Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith were in town on Thursday.

Volunteer Fire Company meets next Monday evening.

Civic Club library will be open to-night, from seven to nine.

Geo. Broom, formerly of Nesco, was in town for a day or two.

Mrs. B. Shourds has been visiting former Hammonton friends.

Cake and apron sale at 2 o'clock this afternoon, at the Civic Club Hall.

Miss Esther Tomkinson is spending a short vacation at Ocean Grove.

Mrs. Kathryn Donahue, from Philadelphia, is visiting Mrs. A.E. Drake.

The Girl Pioneers are to have a "field day" at the Park, Saturday, Aug. 28th.

Misses Anna and Clara Walther are visiting their brother William, at Elmira, N. Y.

Miss Carrie Nelson, of Philadelphia, is visiting her sister, Mrs. D. W. C. Russell.

Charles I. Price, of Germantown, has returned home after a visit at Mrs. A. E. Drake's.

Horace Gentel and his brother-in-law, Mr. Jacobs, motored to Hammonton yesterday.

L. A. Hoyt, with his two sons, Arthur and Edward, spent nearly a week with local relatives.

Indian Mills people will celebrate its annual "Harvest Home" next Thursday, in Brown's Grove.

Egg Harbor is making great plans for its annual Carnival, to be held Sept. 16th, 17th, and 18th.

Come to the Japanese Lawn Fete to-night, Civic Club hall grounds. Try your luck in some of the games.

Friends of little Raymond Hay have been much concerned over his serious illness with inflammation of the bowels.

St. Mark's had a pleasant picnic at the Park on Thursday, the only thing to mar it being the rain in the afternoon.

Thomas L. VanDerslice, of Philadelphia, is spending the week at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Drake, at the Lake.

Civic Club members are invited to the home of Mrs. George H. Corcoran for their next thimble bee, Friday, Aug. 20, 3 p. m.

The condition of John W. Roller was very serious this week; and latest reports from the hospital are that he is not yet out of danger.

The Baptists had a very enjoyable time at their picnic, Tuesday, at the Park. The weather was ideal for games, boating, swimming, and, last but not least, eating.

Niek Vagare collided with one of Bernshouse's teams, while riding his wheel, early Monday evening, and was apparently badly injured on the head and leg. He was taken to a physician's, and then home, his injuries being but of a superficial nature.

Mrs. Olive Dudley, wife of Frank Dudley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Simons, died last Monday night, Aug. 9, from heart trouble, leaving an infant son. Our entire community mourns with the afflicted families, for we all knew and loved the deceased. Her's was one of those gentle natures who make a friend of every acquaintance, and all feel sincere sorrow at her sudden departure. Funeral services were conducted by Pastor van Dright, Friday afternoon.

Robert S. Smith's garage, at Elwood, was discovered to be on fire about three o'clock, Tuesday morning, by the driver of a morning newspaper car; and but for his quick work, and that of the garage chauffeur, Jas. J. Brady, whom he awoke just in time to save his life, the entire structure, together with several machines, would have burned to the ground. Signs point to incendiarism, and Mr. Smith is offering a reward of five hundred dollars for evidence that will lead to the conviction of the guilty person or persons.

The Sewer System Law.

We have been studying law, this week, to ascertain whether we are mistaken in our contention that the assessments for payment of the sewer debt have not been wisely made; and as a result of our reading we are more firmly convinced that the whole cost thereof might have been, and should have been, charged to the Town at large.

So far as we can understand the simple phraseology of the law, which is found in the Pamphlet Laws of 1902, Chapter 124, pages 371 to 393, all proceedings of Town Council, engineers, sewer commission, and assessment commission have been properly conducted; the only room for protest being as to the interpretation of the clause contained in Section 24, which reads—

"Said commissioners shall ascertain and determine the total cost of such system, and whether any lots or parcels of land within such incorporated town have been specially benefited therefrom, and if so, to what extent, so far as can be, on the lands and real estate, so specially benefited, in proportion to the benefits received."

We find nothing in this law which authorizes "prospective benefits," as assessed upon any property. The plan adopted, of assessing a man according to the size of his lot or tract, also comes under the same unauthorized prospective benefit caption.

The whole matter, then, rests upon the judgment of the three men who made the assessments, as to how the words "special benefits" should be interpreted. The commissioners say that all who have the privilege of connecting with or using the sewers are specially benefited, and decided to fix the value of said benefit by the measurement of the property. They decided that a certain proportion of the total cost of the sewer system should be charged to said properties, and made their figures accordingly.

The law says, "In case there shall be no special benefits"—showing clearly that the decision rests primarily with the commission.

However, upon their report the Circuit Court shall act, being vested with authority, by rule or order, to confirm, modify, or alter it. Herein rests our hope, that the Court, after hearing the protests of reputable citizens, will amend the report in such manner as to place the entire cost of the sewer system upon the Town, as was voted at a public meeting of the tax-payers.

A postal card containing the following was this week sent to each property owner who has been assessed for sewers:

HAMMONTOWN, N. J., August 11, 1915

Are you content with the assessment for Sewer benefits of which you have been notified? Please advise the committee, through the Secretary, the undersigned, at once.

Do you think that further action should be taken?

Would you desire the present committee to act?

Another appearance at Court would entail new costs, which must be provided in advance. If you desire further action, please send your contribution to the cause. There are still some few dollars owing on the expenses already incurred.

The committee will hold a meeting in Bellevue Hall on Saturday evening, 14th inst., at eight o'clock sharp, to hear from the assessed property owners.

CHARLES K. NELSON,
Secretary of the Protecting Committee.

The law distinctly states that any municipality which is about to lay a permanent street may make connection with sewers, etc., in front of vacant lots along the line of improvement, and charge cost of same to the property. As Bellevue Avenue must not be dug into after the reinforced concrete is laid from the railroad to north side of Third St., action will be taken after giving owners a reasonable number of days to make such connections.

The habit of throwing bottles and broken glass into the shallow water at the Park is too mean and dangerous to go unpunished. We have heard of several, recently, who were severely cut by treading on the sharp edges. Only this week, Edwin Bakley was fortunate in having Dr. Hilder so near; and several stitches were required to close the wound.

Read the communication on "swimming," this week. We have one of the best places in the state (at the foot of the Lake) for this health recreation, and several scores may be found there every day. The great drawback is the absence of bath-houses. Could not the money which was raised several years ago (about seventy-five dollars) be added to, and four or five rooms be built, conveniently near? Perhaps a small revenue might be derived, and go to the care-taker living near by. Talk it up. We will have a proposition next week.

Primary election is drawing near—the exact date not yet known. Candidates should get out their petitions right soon.

Say, children, watch next week's Republican for your name in the list of pupils.

FORD, the UNIVERSAL CAR.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

The following prices f. o. b. Detroit, effective Aug. 2, 1915:

Ford Runabout $390

Ford Touring Car $440

Ford Town Car $640

No model included in this year's equipment. Other cars fully equipped.

There can be no assurance given against an advance in these prices at any time. We guarantee, however, that there will be no reduction in these prices prior to August 1, 1915.

Profit-Sharing with Retail Buyers

On August 1, 1914, we made the announcement that if we could make and sell at retail 300,000 Ford cars during August 1, 1914, and August 1, 1915, we would share profits with the retail purchasers, to the extent of from $40 to $60 on each car. We have sold over 300,000 Ford cars in the time specified, and profit-sharing checks of $50 each will be distributed as rapidly as possible after August 15, 1915. Retail purchasers who have not yet mailed us their profit-sharing coupons, properly endorsed, should do so without delay.

Our plan to profit-share with retail purchasers of Ford cars during 1914-15 has been most successful. We thoroughly believe in it, but, realizing the uncertainty of conditions generally makes it advisable to defer any announcement of future profit-sharing until a later date.

We are, however, confident of our inability to reduce costs for several months, and therefore can offer no profit-sharing for cars delivered during August, September, and October, 1915.

One of the most brilliant, as well as earliest, of the recorded feats of this kind is the march of the Lacedæmonian Infantry from Sparta to Marathon (490 B. C.) to take part in the great battle. They came up too late, indeed, and more than one historian has hinted "this accident happened on purpose." Contemporary authors, however, seem to have given them credit for having honestly done their best to arrive in time; and a march covering one hundred and fifty miles of almost roadless country in three days, under a weight which those who have seen the helmets and breast-plates of ancient Greece can estimate for themselves, would certainly have earned high commendation in an age of sporting papers.

This exploit was approached, if not equalled, by some of the forced marches of the Roman legions. In his "Ten Thousand" during their famous retreat through Meopotamia (401 B. C.), where the burning heat of the sun and the lack of water and shelter of a hostile force were added to the natural difficulties of the way.

As romantic, but equally brilliant and far greater in historical importance, was the march accomplished by the Consul Lucius Aemilius Paullus in 168 B. C. He was marching from the Adriatic coast to the interior of Italy, when, suddenly, changing his watch, he, defeated Hannibal's army in Apulia, near the town of Metaurus, where he, Paullus, had a camp of two hundred miles from the starting point, and was back in Apulia in less than a month, and the cause of his absence, the soldiers caught the attention of the Romans.

Night and day they marched forward, and the march was continued through the ranks, and resting by routes in the wigwags which the zeal of the country people provided and which followed.

Some years ago, a steamer was sailing down a certain western river, with a shrewd old Yankee captain in command. Suddenly the engines stopped, and the steamer remained motionless for several minutes. The passengers began to talk among themselves, and one of them, a portly, pompous person, advanced to the captain.

"What seems to be the trouble, captain?" he inquired. "Why have we stopped?"

"Too much fog," answered the captain curtly.

"That I was one of the stark overland quille phably," argued the perspicacious individual.

"Mebbe so," admitted the captivated citizen. "But unless the boilers burst we ain't going that way!"

THE MEETINGS RECORD.

A representative of the gas department called on a householder and intimated that he was afraid something was wrong with the meter. From the official point of view, of course, meter men can only advise you fault, and the suspicion which had cast suspicion on this meter was that it had registered lower during the quarter than the corresponding part of the previous year. But the lady of the house had a convincing explanation of the discrepancy.

"I'm sure," she said, "my daughter was engaged last winter. She got married in June."

The official, who was evidently a parent himself, was quite unflinched, and the meter left the court without a stain upon its high character.

From the official point of view, of course, meters can only show one fault, and the "computer" which had just happened in the kitchen was that it had registered no gas during the quarter than in the corresponding part of the previous year. Furniture moving is a strong man's job. There are lots of men in the trade who can carry a piano single-handed—though this is a matter of knack more than of muscle. But the hardest piece of furniture I ever had to move in all my career was an occasional table that looked as if a child could have carried it to the van in one hand.

The furniture was gilt, and belonged to a young married couple. I first noticed one of my men staring at it in a howled way and scratching him-said, "I can't find my nose. I'm losing it."

 I told him, "No, this is gold, this is very uncomfortable. He said, "I

A LUCKY POCKET PIECE.

For the girl or the woman who does her own sewing, this valuable pocket piece is suggested to keep off the "hoodoo" of unwise buying at bargain sales.

In a small blank book, set down just how many yards of material you need for each gown, coat, dress, waist and a silk one, a dressing sack,
a house dress, simple or elaborate a street suit, a separate skirt, and a long coat, using the knowledge you have gained in cutting from different widths and kinds of material. If you make your own underwear, set down the amount of goods necessary for each piece; also just the amount of trimmings needed for each article.
Using it, if you are a woman who has a family of children, devote a page to each child.

Put the pocket piece in your shopping bag, and always have it with

It is often said that American people are lacking in reverence for a flag. If this were true, it would be a lamentable fault, but we are glad to state that it is not the case. It is the old we must look for wisdom gained by the years. There is an old story some of us may remember that illustrates the reverence which the ancients had for the gods. Spartan felt for old age. Into one of the greatest amphitheatres of Greece he filled to the gates with a throng resembling to witness the athletic games so popular in those days, an aged man went one day. Every seat was taken by one hundred Athenian boys sat on one side, as many Spartan youths on the other. When the games were over the Athenian boys, true to their instruction, rose, uncovered their heads, but none went no far as to offer a place to the aged man.

Leaf-cutting bees make their nests in decayed trees, in holes, on the ground, and in like places. Their nests are made of circular pieces of leaves, and are so arranged that they are tight.

D-O-G HE'S CLOSING HIS EYES

PRN

Lumbard sang the requiem at the Lincoln funeral service in Springfield, Ill., and moved to tears even the most stoical of the mourners in the "Miners' Union" throng. That was the fitting climax of his career as a song leader.

Like the great Emancipator, he finished the work that he had called upon to perform for his country. Thirty years later, at a gathering in Omaha, where he had his home for years, he sang the words: "Once more, as they move to those who have just given us this 'government of the people, by the people, for the people,' might the last memory of Jules Lombard doubtless soon pass away, but their works, through the power of his earned voice, will remain in evidence as long as the country continues to exist as 'the land of the free and the home of the brave.'"

"Oh, I've ruined it! What shall I do? Virginia, do come here!"

Virginia came running from the dining room to the little flat where she and Allene Car had been keeping house for two years. Her face was flushed, and her eyes were wide with fright.

"What's happened in the world is the matter, child? Are you hurt? What is it?" she exclaimed—as she rushed into Allene's tiny bedroom and found that the same person in a shocking blue on the bed.

"Allene, what have you done? Come, fasten—You mustn't cry. Allene, speak to me!"

Allene lifted her tearstained face and brushed back a mass of thick golden hair. "I don't know, I don't know what I've done to my dress—it's ruined! Oh, Virginia I can't go to the ball, what will Win think? What will his mother think?"

"Think all over the front of my gown—my pretty new gown! Isn't it just terrible! There's no time to get anything else. If it wasn't a fancy dress party, I could manage, but I can't go in just an evening gown, and there is no possible way for me to get even a dress in time!"

Again the pretty head was buried in the pillow, and the slight form of the girl trembled.

Virginia looked with alarm and interest at the lovely flushy frock flung over a chair back. All over the front and down the skirt blue stain, a big blotchy stain that completely spoiled the pretty laces and chiffon.

Virginia knew that she looked on as her mother and sister were taken to Winston Scott just two weeks. She was to meet his mother for the first time that evening—the mother who was so critical, who was giving so constant pain to her daughter, who would expect great things from her daughter-in-law-bro.

Virginia knew that Winston Scott was not the sort of a woman to join with favor upon her own marriage with a girl who earned her own living; but she knew that her mother's sternest woman's heart with here got the manner and exact looking-dress of the girl was a chance.

"Don't cry, little sister, you can fix it all right. Come along with me. I may have something that will do, or we will see some of the dress-makers."

Wonderfully, the girl knelt into her room, where the old pink knelt beside a large trunk (taking out a package wrapped in tissue paper). Opening it, she held up a lovely cape

A few years before his death Grant paid a glowing public tribute to a man who he said was responsible for the recruiting of 100,000 volunteers for the northern cause during the Civil War. Probably no other man, the great commander declared, had been privileged to inspire so great a number of enlistments. Yet Jules Lumbard, who accomplished this marvelous result, had just died in Chicago, all but forgotten by the people of the nation. His name never appeared in "Who's Who." He was supported in his declining years not by a grateful republic, but by pension given him by a "heartle corporation" which he had once se ed.

Lumbar was thirty-three years of age when the Rebellion broke out. He was gifted with a wonderful vocal talent—strong, clear, sympathetic. He did not sing until the first time before a large audience, at the age of fifteen. When George F. Root wrote the "Star Spangled Banner" for the "City of Freedom," Jules Lumbar, and his brother Frank took the music and the talk of which was not yet, dry, and sang it for the first time before a large audience of 15,000 persons. The music stirred the patriotic spirit to its depths, and at the close of the song a thousand boys rallied around the flag and later marched to the front of the hall, where they had learned from Lumbar's lips.

The Lumbar boys repeated soul-stirring music at many another public gathering, and chousannance of the war. When the appeal, Jules Lumbar was the first to sing in public "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boys are Marching," and other of the Root productions, and he was the first to sing his own "Song of the Union of 'Just, Reform, the Boys are Marching'."

er." In all of the great cities of the country his musical appeal was heard, and later he went to the front as a volunteer. He felt that he was a soldier like veterans. He sang beside the camp fire and before troops before they formed in battle line. Once in battle he sang to the soldiers to give them courage in his burst of song on the night air. He silenced the intermittent snuffery and brought him an invitation from the soldiers to sing a southern song.

Lumbard sang "The Old Folks at Home" and "Swanee River Song" and "The Lincoln funeral service in Springfield, Ill., and moved to tears even the most level of the mourners in the "Victory" and "The Old Folks at Home" in the climax of his career as a war songster. Like the great Emancipator, he had finished the work that he had been called to do. He was a soldier of the country. Thirty years later, at the gathering in Omaha, where he had made his home for years, he sang the "Swanee River Song" as a memorial to those who had given their lives for "government of the people, by the people, for the people, might

A TALK WITH MOTHERS

It is inconceivable that a mother can have a daughter's interest so little at heart as to allow her to grow into womanhood without a knowledge of the useful part of life, yet we see young women with no idea of neatness or order, and with a decided dislike to useful and homely tasks. The mother who boasts that her daughter never made a bed in her life is not an isolated case—I have met more

Every girl should be taught to keep her own room in perfect order, every part of it should be rigidly inspected. There are rooms in some of the colleges and schools for boys. Habits formed early in life are likely to stick, and no mother can know too much of the practical side of daily living. The patient, weary mother of selfish girls deserves no sympathy, for she is only reaping the reward of her own careless supervision of childhood.

There are plenty of mothers who spoil children of both sexes by mistaken kindness. It is not kindness of the right brand to hamper a human being with ignorance in matters that affect every-day life. There are times innumerable when we all have to do unexpected work, and it does not matter when we know how to do it. Nobody expects to be absolutely prepared for emergencies, but the wise ones neglect no avenue of knowledge.
