DR. JOHN BULL'S Smith's Tonic Syrup

FOR THE CURE OF FEVER and AGUE Or CHILLS and FEVER, AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

BULL'S SARSAPARILLA is the old and reliable remedy for impurities of the blood and scurfy affections—the King of Blood Purifiers.

DR. JOHN BULL'S VEGETABLE WORM DESTROYER is prepared in the form of candy drops, attractive to the sight and pleasant to the taste.

Where do You Live?

I knew a man and his name was Horner, Who used to live on Grumble Corner; Grumble Corner in Cross-Patch Town, And he was never seen without a frown. He grumbled at this; he grumbled at that; He growled at the dog; he growled at the cat. He grumbled at morning; he grumbled at night; And to grumble and growl were his chief delight.

He grumbled so much at his wife that she began to grumble as well as he; And all the children, wherever they went, Reflected their parents' discontent. If the sky was dark and betokened rain, Then Mr. Horner was sure to complain; And if there was not a cloud about, He'd grumble because of a threaten'd drought. His meals were never to suit his taste; He grumbled at having to eat in haste; The bread was poor, or the meat was tough, Or else he hadn't had half enough, No matter how hard his wife might try To please her husband, with scornful eye He'd look around, and then, with a scowl At something or other, begin to growl.

One day, as I loitered along the street, My old acquaintance I chanced to meet, Whose face was without the look of care, And the ugly frown that he used to wear. "I may be mistaken, perhaps," I said, As, after saluting, I turned my head. "But it is, and it isn't, Mr. Horner, Who lived for so long on Grumble Corner!" I met him next day; and I met him again, In melting weather, in pouring rain, When stocks were up, and when stocks were down, But a smile somehow had replaced the frown. It puzzled me much; and so, one day, I seized his hand in a friendly way, And said: "Mr. Horner, I'd like to know What can have happened to change you so?"

He laughed a laugh that was good to hear, For it told of a conscience calm and clear, And he said, with none of the old-time drawl, "Why, I changed my residence, that's all!" "Change'd your residence?" "Yes," said Horner, "It wasn't healthy on Grumble Corner, And so I moved; 'twas a change complete; And you'll find me now on Thanksgiving Street!"

Now, every day as I move along The streets so filled with the busy throng, I watch each face and can always tell Where men and women and children dwell; And many a discontented mourner Is spending his days on Grumble Corner, Sour and sad, whom I long to entreat To take a house on Thanksgiving Street.

The Harvest Home.

MR. EDITOR—Will you kindly allow me to say a few words in regard to a Harvest-Home? I suppose we will have one again, this year, although I have not heard anything about it yet. I think we ought to have one, as a great many have enjoyed themselves at those we have had heretofore.

Now I would like to express my views as to how a harvest-home should be carried on. In the first place, I don't think the people should come out too early, as they would be in the way, and otherwise interfere with those who are clearing up the buildings and grounds, and getting ready for the business of the day. The main feature is the dinner. Now, I don't believe in having dinner too early, for a person needs to be hungry to enjoy it, be it ever so good. By having it late, a few may get weak, have a headache, and not care for more than a cup of tea; and a few others, who are stronger, may get in a condition to sympathize with the Camp Sabine sufferers, and not dare walk out in the brush for fear of meeting temptation in the form of an unprotected child. A little amusement is not out of place, and it is amusing to see old men and women climbing over the backs of seats to be at the first table. After the first have eaten, I think it generous in them, if they meet any friends (who only came a little while to see how they do it), to urge them to sit down and have a cup of hot coffee; and then gather some of the best dishes for them to taste, even if they do take things from in front of—who brought a roast chicken and plenty of other good things. No doubt will feel better the next day for dining off a ham-bone and dry bread. Plain food is better for weakly people.

Now about giving premiums. I think that a good idea, for it makes a good many feel good, especially if they happen to have a friend in the right place. The judges, to act understandingly, should always know on whose article they are acting.

I take notice that heretofore a few have done most of the work. That is right, as the day is for enjoyment, and the less there are to do, the work, the more there are to enjoy themselves. I believe that is Logic.

Ayers' Ague Cure, when used according to directions is warranted to eradicate from the system all forms of malarial disease, such as Fever and Ague, Chill Fever, Intermittent, Remittent and Bilious Fevers, and disorders of the liver. Try it. The experiment is a safe one, and will cost you nothing if a cure is not effected.

The ex-Confederates ought to pension Jeff Davis for the sake of keeping his mouth shut. The United States Government, for reasons perfectly manifest, could not, with propriety, undertake the filling out of this expedition, but we think the Government officials in their individual capacity, and a large number of the voters, without respect to party, would contribute towards the Jeff Davis-Mouth-Plaster-Pension, provided some guarantee would be given that it would be worn day and night until a cure is effected.

Admiral Courbet is making mysterious movements in Chinese waters in order to deceive the enemy. American and British sailors are protecting the foreigners and preserving order at Foo-Chow.

The gloomy fears, the desponding views, the weariness of soul that many complain of, would often disappear were the blood made pure and healthy before reaching the delicate vessels of the brain. Ayer's Sarsaparilla purifies and vitalizes the blood; and thus conduces to health of body and sanity of mind.

A CURE FOR GRAVEL.

A Common and Painful Complaint—A Statement you may Coudle in.

It seems to have been reserved for Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., to accomplish, through his preparative, widely known as KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY, what others have failed to compass. The subjoined letter will be found of vital interest to sufferers from gravel, and to the general public.

ALBANY, March 20, 1884.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.
DEAR SIR:—Let me tell you frankly that I have never been partial to proprietary medicines, as I believe the majority of them to be nothing better than methods of obtaining money from people whom suffering makes ready to catch at any hope of relief. They are often cheap and delusive. But your Favorite Remedy I know by happy experience to be a totally different thing. I had been a sufferer from gravel for years, and had resorted to many eminent physicians for relief, but no permanent good came of it. About three years ago your Favorite Remedy was recommended to me. I can give you the result in a sentence: I tried it and it cured me completely. I am confident it saved my life. You can use this letter if you think best.
Yours etc., NATHAN ACKLEY.

Capt. Nathan Ackley was for a long time connected with the Canal Appraiser's office in Albany. He is well known, and writes for no purpose but to do good to others.

A new medicine for all diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Digestive Organs, Kennedy's Favorite Remedy has fairly won its high reputation. Write if desirable to Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.

No name is mentioned for Assembly but that of Dr. Edward North. He is entitled to a nomination, both from usage and because of his satisfactory services last year.

John Turpin, 55 years of age, and residing at Port Norris, was struck and instantly killed by an express train at May's Landing, Sunday evening. The coroner's jury exonerate the railroad employees.

Here is a nut for New Jersey free traders to crack, and it is found within the limits of the State. The happy and prosperous workmen who were making from eighteen dollars to thirty dollars a week in Reebing's wire rod mill, did not think that protection was "fallacious," when the last Congress reduced the duty on rods, and the Reebings closed their mill because they could buy these rods cheaper from abroad, and these workmen were thrown out of their job and compelled to work as common yard hands at a dollar and a quarter a day. This is what free trade in a single instance did for three hundred and fifty-one prosperous Trenton workmen.

On January 1, 1883, the nickel works of Joseph Wharton, in Camden, the only nickel refinery in the United States, suspended operations, owing to the reduction in the tariff made shortly before by the Democratic majority in Congress and the over production of the metal. On September 1, 1884, the works were put in operation again, employing about ninety hands. This action is taken because much of the stock previously accumulated has been worked off, and because the proprietor of the works looks for a Republican victory this Fall, and a consequent increase in the tariff.

Several miles the other side of Trenton, on the line of the Pennsylvania Railroad, is a beautiful bed of wild roses, over six acres in extent. The flowers, freshened by the recent showers, are very fragrant and are a source of great interest to the passengers on the trains. The variety is known as the "dog rose." They grow only in marshy land.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company is building some parlor cars, a feature of which will be five bay windows on each side. They do not project between the sills, but the space between them is set in towards the center of the car, enough to give the bay effect without noticeably intruding upon the space.

Council for the defense in Mr. Blaine's libel suit against the Indianapolis Sentinel filed answer yesterday retorting the accusations, and submitting a number of interrogatories to Mr. Blaine concerning his marriage and the birth of his first child.

HAIR RENEWER

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure disease of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty.

It has many imitations, but none have as fully met all the requirements needed for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unequalled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire rejection of all stimulants.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use of a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dandruff, and prevents the hair from falling out, and stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

There are two attitudes which the merchant may properly take towards this treacherous article of universal dress. He may say: We buy the silks of the best makers; use the best silk we can command in choosing them; examine carefully before we sell them; and, if the silks do not turn out successful in wear, the fault is back of us. The maker himself does not know how a particular piece of his own black silk is going to wear; the skillful workmen through whose successive hands it has passed from the cocoon to the last process of the finish do not know; nobody knows. The only way to find out is by trying. You have got to buy with what ever of risk there is. We do all we can to make it little.

This is the attitude that the must take, if he is frank and fair; unless the maker bears the risk. Somebody has got to bear it; the merchant can't; the maker can. If a maker chooses to insure his silk, rely on the merchant to pass that insurance over to the wearer and deal justly with both, then the merchant may say: This silk may wear well or ill; we do not know how it will turn out; but, if it goes too soon, we'll replace the part that fails.

Either attitude is proper. Either recognizes the unavoidable chance of disappointment that lurks in every black silk dress. One makes provision for that chance; and the other notifies the buyer that the risk is here. It depends on the maker what the merchant can do. Not every maker of black silk, not every maker of good black silk, not every maker of the very best black silk, is disposed to take the risk of his work.

Some merchants of the highest standing never guarantee any silk to wear. We choose the middle ground. We warrant silks that are warranted to us. If a responsible maker is willing to take the risk of his work and trust us to administer his guarantee, we do it. We do not insist that he shall.

We are prompted to this explanation by a series of black silks which we sell with agreement to replace without charge any part that may fail to be fairly durable. Let it be understood that the guarantee is ours as much as if the maker were not behind us; and that it is the maker's as much as if you were not looking to us for its fulfillment.

The silks we guarantee to wear well are these, three French and two American: Bellon's "Household" brand, $1.25 to $2.25; Giraud's "Cachemire Alexandra," $1.50 to $3; Guinet's "Cachemire," 50 cents to $3.50; Givernaud's gros-grain, $1.25 to $2.50; and Cheney's gros-grain, $1.25 to $2.50. Each maker's silk has its peculiar characteristics through its several grades; and the prices rise with the weight.

The price of silk is very low now. The depression is felt particularly in staples; less in "novelties," which always bring extravagant prices for the first few weeks. We refer to day to staples; to silks of intrinsic value; to silks that never lose their favor. Because they always hold their place in dress, they go up and down in the market according to the current value of silk and labor and tariff—hardly ever according to fashion.

Four years ago we said that a merchant's way of dealing in black silk was a pretty fair test of his dealing in general. There are two reasons for the statement: the importance of black silk as an article of merchandise, and the impossibility of being perfectly sure how any particular quarter-yard of it is going to wear. It is worth something in estimating a man to know how he treats an important matter that involves some risk to his client.

Let it be understood that the guarantee is ours as much as if the maker were not behind us; and that it is the maker's as much as if you were not looking to us for its fulfillment.

The silks we guarantee to wear well are these, three French and two American: Bellon's "Household" brand, $1.25 to $2.25; Giraud's "Cachemire Alexandra," $1.50 to $3; Guinet's "Cachemire," 50 cents to $3.50; Givernaud's gros-grain, $1.25 to $2.50; and Cheney's gros-grain, $1.25 to $2.50. Each maker's silk has its peculiar characteristics through its several grades; and the prices rise with the weight.

The price of silk is very low now. The depression is felt particularly in staples; less in "novelties," which always bring extravagant prices for the first few weeks. We refer to day to staples; to silks of intrinsic value; to silks that never lose their favor. Because they always hold their place in dress, they go up and down in the market according to the current value of silk and labor and tariff—hardly ever according to fashion.

Four years ago we said that a merchant's way of dealing in black silk was a pretty fair test of his dealing in general. There are two reasons for the statement: the importance of black silk as an article of merchandise, and the impossibility of being perfectly sure how any particular quarter-yard of it is going to wear. It is worth something in estimating a man to know how he treats an important matter that involves some risk to his client.

There are two attitudes which the merchant may properly take towards this treacherous article of universal dress. He may say: We buy the silks of the best makers; use the best silk we can command in choosing them; examine carefully before we sell them; and, if the silks do not turn out successful in wear, the fault is back of us. The maker himself does not know how a particular piece of his own black silk is going to wear; the skillful workmen through whose successive hands it has passed from the cocoon to the last process of the finish do not know; nobody knows. The only way to find out is by trying. You have got to buy with what ever of risk there is. We do all we can to make it little.

This is the attitude that the must take, if he is frank and fair; unless the maker bears the risk. Somebody has got to bear it; the merchant can't; the maker can. If a maker chooses to insure his silk, rely on the merchant to pass that insurance over to the wearer and deal justly with both, then the merchant may say: This silk may wear well or ill; we do not know how it will turn out; but, if it goes too soon, we'll replace the part that fails.

Either attitude is proper. Either recognizes the unavoidable chance of disappointment that lurks in every black silk dress. One makes provision for that chance; and the other notifies the buyer that the risk is here. It depends on the maker what the merchant can do. Not every maker of black silk, not every maker of good black silk, not every maker of the very best black silk, is disposed to take the risk of his work.

Some merchants of the highest standing never guarantee any silk to wear. We choose the middle ground. We warrant silks that are warranted to us. If a responsible maker is willing to take the risk of his work and trust us to administer his guarantee, we do it. We do not insist that he shall.

We are prompted to this explanation by a series of black silks which we sell with agreement to replace without charge any part that may fail to be fairly durable. Let it be understood that the guarantee is ours as much as if the maker were not behind us; and that it is the maker's as much as if you were not looking to us for its fulfillment.

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure disease of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty.

It has many imitations, but none have as fully met all the requirements needed for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unequalled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire rejection of all stimulants.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use of a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dandruff, and prevents the hair from falling out, and stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

Democratic Vice-President Candidate Hendricks opened the campaign in Indiana Saturday with an oration at Indianapolis.

Parents, see that your child never leaves any task half done or slovenly finished; and therefore give it not too many tasks. Thoroughness is the corner-stone of success. There is no place in the world now for smatterers, who know a little and only a little of everything under the sun. There is always an honorable place for those who can do any kind of honest work in the best manner. Show the child, from the experience of others, that little or no progress is made by spasmodic and intermittent effort. The world is now so advanced and competition so keen that genius must ally itself with patient, persistent work with the deftness which comes only from continued practice. The young are prone to dream of what they will do in the future. The success of others proves that they will never do much, unless they are doing their present work thoroughly. They do not realize this, and mere arbitrary assertion of the fact usually makes but slight improvement. Biographies of successful men, whether read from the libraries or furnished from your memory of neighbors, establish the truth in their minds, and such biographies should be freely read by children.—REV.
