From Reedley, California.

A letter from Henry Zielz, dated August 20th, reads in part thus :

-We have found this a wonderful place for fruit. We get all that we can use, and if we offer to pay, they refuse to accept it: and if we are backward about going to get it, they bring it to the house. It is strange if a day passes without having several melons. They are abipped-from here at the rate of three to six carloads a day; and the season laste, I am told, from the middle of June to nearly October.

Peaches are beautiful here, both in eize and color. A friend told me of twenty-eight peaches weighing forty pounds. We had a bunch of grapes that measured saven and a half inches in width and fourteen and a-half-inches long, and weighed four pounds. We are told that there are often bunches as largo agalo.

We are delighted with California, and our lines have fallen in pleasant places, so far as locality and neighbors are concerned. But we do not forget our old home and friends in Hammonton, often wishing we could have Jersey and California together.

Kindly remember me to any inquiring

At the Circus.

Howe's circus drew a very large crowd last Saturday, and gave good eatlefaction as a show. But there were very objectionable features in connection with it, which made a repetition of its visit quite undesirable. Various gambling schemes, -- prize envelopes. wheels, etc., were used openly; flim-flam, in the way of shortage in change, and numbers of other swindles, are reported.

Well, we have no aympathy with those who lost in the gambling gamesserved them right. As to the change, we never have any twenty-dollar bills ; but if we had one, or a ten, we wouldn't take it to a circus,—they are much alike, and have the same old tricks to get money.

The matter in "this space is furnished by the Ladies, and they are responsible for it,

It has been a surprise to some how it was possible for so many saloonkeepers to fit up their places of business in such expensive styles. Stained glass windows, electric lights, polished wood, mirrors, and pictures are lavtellly used, and semetimes the brightest, most startling spot in all the block is the drinking shop.

The simple explanation is that the parties who supply the funds for some of this display are the wholesale liquor dealers or the browers. Many of the saloon keepers are only agents of these powerful organizations.

TOPIC FOR SEPTEMBER 5, 1909. LIFE LESSONS FOR ME FROM THE BOOK OF HOMANS. Rom. 12:1-21. (Consecration Meeting.) The first eleven chapters of the opis-tie to the Romans are devoted to a careful and very explicit setting forth of fundamental ruths concerning man's his baccalaureate sermon before the faculty and students in the chapfel in New Haven. His subject was "Faith in Man." He took his text from Psalms 15:1-3: "Lord, who shall abide in Thy tabernacie? Who shall dwell in Thy holy hill? He that walketh uprightly, and worketh in his heart. He that backbleth not in his heart. He that backbleth not in his heart. He that backbleth not in his neighbor, nor taketh up a reproach against his neighbor." In the course of his sermon President Hadley said: In order to accomplish anything great, a man must have two sides to his goodness: a personal side and a social side. He must be upright himself and he must believe in the good intentions and possibilities of others about him.

We recognize the first of these things. We know that the leader must have principles of his own:

Multiplication in literature or science and studied history or literature or science are always times which look in the town had to give the unwelcome advice that a desired end cannot be reached by a short cut.

There are always times when a man who is clear-headed is reproached with being hard-hearted. But if you vourselves keep your faith in your fellow men, these things, though they be momentary him, the larger part of the extent of our privileges in Christ, and God's purposes concerning are a presentation of some of the more important obligations that devolve upon Christians by reason of their relationship to Christ, and the last chapter to contains greetings and final exhortations and a magnificent peroration.

The lirst leason which this should teach us, then, is that it is of extreme importance to us to understand the extent of our privileges in Christ, and deexly our position in God's sight, and the extent of our privileges in Christ, and clearly our position in God's sight, and the extent of our privileges in Christ, and the extent of our privileges in Christ, and th

CHILESE RAVENATI LOAD AND AMERICAN INTERESTS

INCE the announcement of the desire of financiers of the United States, supported by President Taft, to participate in the proposed loan of $27,500,000 for the financing of the Hankow-Szechuan Railroad line in China, much interest has been tions involved in this international relation of the oldest and newest of the world's great nations. From the beginning of .

railroad construction in China the aid of American financiers has been anxiously sought, and for some obvious reasons very decidedly preferred to that coming from less disinterested quarters. About six weeks before the opening of the line of ratiway between Canton and Fatshan, constructed by the American China Development Company, was characterized by the Colonial Secretary of Hongkong as an event of national and international significance, Prince Ching concluded with Sir Ernest Satow an agreement containing the following provision: "It China desires to construct a Hankow-Szechuan line, and her capital is insufficient, she will obtain all necessary foreign capital from Great Britain and the United States." This was on Oct. 1, 1903, and the understanding appears to have been formally renewed with Minister Conger in the following year.

The death of the controlling spirit of the America-China Development Company, Calvin E.
