Metropolitan Unitype Printing Company

OF NEW YORK CITY.

CAPITAL STOCK, 5000 SHARES,
$250,000. $50 Each

This Company offers for sale 2000 shares of its Capital stock at par, payable in four monthly installments. This company has secured the sole right in the district comprising the Counties of New York, Westchester, Richmond, Kings, Queens, and Suffolk, in the State of New York, and the Counties Hudson, and Essex, New Jersey, to use the inventions and processes of the

Graphic Process Co.,

of New York City, which has its experimental works located at the same place, in this county, where also the new factories will be established.

The processes and inventions of Graphic Process Co. consist of valuable improvements for disposing with movable type, as well as improved machines for type-writing. These concessions will enable the

Unitype Printing Company

To do the legal printing which in the territory mentioned amounts to about $2,000,000 each year, at one-quarter the present cost.

Parties interested may see the machine in operation at the Graphic Process Company's model shop, at Pleasantville.

HINTS FOR THE SEASON.

Those who contemplate making lawns should avail themselves of the present wet season, and attend to it at once. There could be no better time, and it might as well be understood that our sandy soils, earth thrown out of the cellar, or in fact any laud that has not been recently cultivated and well enriched, will require a heavy dressing to secure a good lawn. Three inches of good fresh stable manure, that is not very strawy, spaded in deeply, with a good sprinkling of ground bone and chicken manure raked in for immediate effect, will be none too much. Do not pay a big price for mixed lawn grass seed: these mixtures are made to sell, and honest seedmen will tell you that Kentucky blue grass and white clover are better.

HEDGES AND EVERGREENS.

If this wet weather continues, this is the very best season for planting hedges and removing evergreens.

W. F. BASSETT.

Congressman Mills, in his campaign speech in West Virginia the other night used the flippant and ridiculous statement that the average reduction of duty made by his bill is less than 7 per cent, and he wants to know if that is Free Trade. This statement is dishonest and misleading, and everyone who uses such a statement knows it to be. There are a number of articles not touched by the bill. Its supporters were compelled to yield to members on the Democratic side in this particular and leave some duties unchanged in order to get votes for the measure. But there are nearly 100 articles on which the reduction is 100 per cent, in other words have been put on the free list. There are a large number of others reduced from 50 to 80 per cent; a still larger number reduced from 30 to 50 per cent, while the reduction on many more ranges from 15 to 30 per cent. This is naturally what the Free-traders call a good beginning in the direction of Free Trade. It justifies their claim.

If the bill was really what the average reduction claim is dishonestly intended to imply, the Free-traders would not be so well pleased with it as they are. It would not suit Chairman Mills himself, or any of his Democratic associates on the Ways and Means Committee. They have had to yield some of their original ground in order to get the votes of Democratic members from Northern and even some Southern districts, but they have not yielded their purpose. That is Free Trade, and this measure, as they have proclaimed, is but an entering wedge.

The announcement that Ex-Secretary Bristow, who committed Mugwumpery in 1884, will vote for Harrison this year is creditable to Mr. Bristow and gratifying to the Republican party. The weary wanderers are hurrying home.

If silence were golden Mr. Cleveland would be piling up wealth very rapidly nowadays. What he has not said with reference to the issues of the campaign would fill several rather long letters of acceptance.

The Republican party becomes increasingly proud of its candidate for president the better it comes to know him.

Henry George again declares that "Grover Cleveland stands before the country as the champion of Free Trade against Protection." The full realization of this fact is what is worrying Mr. Cleveland so terribly.

Five people were killed, many injured and at least $500,000 worth of property destroyed by a cyclone which swept over Delaware, Tuesday night.

The Southern storm worked general devastation throughout Louisiana and over $500,000 damage was done to coal craft alone.

In the Senate the Fisheries Treaty was rejected by a strict party vote, 27 to 30.

Two young lions were born at the Zoo in Philadelphia last Sunday.

Prominent Irish-Americans are being enlisted for Republican campaign work in Indiana.

A large band of Sioux started off from Pine Ridge Reservation, Dak., despite commands to remain, and, as it is believed they contemplate a massacre, troops have started in pursuit.

Maine Republicans are working to secure 20,000 majority in the state election on September 10.

Of the 1,700,000 voters in the three states, New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, whose vote will decide the next presidential election, fully one-half are in industries directly protected by the tariff and threatened by the Mills bill. No wonder that Mr. Frank Hurd says that the Democrats cannot win in New York this year.

The esteemed New York World declares that "true Americans do not go to England for an interpretation of their national policy and politics." That is about the heaviest thump that Mr. Cleveland has received from any Democratic organ.

Mrs. C. D. Harland, of Philadelphia, was struck by a base-ball on the beach at Atlantic City and severely injured.

The Democratic newspapers are all waiting for the big man at Washington to strike a keynote. His delay in doing so is due to the fear on his part that instead of striking a keynote he may strike out.

The leading Mormon organ—the Salt Lake Herald—is enthusiastically in favor of Cleveland and Thurman. It stands solid for polygamy and reform.

CHARMED BY GAMBLING.

The Strong Hold Which This Vice Has on Its Victims.

Of all vices gambling, perhaps, takes the strongest hold upon its victim. There is no crime more common than will follow with such a blind infatuation.

Gambling has been common among most nations, civilized and uncivilized. Tacitus informs us that the ancient Germans were so addicted to it that they stripped of everything else, they would stake at last their liberty and even their lives; the loser going into voluntary slavery, and the conqueror, younger and stronger than his antagonist, suffering himself to be bound and sold.

It is astonishing how infatuated people will become in the pursuit of gambling. It is reported of Charles Porter, who, in the reign of Queen Anne, possessed a fortune of £100,000, that he gambled away the whole of it at hazard in the space of six months.

It is reported of Charles Porter, who, in the reign of Queen Anne, possessed a fortune of £100,000, that he gambled away the whole of it at hazard in the space of six months. This madman, for we can call him nothing else, when he was just completing the loss of his fortune, at a gambling-house in London, and was proceeding down the stairs to throw himself into a carriage to be conveyed home to his house in town, he was arrested more than once to retrieve his losses, and immediately returned to the room where the play was going on.

POPULAR MELODIES.

Composers of the Tunes that Please.

How many of the thousands upon thousands who daily throng, hum or sing to the strains of the popular songs of the day pause to wonder who composed them? How many think of where, and under what circumstances, they were written, and how much money they put into the pockets of the authors?

It is safe to say very few. Yet there are many interesting facts connected with the birth and subsequent popularity of these songs. A new air is introduced, and for a time no one knows it. But the orchestra take it up, the bands play it in the streets and soon the small boy is whistling it on every thoroughfare.

Now the business man unconsciously hums it as he hurries to his office. Even the land organ man tortures the public with its too often heard and worn-out strains. The melodies have made the fortunes of the composers, while many others of much greater merit have been sold for a trifle, and have afterwards languished upon a purchaser's hands, never again to be heard.

Some of the well-known songs which are now at the zenith of their popularity were composed by our State printers and were published when the author regarded his liberty. Nearly all of the really successful song-writers are singers upon the stage, and it is not surprising that those who sing before the public acquire the faculty of catching the public ear and of producing melodies that take.

When a song is sold outright the composer receives any where from $5 to $25 for his work and relinquishes all claim to money received from its subsequent use. The more conservative of the writers, however, give their productions to a publisher and retain a royalty upon them, usually about ten per cent., and if the song scores a hit they reap large returns from its sale.

Of this latter class Frank Howard, who was a tenor singer with the minstrel troupes of the West, is perhaps one of the most noteworthy examples. Howard composes both the music and the words of his songs, and has a popular reputation as a writer of the present day.

Another very popular composer is Banks Winter, who sang tenor in the minstrel troupe with Howard. Winter made his reputation singing Howard's song of "I'll Awit My Love." He then wrote "White Wings" and scored a success which is only exceeded by the success of "The Song That Reached My Heart," which is now familiar to nearly every one.

There is a thirteen-year-old boy in Cambridge who is a great "society man" and who is referred to by his friends on all points of etiquette. He was overheard one day giving some "pointers" to a boy about his age, but who had apparently none of his friend's aplomb.

LIVING ON THEIR SHAPES.

How Two Harlequin Dudes Were Taken In by a Southern Hotel Proprietor.

Two perfectly-dressed young men met recently at the Springs. They recognized each other with that exaggerated assumption of ennui which duos affect so much.

"Hello, old chaps!" drawled one, leaning a little to the right and raising his eye-brows and retain in its place a single eye-glass at the same time.

"Why, I discovered that they were boarding young men at the White Sulphur Springs Hotel. Of course, the chaps had to be good dancers and know how to flirt. But I didn't mind the work so much. Dandy lot of girls there for dancing."

"He must have been beastly close, Cholly." "He was, dear fell'." Then the two young men turned into Domenico's and drank two glasses of milk.

How Americans Invite Sunstroke. Before Capt. Crockett assumed command of the steamship Devonia he spent many years as first officer on steamers plying through the Mediterranean and Suez canal to East India ports.

Thatcher, Primrose & West produced from their minstrels another composer in Julius Jindra. He wrote "The Melody Divine," "The Picture on the Wall," and "The Song That Reached My Heart," which is now familiar to nearly every one.

FASHION NOTES.

China crepe neckerchiefs, the prevailing and embroidered, are the prevailing fashion for the season.

China crepe neckerchiefs, the prevailing and embroidered, are the prevailing fashion for the season. The newest India silks are in cashmere colors, and next summer's costumes will doubtless, a majority of them, show these effects.

Among the latest importations was a lovely dress for a little girl of bangaline in two colors. The body and princess back were of the dark color, the skirt of a lighter shade.

The redingote dress is very useful and practical for a traveling dress, or for walking in the country, or on the beach. It is made in two different styles, one with a high collar and another with a low collar.

A LAROE English farmer says that his manure which is taken from the stables and piled up under a shed all winter is worth in the spring four times as much as the manure which is exposed to the weather.

THE experience of the closest students in dairying is that less corn meal and more comfort in the way of clean water, and more bran, oats, etc., are the cheapest and best cow rations.

A LACK of pasturage must be supplied in the form of some other kind of food. If the number of cattle be few and the pasture large, with abundant water, but little manure will be required for growing stock, though much corn should be fed all they will eat.

THE practice of giving a final cultivation to corn and then allowing the crop to remain until matured, whether the field be covered with grass or not, is a method which is being practiced more and more as a necessary wintering regard to its stage of growth.

THE experiments of Dr. Voelcker, of the Royal Society of England, prove that manure gradually depreciates by keeping, even under the very best management. It gains in water and loses in value, the more water it has spent in the fermentation. It stands to reason, if this be true, that the old-fashioned method of turning and working over manure is a waste of labor and using is wasteful and to be avoided.

HOUSEHOLD.

FRESH SALADS ought not to be long in water; they withered only long enough to crisp them. The outside leaves are washed away, the inner ones parted, well rinsed, and then mixed and if necessary, plunged into salt and water for a few minutes, which will quickly free the leaves of any insect that may cling to them. A colander or salad basket to drain and then into a napkin held by its four corners, and shaken lightly until the water hanging about it is removed. Handle the salad as little as possible in cutting. Do not mix it with dressing until the moment of serving, and then it is usual to put the liquid at the bottom of the bowl and stir it up just before serving. Salads of fish, meat or potatoes are better made half an hour before they are used, excepting such as are mixed with leaf salad. Let olives or onions be banded apart when used, not mixed in, as so many object to the flavor.

Rumors have reached us that certain

Republicans in this county threaten to cause the defeat of Hon. J. B. Nixon if he should be re-nominated for Assemblyman,

because he voted for the high license local-option law, last winter. Wonder if these men have considered what the consequences of such action might be? The Democracy control the National House of Representatives, but are handicapped by a Republican U. S.

Senate. The Senate has now but two

Republican majority, counting Senator

Ridderberger, whose term expires next

March, and a Democrat has already been chosen to succeed him. Should all other seats remain as they are, there would be a tie on all political questions.

Then, suppose a Democratic Vice President sits in the Chair, to cast a deciding vote! The Mills bill, or the next lower step in the down grade, would easily be passed, and a Democratic President would winfully sign it. The eyes of the whole country are upon New Jersey, asking us to elect a Republican Legislature, who will choose a Republican to succeed Democratic Senator McPherson,

and prevent the spoliation of our country's presidency by Democratic mismanagement. It is claimed by some that men interested in the liquor traffic are

Republicans only so long as the party can be used to advance their interests.

The defeat of Mr. Nixon would go far to sustain this statement, and have a tendency to alienate many from the party. Let us each be true, and New Jersey will go into the Republican column next November.

AFRICAN DIAMOND MINES.

The Horrors of the Route to the Kimberly Diamond Mines.

Skeletons by the thousand studded the sides of the truck— skeletons of mules and oxen that had fallen in their tracks, victims to the rapacity and greed of the bullock wagon owners. There they lay, with the scanty, sword-edged scarf grass growing up through the ribs, the haunt of sand snakes and lizards: birds nesting in the eyes, and the word flies carries no meaning with it. As the cart dashed along, they rose in myriads from these carcasses, and swooped down upon the occupants, hanging on by the score, until every traveler was sick with a nameless disgust and pain.

Forty miles with two short halts, in which the horses' mouths were sponged out, and then on, on, over this scorching Gehenna, this terrible alkali plain, the dust of which blew up in blinding clouds, and with the burning, almost vertiginous rays of the sun beating over head as only an African sun can. From Orange River the journey was almost a dream, as fatigue, want of sleep, want of exercise, badly digested food and a number of small items, produced a stupor that was not broken until the breakfast halt of the last day. Then every one awoke to a certain extent, and gazed eagerly at the horizon, on which lay a dense fog of loose gray clouds. Every now and again the fog seemed to lift somewhat, and soon little white tents appeared on the velvet on each side of the road, but some little distance from it; as we dashed past, these were seen to be surrounded with piles of matter, known as "sorted stuff," which were the piles of earth, carted from the "fields" to these outlying colonies of the Boers, to be sorted over by the wife and children without molestation. Then, at intervals, appeared frame houses, with canvas walls, and then what we had taken to be fog resolved itself into a dense cloud of acid dust, raised by the daybreak wind from the west. Thus, mingling with the calciferous matter arising from the thousands of mines at the diggings, filled the air like a sirocco, falling on the travelers in whiter-gray clouds, covering their clothes, filling their ears, their nostrils, nauseating them to the last degree, as dirty, unwashed, unshaven, dusty, red-eyed, bruised and weary unto death, the cart load of "new chums" rolled into Kimberly.

The German in New York.

The German gets a great deal of pleasure out of life. A young man of any standing at all belongs to half a dozen organizations, and has friends in many more, so that he can choose between three or four excursions every Sunday through the summer. Meanwhile the grave, steady fathers and mothers sit around the edges of the dancing floor and beam serenely on the festivity, while the children sit with them or play around among the tables. For absolute enjoyment, "gemuthlichkeit," free and hearty, yet entirely innocent, there is nothing like a festival of the Germans. Their American fellow citizens might well take a leaf out of their book, and learn to relax reasonably on occasions, and to take the wife and children along.

Michigan's Gold Mine.

A special despatch to the New York Times from Detroit says: "Since 1845 it has been known that gold existed in the upper peninsula of Michigan. In the fall of that year Dr. Douglass Houghton, the geologist, who discovered copper on Keweenaw Point, and pointed out the probability that iron ore existed in considerable quantities, found gold in what is now Baraga county. He had a goosequill full of small grains of pure gold, and showed it to Peter Cressass, of L'Anse, and to other parties. Unfortunately he was drowned a few days later in L'Anse Bay, and the secret of the gold mine he discovered perished with him. Since then the richest copper mines of the world have been developed on and near Keweenaw Point, and the iron ore mines of Marquette, Menominee and Gogebic counties have become famous for the purity of their ores and the extent of their ore deposits. It is only recently, however, that the importance of Dr. Houghton's discovery of gold has been recognized in the district. In November, 1887, Mr. Julius Ropes, of Ishpeming, 15 miles west of Marquette, found that the serpentine group four miles north of Ishpeming carried gold-bearing quartz. Mr. Ropes kept the discovery to himself and kept on exploring. In 1880 he discovered a promising quartz vein, and in the spring of 1881 found the "leaders" of the quartz vein on which the Ropes gold mine is now located. The Ropes Gold and Silver Mining Company was organized in July, 1881, and active mining work was begun. In March, 1883, a 5-stamp mill was built; in November, 1884, a 25-stamp mill was erected, and within the last month a 50-stamp mill was started up. The Ropes mine is now nearly 500 feet deep, and $125,000 in gold and silver bullion and concentrates have been taken out of the mine since the first five-stamp mill began work.

The German in New York.

There are plenty of things to do to keep the German youth out of mischief. There are the singing societies of all degrees and kinds, and if there is any better glee singing by male voices than may be heard often on a summer night floating out on the open windows of some little hall on one of the cross streets, it would be hard to convince the people that sit on the steps around and listen to it of the fact.

The German in New York.

The German is born with the love of music innate, and he cultivates it to the utmost. Many and many a tannery break loose from their usual steady economy and squander the savings of a month in a night of German opera. Then there are the turnerians, that teach all sorts of accomplishments in their schools, and supplement them by the most wonderful gymnastic and calisthenic exercises. The better class of Bowery theatres are also much resorted to. Of these the Thalia has led the list in popularity. The German is not a solitary animal when he seeks pleasure. On the contrary, he has the excellent idea that the more of his relatives and friends he can have around him enjoying the spectacle simultaneously the better time he will have himself. So at all his amusements partake of a family character.

The German in New York.

In Austria school-teachers who have taught twenty years have their salaries raised every year until they have taught as long as they are able to reach thirty years of school work, when they are retired upon the salary which they last year of teaching, this being paid by the State.

ANOTHER MAD-STONE.

The Tradition is That it was Found in the Stomach of a Barren Doe.

William Burton, of No. 4204 W. 10th-avenue, has a mad-stone. The whole Burton family speak of "The Rock" with a keen sense of appreciation of its merits. It would be entitled to respect if only for its age. Mr. Burton is 70 years old, but regards himself as a mere infant by comparison. His father had it before him, and tradition has it that "The Rock" has been in the family a century or more.

"The Rock" is a mad-stone of great fame. None of the family can tell how they came to get it. Family tradition says it was found in the stomach of a barren doe. The stone is far from imposing in appearance and was possibly created to illustrate the proverb, "Handsome is that handsome does." It is, however, peculiar, even if it is not imposing. It is perhaps an inch in diameter and half an inch thick. It strongly suggests bone and is light in color and weight. It is perforated with natural circular holes, eight or ten in number, arranged in parallel rows. These holes are about a sixteenth of an inch in diameter, and porous about the edge and extend through the stone within an eighth of an inch. The circumference is ragged, as though the stone was originally larger and had been broken off on the edges. For convenience sake a wad of beeswax is attached to the back which holds on a small wire handle. When the stone is used the perforated surface is applied to the wound. It proceeds to draw upon the wound and as soon as it becomes saturated or "clogged" it is put in boiling water. Mr. Burton has used milk for this purpose, but finds water more satisfactory for cleaning purposes. The operation is repeated as many times as is deemed necessary.

A recent case was little Gertrude McGrath, 4 years old, the daughter of a neighbor. In her case the stone was applied immediately, and there is no pretence that the dog was mad. A small boy named Abets, living at No. 4430 Broadway avenue, was also treated. The stone was applied forty-eight hours after the boy was bitten, and his hand was badly swollen. It was applied three times and reduced the swelling entirely. This was several weeks ago and no bad results have followed although the dog was supposed to be rabid. A little Burke boy and a little McNiff boy, living on Root street were among others treated.

"I won't say that 'The Rock' has cured hundreds of cases of hydrophobia, because it isn't possible to say that Mr. Burton... But I will say for it that never has the patient suffered any bad consequences from the bite when it has been applied."

A Chinese Baby.

No sooner is a Chinese boy born into the world than his father proceeds to write down eight characters or words, each set of two representing respectively the exact hour, day, month and year of his birth. These are handed by the father to a fortune teller, whose business it is to draw up from them a certain book of fate, generally spoken of as the boy's "pat-tze," or "eight characters." Herein the fortune teller describes the good and evil which the boy is likely to meet with in after life, and the means to be adopted in order to secure the one and to avert the other. In order to understand something of the value of this document, we must glance at the Chinese method of reckoning time. There are only twelve Chinese hours to our twenty-four. Beginning with 11 P. M. to 1 A. M., which is their first hour, the names are rat, ox, tiger, rabbit, dragon, snake, horse, sheep, monkey, cock, dog and pig. As everybody is supposed to partake more or less of the nature of the animal at whose hour he is born, it appears obvious that a rat, it would never do to send a rabbit boy to the school of a tiger schoolmaster. Hence the importance of consulting the "pat-tze" of both parties before entering upon any kind of agreement. It is a fact that it is thus referred to on every important occasion. The "pat-tze" having received the first attention, the father proceeds himself before the ancestral tablets, and there offers up thanksgiving for the birth of his boy. In every home in China a room, or, among the poorer, a niche in the wall of their common room, is set apart for the worship of ancestors. The names of those of the four past generations are painted on wooden tablets, before which, night and morning, as well as on other special occasions, joss sticks are burned in honor of the departed. The father next visits the temple of the goddess called "mother." She is supposed to look after the welfare of all children until they arrive at the age of 6. Here incense and oblations of fruit, etc., are offered, and the goddess is requested to look with favor upon the precious boy.
