assessment in the Millville Mutual.

Aiken, S. C., has 184 more women than men. There are many Aiken female hearts there.

The women who wishes to refuse, contents herself with saying No. She who explains, wants to be convinced.

Roger Bacon, who died in 1292, was a Franciscan friar, far before his age, not free from fanciful views as on subject of alchemy, but so competent an optician, mathematician, and experimental philosopher, that Herschel says of him: "Our illustrious countryman, Roger Bacon, shone out at the obscurest moment, like an early star predicting dawn." Of him, it is proved that his reverence for Scripture was profound. Its history, doctrines, expressions, abound in his pages. He counted Divine revelation the most precious source, and his "Opus Majus" (greater work) makes it the crown of the arch of human knowledge. He denies that philosophy and religion can be opposed to each other. He had trials as a scientist, but he bore them with the humility of a true Christian.

Mr. Weaver, the Greenback candidate for the Presidency, has just returned from an electioneering tour in Alabama and was duly interviewed by the Wheeling Intelligencer.

"There has not been," he said an election worthy of the name in Alabama for years. Their voting is a farce throughout. They openly adopt every corrupt plan to solidify the different precincts for the Democratic party; and the invariably succeed. In the Black Belt, where the Democrats have three voters to the Democrats' one, the Democratic judges of election simply destroy the tickets and supply their own. Their arrangements for doing this are bold and ingenious. The law requires that the party having a minority shall have a representative among the judges. When one can be found a blind negro is chosen. When none is at hand, either a Republican is bribed to serve their ends, or a mercenary Democrat is induced to identify himself with the Republican party solely for that purpose. Then the ballot box is elevated above the heads of the voters in such a way that after the ticket is intrusted to the judges a person outside cannot see what disposition is made of it. It is, therefore, easy to destroy a ticket and substitute another, and I am soberly and credibly informed that this is deliberately done to a shameful extent, apparent to the most doubting." General Weaver says the Democrats openly boast of this infamous business, and joke over the fact that sometimes, after all the "stuffing," they have to "fix up the returns" after the count. He adds: "I used to think Tilden was fairly elected, but he was not."

Colonel Robert Ingersoll tells why he is not a Democrat in the following language:

I am opposed to the Democratic party, and I will tell you why. Every State that seceded from the United States was a Democratic State. Every ordinance of secession was drawn by a Democrat. Every man that endeavored to tear the old flag from the heaven that it enriches was a Democrat. Every man who tried to destroy this Nation was a Democrat. Every enemy this great republic has had for twenty years has been a Democrat. Every man that shot Union soldiers was a Democrat. Every man that starved Union soldiers and refused them in the extremity of death a crust was a Democrat. Every man that loved slavery better than liberty was a Democrat. The man that assassinated Abraham Lincoln was a Democrat. Every man that sympathized with the assassin—every man glad that the noblest President ever elected was assassinated—was a Democrat. Every man that impaired the credit of the United States; every man that swore that he would never pay the bonds; every man that swore he would not redeem the greenbacks was a Democrat. Every man that resisted the draft was a Democrat. Every man that wept over the corpse of slavery was a Democrat. Every man that cursed Lincoln because he issued the Proclamation of Emancipation—the grandest paper since the Declaration of Independence—every one of them was a Democrat. Every man that wanted an uprising in the North, that wanted to release the rebel prisoners that they might burn down the homes of the Union soldiers above the heads of their wives and children, while the brave husbands, the heroic fathers, were in the front fighting for the honor of the old flag, every one of them was a Democrat. Every man that believed this glorious nation of ours is a confederacy, every man that believed the old banner carried by our fathers through the Revolution, through the War of 1812, carried by our brothers over the plains of Mexico, carried by our brothers over the fields of the Rebellion, simply stood for a contract, simply stood for an agreement, was a Democrat. Every man who believed that any State could go out of the Union at its pleasure; every man that believed the grand fabric of the American Government could be made to crumble instantly into dust at the touch of treason, was a Democrat. Soldiers, every scar you have got on your heroic bodies was given you by a Democrat. Every scar, every arm that is lacking, every limb that is gone, every scar is a souvenir of a Democrat.

Insurance.

CUMBERLAND MUTUAL Fire Insurance Company.

BRIDGETON, N. J.

Conducted on strictly mutual principles, offering a perfectly safe insurance for just what it may cost to pay losses and expenses. The proportion of loss to the amount insured being very small, and expenses much less than usually had, nothing can be offered more favorable to the insured. The cost being about ten cents on the hundred dollars per year to the insured on ordinary risks, and from fifteen to twenty-five cents per year on hazardous properties, which is less than one-third of the lowest rates charged by stock companies, on such risks—the other two-thirds taken by stock companies being a profit accruing to stockholders, or consumed in expenses of the companies.

The guarantee fund of premium notes being now Three Millions of Dollars.

If an assessment had to be made of five per cent. only, twice within the ten years for which the policy is issued, it would yet be cheaper to the members than any other insurance offered. And that large amount of money is saved to the members and kept at home. No assessment having ever been made, being now more than thirty years, that saving would amount to more than

One Million Five Hundred Thousand Dollars

The Losses by Lightning.

Where the property is not set on fire, being less than one cent per year to each member, are paid without extra charge, and extended so as to cover all policies that are issued and outstanding.
