How She Earned the Mon y. It s no use talking any more about it Sully .- You know very well I can't afford it. Almost ten dollars for a clothes wringer. Why its enough to be pestered for money to buy new clothes to wring. Your mother and grandinother managed to wring the clothes with their own industrious hands. They wa'nt so ofraid of using their "But husband," then interposed the wife, taking advantage of a hill in the storm of indignation, "it is not a question of hands mainly, although mine are eadly blistered by wringing hard and heavy clothes. A wringer costs but nine dollars, he very best of them. while some are much cheaper, and they will save clothing that much in a short time "

"Humph, who says so?! grunted, the farmer, from his cloud of tobacco smoke. "Every one who uses them," replied Mrs. Brown. "They do not wear the clothes as the twisting of hand wringing always does, and the wringer leaves them so nuch dryer, and they do not freeze so hard on the line, consequently they are not broken in a slight wind. Besides they dry so much quicker, which often saves their being-beaten about by storms." Some agent has been telling you a fine story with which to bamboozle me out o nine dollars. You seem to have learned it all by heart, too?"

'I have seen no agent," replied the wite, with scarcely repressed indignation. "Mrs Jones has used a wringer for years, and she says it sayes her half the labor of washing besides the wear of the clothes.'

"Well I wish Mrs Jones would had her tongue. - You women are always setting each other to teasing us poor men out of every moment's peace and every cent of I mistake not my husband likes to have money. If you had the money to earn, it me.

Sally sat thinking to herself : "If I had the money to caro !. I should like to know if I don't help to care the money just as neuch when I am toiling over the heated cook-stove, preparing the lood for the men and boys; as if I were out in the pleasant fields, driving the horses, or gathering and binding the grain."

No money to spend! Money enough for farm implements, from the corn planter, and the cultivator, to the mower, the reap er, and the threships machine, of all prices and of every size, until the yard is literally filled with them. And these were all nec essary. She really could not see why. Her grandfather dug holes for the corn with his own industrious hands, and made the boys follow after to drop the corn, and fill up the hills. In those good old days they bent their backs over the seythe at the earliest peep of day instead or riding lazily along on a mowing machine.

"I'll have a wringer if I go out washing to pay for it," was her mental dismissal of the subject, as she put up her sewing that vening. It seemed as if Providence had intended o assist her in her resolution. Hardly was breakfast over the next morning, and the men folks out sto work, when a boy from a neighboring town came to the farm house door.

"Please ma'am," said he, "can you tell where our folks can get a girl to help through harvest? Father told me to take the wagon and ride till I found one. He wants me to bring one home with me if it is possible, but I have been trying two or three days before, and I don't see any chance for us as yet. Every one is harvesting, and all the gir's are busy everywhere I go."

" Have your folks a wringer " Yes."

'And a washing machine?' "Yes. A first rate one; I ran it myself overy wack."

What kind of a churn ?" "Oh, we don't wish the girl to do the churning, father says it is too hard for the women folks so we take turns in doing it. "What wages do you pay?"

"Father told me to offer three dollars a week in harvest, and if I found a good one, he would pay four."

"Well, I will go with you, if my mother s willing."

Then packing a few necessary articles nto a small valise, she accompanied the lelighted boy to his home.

Great was farmer Brown's astonishment upon returning home to dinner to find upon the table, instead of tempting viands, his wite's note. It was carefully kind, and he had really nothing of which to complain, but it was appalling. Six hungry men and boys. Dinner time and no dinner. Worse than all no wife to find fault with for the lelay. The closets were tanencked, and, a heaty most was the result : but the store was still cold and they all thought they would have no dinner.

"But why on nirth didn't Sally write no where she was going. Perhaps some of her folks are dead. Harvest time, too. How can we manage to get along. Heav ens and airth; where can I get a hired girl Business! what can a woman have to call her away from home in harvest? Farmer Brown. A girl was hired after a long and vexaand the meals all served so late, that the hungry men were glad to get them in any condition. The harvesters grumbled, and a part deserted him when the hurry was greatest, and quite a quantity of grain was ost in consequence of not being stacked before a heavy rain.

Just three weeks after her departure Mrs. Brown alighted from a wagon, and entered her own house. Disorder and dirt reigned supreme, but with the aid of the girl, who really tried to do her best, and needed only careful supervision, she suc reeded in changing the aspect of the kitch en and sitting room in a few hours.

When the men folks came to dinner, the table wore its former inviting look and the profty hostess sat at its head, in her accustomed place. Farmer B. was so delighted that he forgot the lecture he hadso carefaily prepared, through three weeks of inlignation, for her return.

Murat's Son-HIS LIFE IN NEW JERSEY AND IN PARIS.

A CONTRAST. The dramatic aspect which even the more serious political life of France exhibits, was illustrated by a single contrast which apealed to my observation and memory. A few months prior to a visit to Paris. I had passed a summer week at Bordentown, New, ersey, where Joseph Bonaparte found such congenial exile from the "smooth bar-barity of courts." Any one disposed to question the philosophical content he manfosted when perambulationg the beautiful pine-groves of his domain at Point Breeze. as, with hatchet in hand, he strolled through their fragrant arcades, and lopped away the dead branches, or entertained some foreign visitor at his hospital board, should read the lately published correspondence between him and his imperial brother The unaffected weariness and vexation expressed at the cares of state and the unweltrance, prove that his taste was allied to the enjoyments of private and personal in dependence. Whoever has sailed down the Delaware with this amiable man who literally had royalty thrust upon him, cannot forget the bonhommie and complacent simplicity with which he would begin a story, When I was King of Spain," an exordi um truly startling on the deck of the little steamboat which, in those days, plied along the stuggish river, with its freight of Republican citizens. Recalling his domain and my sojourn in Paris was indeed a magcal contrast. The hurel trees were in blossom in the Jersey woods, and balsamic stood in full and tasselled ranks in the field: huge sycamores and catalnas cast a dense and graceful shade; the roses of June made gay the parterres; old brick dwe!lings with Dutch parches, flanked by many windows, ine the village street; and one is sentin- she wants you to get a carriage for for her elled by an oak said to have been planted by William Penn; a Quaker silence and order seems to brood over the hamlet, from which zou emerge into just such a park as diversifies English scenery, or ride through se questered reads by patches of timothy. orchards, wheat fields and hay-ricks. It was in the midst of these rural images and this quiet country that the villa of King Joseph tood; its appointments and surroundings inted a curious mixture of Italian, English and French-a picture gallery such as we find in the palazzi of Florence and Rome groves and meadows like those of Chesire; eds of undoubted Parisian garniture; moaio tables of Tuscan workmanship; a library rich in continental lore; documents pertaining to foreign rule, and yielding materials for modern history, on the same table with the Philadelphia Gazette; birds unmolested singing in the tree-tops, and rabbits flitting across the path as in the land of game-laws and poschers; these, throne of France, it was a secondary personage in the Napoleanic drama who now, illustrated to my fancy the marvels of political vicissitudes. Sitting in the tavern-perch of that through the fields, with a dog and gun, improvident, born to personify the "fellow about town," ready to join the first passing acquaintance good-natured and boastful, not without the ingering pride of the decayed gentleman, but too social a humor, and in circumstances too straightened to admit of an exclusive taste in companionship. On Sundays, at the village church, the tall and elegant daughter, whose proud features and reserved manner seemed prophetic of a better fortune, won every eye. This didn't suit the notions of the worthy landlord. "Little boy," said he, in a paternal manner, "if you want to drum, you must do the drumming outside of the house." The wayward youngling aughed the landlord to scorn. Instead of stopping he accelerated the movement of the sticks. The worthy host serenely tookhim hy the scruff of the neck and placed him in the back yard. -

About two minutes afterward the youngster's mother came down stairs, fairly blazing with ire. She was a gorgeously gotten ap widow. She opened a masked battery of invectives against her modest landlord. He endured it with all the mildness that clusters around a dish of early lamb. "I'll leave this house instantly." was the remark with which she wound up her torrent of excited words. She had no coner finished this sentence

She may have glanced at the battered balustrade, and possibly an idea struck her that her O car wasn't quite an angel just yet. Certain it was she didn't expect to leave the house. It was equally certain from her altered manner that she didn't want to do so. She hauled in her horns to the extent of several luches. # A Practical Joke.

A-gentleman of considerable talent as ar orator, became a member of a legislative body in one of the Eastern states. In speak ing, he was addicted to an odd babit of handling his spectacles: first placing them on his nose-suffering them to remain minute or two-throwing them upon his forehead, and finally folding them up and laying them before him upon the dest. One day a very important question came up for consideration, and he commenced a speech in opposition. A friend to the prowithal, determined to spoil the house, provided himself with a dozen pair of spectacles. The member commenced his speech with his usual ability. But a few minutes had elapsed before he was at work with his spectacles, and fleatly got them upon his forehead. At this juncture our wag who stood ready, laid another pair upon the desk before the speaker. These the mother to intereste for him. Dh. Schnack's Privosio Synur for the cure of Ednamption, colds, and coughs. Dt. Schenck's Sea Weed Tonjo for the cure o Dyspesia and all the deblitated conditions of Dysposia and all the debutated continuous the stomes it.

Dr. Schencks Mandrake Pille, for disease of the liver or to act as a gortle gurgative.

All of these three medicines are often required in outlar consumption, though the Pulmonic Syrup alone has cuted many thesperfile cases.

The Schweed Tonic and Mandrake Pille; assisting that the pulmonic Syrup to digest and scarce through the Pulmonic Syrup to digest and scarce through the blood ressels, by which means a cure is soon effected.

The Pulmonic Syrup is a medicine which had a long probation before the public. Its val has in a le through a period of more than thirty New Years, in all' of which time its reputation has increased, and the most obstinate skepticism and the model of the list it is a remedy which anylic used with confidence in all cases which can no longer doubt that it is a remedy which and high cued with confidence in all cases which admit of a cure.

If the patient will perseveringly follow the directions which accompany each bottle, he will certainly be cured, if his lungs are not too much wasted to make a cure possible. Even in cases appaced to he incurable, when friends and physicians have despaired, the use of this medicine has saved the life of the patient and restored him to perfect health.

Dr. Schenek does not say that all cases of pulmonary consumption are within treach of med cinc, but he emphatically arsorts that often when patients have the most alarming symptoms, such as a wident cough, creeping chills, night sweathed greef if they are obliged to lie bed, and when they are obliged to lie bed, and when they are given up by their physicians 'hey, may still be lungs, but when the lungs are very sadly d'acased cured. No medical treatment can cut to new lungs, but when the lungs are very sailly diseased and do some extent destroyed, a cure may be effected by Dr. Schencks medicines.

Also in scorfulous diseases, these modicines are equally efficient. Dr. Schenck has photographs of a number of persons who have been nearly cordered with running sorts, and now all healed paper that healed has been nearly considered with running sorts, and now all healed has been considered as the lungs. must be done to heal cavifits in the lungs.

In the treatment of consumption it is of the uninest importance to give vigor and a healthy tong to the system. Hence it is necessary to strengthen the appoint of the patient and improve the direction. Proper nearrishment is required rogether with such means, as will make the food, easily dige-tible. The articles most suitable for the diet of consumptive patients are distributed gratuitionely. In general, the most highly natritions articles are to be preferred, but the digestive organs must be strengthened in 61. highly natritious articlus are to be preferred, but the digestive regars must be strengthened to order to make either food or invelicing regrisement is not by the Scaweed Tonio and for this purpose it was designated.

When the digestive powers are put in good wallog the food hards purpose effect, the system of the patient is invigorated and the lungs height to exercise their functions in a normal and healify manner. Then the healing powers of the Pulmonic Syrup will complete the cure.

Pulmonary cooxumption is almost always upon manner. Then the healing powers at the Pulmonie Symp will complete the cure.

Pelmonary consumption is a different along again plicated with dyspepsia, and liver complaint.
Schenck's Mandrake Pills are intended to remove obstructions from the liver and restore it healthy action. They have all the efficacy which is ascribed to calomel or "blue mess," and are warranted not to coutain a particle of any inhaeral poison. These pills cure the most obstituate constituences, sick headache, piles, bitti aus affections, and all ather disputes which, arise from a forpid or obstructed condition of the liver. One bux of these pills will prove the efficacy of the modifine. In consumption the Searced Tonic and Mandrake, pills are levaluable anxiliery medicines. They rate will be efficient out the a cure. They have been found useful in advanced stages of consumption, where the lungs are al most entirely destroyed and all symptems accerding to the judgment of the physicians, indicted specify death. The Healthy Falliants who were actually in a dying condition have been preserved for months by the use of Schenck's three great remedies.
