AND Demorest's Monthly Magazine.

A WONDERFUL PUBLICATION.

Many suppose DEMOREST'S MONTHLY to be a fashion magazine. This is a great mistake. It is a magazine of the most practical and useful kind. It contains the latest and best of the month's work in all the departments of domestic economy. It is a magazine of the most practical and useful kind. It contains the latest and best of the month's work in all the departments of domestic economy.

the holder to the selection of ANY PATTERN illustrated in any number of the Magazine, and in ANY of the money paid. Single copies (each containing Pattern Order), 20 cents.

Published by W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, NEW YORK.

The above combination is a splendid chance to get our paper and DEMOREST'S MONTHLY at a special rate. Send your subscriptions to this office.

"A Yachting Party," a beautifully executed watercolor, is the fitting frontispiece for Demorest's Monthly Magazine for September, followed by a handsomely illustrated article on Bar Harbor, which almost make us feel the cool breezes of that delightful summer resort. From the extreme East we are carried to the extreme West, and we are treated to a very amusing account (to which the unique illustrations greatly add) of how two women took up a quarter section of land in Dakota and successfully cultivated it. We then go on "A Voyage Through Space" to the sun, and in an extremely interesting way, that even a child can understand, are told all about the spots that appear on the face of the "god of day." Jenny June tells us, in the department for "Our Girls," when girls should marry; and the boys are not forgotten, for there is given for them a seasonable article (profusely illustrated) on "Swimming and Diving." "School Outfits," "The Chemistry of Breadmaking," and "The Complexion: How to Preserve It," are some of the other interesting articles; and to top off with, is a fine selection of very interesting stories, all suitable to the times and for the season. This comprehensive magazine is published by W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th Street, New York.

Carlisle D. Graham went down the Niagara Rapids and over the Horse-shoe Falls on Sunday, in the barrel constructed for the purpose. He received but trifling injuries.

Ex-King Malietoa, of Samoa, jumped into the water when taken on board the German gunboat, under the misapprehension that he was about to be taken to the Cameroons instead of Apia.

General Legitime the defeated president of Hayti, sailed for New York, whence he will proceed to Paris.

A company was formed in the City of Mexico to bring Irish colonists to Mexico to people the land. The colored immigration scheme meets with little chance of success.

The clamor for the removal of the remains of General Grant from Riverside to Washington is highly discreditable to the journals that indulge in it. It is in bad taste, and is grossly disrespectful to the surviving members of the General's family. They deserve to be consulted in the matter and their wishes, already well known, ought to be respected.

SALE FOR TAXES.

For the Tax of 1887.

TOWN OF HAMMONTON.

NOTICE is hereby given that by virtue of a warrant issued by John Atkinson, Esq., to make the taxes laid on unimproved and untenanted lands, and on lands tenanted by persons not the lawful proprietors, who are unable to pay their tax, in the Town of Hammonton, County of Atlantic, the Collector of said town will, on TUESDAY, the 5th day of October,

Next, at the hour of 2 o'clock P.M., at the office of the Town Clerk, sell the timber, wood, herbage, and other vendible property found on the premises, taxed to the under named persons, to make the taxes and costs annexed to their respective names, with interest at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum from Dec. 20, 1887, to the day of sale:

The Costs in each case will be 50 cents.

ORVILLE E. HOYT,

Collector.

Dated September 7th, 1889.

Our friends the enemy cannot find any thing in President Harrison's administration to vent their spite upon, but they still maintain the sacred right to abuse and ridicule his son. That proud privilege, thank goodness, cannot be taken from them.

We agree with Hon. David Dudley Field in the opinion that State Legislatures should not be held in ridicule by the people. Mr. Field will probably agree with us, on the other hand, that State Legislatures should not make themselves ridiculous.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 7, 1890.

The federal "surplus" is the difference between the receipts under taxes imposed by law and expenditures authorized by law.

No president, no secretary of the interior, no pension commissioner can decrease the sum received from these taxes or increase the sum spent under these appropriations; but a sound policy can greatly reduce the effect of the accumulation due to more money than the Government needs.

The way under the last Administration was to let the money roll up in July and August, face the chance of a panic in September and then come to the relief of trade and the help of the market in order that the country might consider the size and danger of the surplus a reason of reducing the revenue.

The way under the present Administration is to make in July add August as free payments as were made later by its predecessor, to prevent the withdrawal of money from the centers of trade, the pinch on the banks, and the squeeze on their customers.

When the year is over this Administration, like the last, will have spent what the appropriations provide, no more and no less; but the surplus, instead of being a menace every September, as it was the last four years, will not be felt.

We do not think there is any doubt which policy the business world will approve.—Press.

If the labor men in New Jersey follow the advice Mr. Powderly gave them, on Labor Day none of them will vote for a Democratic candidate for the Legislature. He said: "I would ask of every voter before me if he values the future of the Republic that he shall demand of every legislative candidate a pledge to vote for ballot reform; if he does not, vote against him, no matter what he is, for this is no party matter."

Electric Bitters.
This remedy is becoming so well known and so popular as to need no special mention. All who have used Electric Bitters know the same sort of praise. A pure medicine does not exist, and it is questioned to do all that is claimed. Electric Bitters will cure all diseases of the liver and kidneys, will remove pimples, boils, salt rheum, and other affections caused by impure blood. Will drive malaria from the system and prevent as well as cure all malarial fevers. For cure of headache, constipation, and indigestion, try Electric Bitters. Entire satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Price, 50 cts and $1.
per bottle, at Ocean's drug store.

If this should meet the eye of any one who would like to buy a fine business property, let him write to the Editor of the REPUBLICAN for particulars.

Remember the Debating Society, which meets on Friday evenings, in the hall over Murdoch's store. We are requested to state that the ladies have a special invitation to attend, and will always be made welcome.

It gives us great pleasure to announce that the Hammononton tax rate for 1890 will be but $1.74 on each $100 of valuation. Last year it was $2.25; in 1887 it was $1.82; in 1889
it was $2.12; in 1885, $1.90; in 1884, $1.92. This is the lowest rate since 1883, and is doubtless caused by the great number of new buildings and new farms settled upon and improved.

There is to be a lecture in Union Hall, next Tuesday evening, the 10th,
under the auspices of the Old Fellows.
Subject, "The Johnstown Flood," illustrated with stereoscopic pictures, taken by Rev. E. Cornet, the lecturer, who in Johnstown as a representative of the Red Cross Society. Admission, 25 and 35 cents; children, 15. Tickets are for sale at Simons' bakery.

Judge Byrnes' handsome lawn was the scene of a merry gathering, on Wednesday afternoon and evening, by invitation of the ladies of St. Mark's Church. Good company, games, and refreshments made time pass pleasantly.
In the evening, long rows of Japanese lanterns added to the attractiveness of the scene, and enabled those present to continue their pastimes.

Doctors Crowell, Hodges, and North attended a meeting of the County Medical Association, on Wednesday, at Atlantic City. On the same day, the West Jersey Homeopathic Medical Association met at Atlantic, and Doctor Blended attended. Think of it, our 3500 inhabitants left for a whole day in the care of one physician! We never know the dangers to which we are at times exposed. Fortunately, Atlantic City survived.

The Hammononton Baseball Club met its Waterloo on Thursday. The largest attendance ever known here at a ball game witnessed the game between our home club and the "Highlands," of Philadelphia, the champion amateur nine. It was evident that our boys had been "rattled" in advance by the reputation of their visitors, and did not do as good work as usual—piling up errors instead of runs. They recovered somewhat toward the close, but too late to make a score. The consequence was defeat, of course,—score 14 to 0.
The Highlands are skillful players, and gentlemen, and were generously treated by the spectators.

The following-named Hammonontonians were a surprised party, last Monday, when Constable Bernshouse handed each a summons to appear at Special Jury Duty: Carl M. Cook, Frank
E. Roberts, H. H. Henshaw, David F.
Albertson, John Murdoch, Watson B.
Matthews, Lincoln A. Jones, Frank Anderson.

Then, on Thursday morning of this week the "struck" jury was summoned to meet at Atlantic City, to view the land the title to which is to be tried next week. And, by the way, Constable Bernshouse had a lively job,—the summons referred to were received by him less than three hours before the time of meeting in Atlantic City, and the men were scattered from the upper end of Middle Road to the further side of the State Township. It was an impossible task.

Regular meeting of the Town Council, Saturday evening, Aug. 31st.
Minutes read and approved.

Bills ordered paid:
Dr. Edw. North, Health Insp., 1 yr., $50.00
James Smith, building cistern, 110.00
Wm. Black, goods to poor, 8.00

A. H. Miller, 34.88
James Ross, 6.00
Jennie Bailey, 34.88
Edwin Johnson, 15.88
Joseph Mason, 37.13
George Elvins, supplies 14.29—$34.66

Rules suspended to hear Mr. P. H.
Brown, who reported the difficulty he experienced in locating the corner and lines of the Park, asking for further information. Referred to Street Committee, with power to do whatever is necessary, and Mr. Brown instructed to make a correct survey of the Park, and place permanent monuments at each corner.

Light Committees paid in $5.07, pro-
Ordinance relating to Fire Company
taken up, amended, and passed.

Dr. Potter complained of milk measures used in town, and asked whether there was not some legal guage for all measures. This matter not coming within the jurisdiction of our local legislature, no action was taken.

A communication was read from Mr.
Fell, Inspector, in relation to enforcement of the factory law, and appointment of a "truant" officer. Voted, that the Chairman of Council appoint such officer, as required by law.

Voted, that the Town Marshal be instructed to enforce the ordinances and prevent the running of bicycles and tricycles on the sidewalks within a half-mile radius of the post-office.
Council to meet hereafter at 7:30.

Adjourned.

They say 'twas hard cider, this time, and that makes the meanest kind of a drunk. An Englishman came in from the city, with a gun, Tuesday, we believe it was, for a day's hunt; but he hunted several drinks first. About that time another fellow appeared, a German, who induced the Englishman to go down to the Lake. We'll never get the straight story, but somehow the German got the gun—and came to the station, leaving the other fellow in the woods. The English came up in time to shake the wits out of his quondam companion, and then he seized the gun and fired, but whether at the German or the air is uncertain. At any rate, the German appeared before Justice Jordan to make complaint; but the Englishman threatened suit for stealing his gun, and both parties retired. The only thing made clear was that some one near the railroad is selling what he calls cider, but strong enough to muddle
a man's brain and make him altogether unreliable.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

We should be careful how we encourage luxuries.

Pride is never so offensive as when in chains.

A seashell sacque does not always keep the heart warm.

When men are lonely they stoop to any companionship.

The darkest cloud often contains the most fruitful showers.

An enemy may be respected, a secret one to be suspected.

The pure worship of a pure heart is an inspiration and a song.

There may be loyalty without love, but never love without loyalty.

A golden key will often find the way to a locked man's secret drawer.

Fine manners are like personal beauty—a letter of credit everywhere.

A brain might as well be stuffed with sawdust as with unused knowledge.

Death is a sleepless messenger and life a wakeful handmaid of creation.

Truth is as impossible to be soiled by any outward touch as the sunbeam.

"Doing as well as you know how" is right if you always know how to do well.

It is often more difficult to obliterate traces of spilled ink than drops of spilled blood.

Those who are honest and earnest in their honesty have no need to proclaim the fact.

It is always like those who admire us; we do not always like those whom we admire.

Truth may be defined as the shortest possible distance from one point to another.

Babylon in all its desolation is a sight not so awful as that of the human mind in ruins.

The happiness of love is in action; its test is what one is willing to do for others.

It is good for a man to love his enemies, if he can do so without injuring his friends.

Intellect has been called the starlight of the soul.

Better to be despised for too anxious apprehension than ruined by too confident a security.

The poorest education that teaches self-control is better than the best that neglects it.

Absence is to love what fasting is to the body—a little stimulates it, but a long abstinence is fatal.

Nothing is so contagious as example; we are never either much good or much evil without imitations.

By our law, no good is to be left undone towards all not the good of the tongue, and the heart.

There are none that fall unpunished as those that have raised themselves upon the spoils of the charitable.

God designs that a charitable intercourse should be maintained among men, mutually pleasant and beneficial.

If you enlist in the army, say a prayer; if you go to sea, say two; if you get married, say three.

Life is before you—not earthly life alone, but a life, a thread running interminably through the warp of eternity.

Civilization has made justice one of the luxuries, for which we have to pay the highest price.

A spirited race horse and a balky mule seldom work well together. Some folks take this for proof that the harness is a failure.

Very often the man who "boils with indignation" one day simmers with regret the next morning, especially if his wrath be put in cold type.

When you have found the master passion of a man, remember never to trust him that passion is concerned.

If there is one thing upon this earth that mankind loves and admires more than another, it is a brave man—a man who dares look the devil in the face and tell him he is the devil.

The noblest characters are those who have steeled the life-vessel through stormiest seas. A bed of down never nurtured a great soldier yet.

Nature seems to exist for the excellent. The world is upheld by the veracity of good men; they make the earth wholesome. We call our children and our lands by their names; their works and enigmas are in our houses.

Health of mind consists in the perception of law. Its dignity consists in being under the law. Nothing seems to me so excellent as a belief in the laws. It communicates nobleness, and, as it were, an asylum in temples to the loyal soul.

The freedsie is a seminary of infinite importance. It is important because it is universal, and because the education it bestows being woven in the web of childhood, give form and color to the whole texture of life.

Misfortune in nine times out of ten is simply another name for laziness or bad management. Laziness really isn't anything to your credit to be cranking all the time about misfortune.

It is not true that the people of this nation or of any other nation work too much. They may feel too much, or they may confine themselves too much to one eternal grid of the same kind of work, but works well and intelligently done kills nobody.

First Impressions.

"The bridge broke? How provoking!"

And Barbara Lynn leaned from the carriage window to speak to the brown-faced boy who had volunteered the above piece of distasteful information.

"Yes, ma'am, the freshest carried the tumbler clean away, day before yesterday."

"But how are we to get across?"

Are going to visit Miss Stapleton at Stapleton Park."

"They keep a ferryman there, ma'am, with a little boat. He'll take you across; and if you'll drive you by Uncle Ezra's, he'll send your trunk by the mountain road."

"Very well. Driver, follow the boy's directions."

Close under the green sweep of a clump of water willows lay a little boat fastened by a rope to the upright post which alone remained of the destroyed bridge, and tenanted by one in a picturesque straw hat whose broad brim shadowed his face altogether.

"He's reading, I declare. Instead of minding his business and looking out for passengers. A literary ferryman!" sneered Edna Carson.

Miss Barbara made no verbal comment, but walked resolutely toward the landing and aroused the absorbed boatman from his studies with the point of her parasol.

"Bring your boat around," she said, sharply. "We want to cross the river, quickly."

The boatman pushed back his broad-brimmed straw hat with a look that puzzled, half amused, that made Barbara Lynn turn towards her companion with the petulant words:

"Believe he's an idiot!"

"Where do you wish to go, ladies?" asked the man, when they had safely bestowed their multifarious furbes upon the seats, not without many complaints at the smallest of the accommodations.

"To Stapleton Park landing."

As the oars flashed through the bright, tideless water, Edna Carson drew a deep sigh of relief.

"Well, we shall be there soon, I hope. If you had only written, Barbara, Miss Stapleton would have sent some one to meet us—perhaps that astonishing brother of hers."

"Yes," said Barbara, curling her lip; "and a nice first appearance we should have made—tired and dusty, with our dresses all crumpled and our hair uncurled! No—I choose to meet Harry Stapleton en grande toilette, when I do meet him. Everything depends on first impressions, you know."

Edna put up her little hand to hide a yawn.

"And you really mean to chaperone him?"

"I mean to try."

"How do you know that he will make a good husband?"

"What difference does that make? He's rich!"

The boatman stepped ashore, and, dodging his hat, pointed to a superb gray stone mansion whose gables and multicolored chimneys through the groups of trees just beyond, swayed.

"There is Stapleton, ladies—you will have no difficulty in finding it."

Barbara tossed a piece of silver to the boatman.

"See that our trunks are sent up as soon as they arrive," she said, loftily.

"And now, girls, get ready for dinner as soon as you can!" said Miss Stapleton, as she ushered her visitors into a dainty little dressing-room all paneled in oak and greenwood, and with curtains of pale green silk, and mirrors that reflected from the ceiling to the floor, and from the floor to the ceiling.

"I have a delightful party of guests staying here, and I want you both to look as lovely as possible. Remember, you are to dine with me."

Barbara did look lovely as she entered the drawing-room, where light, and flowers, and delicious perfumes made a sort of fairy land. She was dressed in rose-colored tulle, caught up by bouquets of moss roses, and a branch of trailing roses and buds fastened in her glossy brown curls as carelessly as if it had fallen from the vine. Edna was pretty, too, in her white muslin and lilies—but Edna's beauty was not so fresh as Barbara's. Her face, like a faded rose, had been in the sun too long, and her eyes, like a faded rose, had been in the sun too long.

Barbara's eyes brightened with a sort of admiring pride as she came forward, leaning on a gentleman's arm, to greet her guest.

"Miss Lynn—my brother, Mr. Stapleton!"

And Barbara's cheeks blazed into scarlet fire, as in the calm glance of the gentleman bowing leisurely she recognized the dark blue eyes that had beamed so quizzically beneath the shadow of the ferryman's straw hat.

She was literally struck dumb; she could not have spoken to save her life, but Harry Stapleton was less embarrassed.

"We have met before," he said, with a half smile. "It was my first appearance in the role of ferryman. I hope it gave satisfaction. Everything depends on first impressions, you know."

"But me for not disclosing my name, Miss Lynn, but your orders were too imperative very given for me to disobey!"

He stopped abruptly, for Barbara, overcome with shame and mortification, had fainted away in his sister's arms.

And then and there ended all her hopes of ever becoming the lady of Stapleton Park.

"Alas! what a wretched vision! A little mistake! Will some times over!"

Somewhat Too Witty.

It's a great thing to be rarely witty. I saw an instance of it recently. Over at the Union Depot, in Canal street, Chicago, they have an "Information Bureau," and a neat sign over the open window announces the fact. It's a very clever idea, and a great many people hereabouts do not know something about the town or about trains, but it is the only one in town and it strikes sophisticated folks as very queer.

I saw a very plump young fellow look at the sign and smile. Then he went up to the window and I knew he was going to try to be funny at the expense of the sign.

"What kind of sign is that?" he asked, and he edged up eagerly and heard him ask:

"What kind of sign is that?"

"Kind of what?" asked the informant.

"Kind of information," said the plump young man.

The bureau man "tumbled" in a second. He saw he had run against a joker, but he didn't show it in his manner. He just said, in a business like tone and a perfectly straight face:

"All kinds."

"Does it come with or without?"

"Both ways. Which do you have in mind?"

"Got any coupons?"

"Plenty, all stripes down the side."

"Is it red, white and blue?"

"It is, and shot with stars; also fringed. How much'll you have?"

"How much?" asked the plump young man, who, to his embarrassment, was pointed in some way, for he stumbled something and sneaked away, looking crushed as a banana peel under a 200 pound man's foot.

He asked the man manning the window for the price of this kind. He laughed and said that the traveling man usually had fun with him when they had time.

Weakness.

A tramp knows what it is to be weary, a farm laborer to be body-weary, a literary man to be brain-weary, and a sorrowing man to be soul-weary.

The sick are often weary, even of life itself.

Physiological "ebb-tide," which time and patience will convert into a "flow," it is never well to whip or spur a worried horse.

He who is generally a physiologist, if he mends his pace in obedience to the stimulus, every step is a drop down from his life-blood.

Idleness is not one of the virtues of the present age; weariness is one of the commonest experiences.

The checks that many a man draws on his physiological resources are unnumbered; and, as these resources are strictly limited, the man who generally banks account, it is very easy to bring about a balance on the wrong side.

Adequate rest is one kind of cure, but it is not the only one.

Another, regular eating and good digestion.

One day's holiday in the week and one or two months in the year for those who work exceptionally hard.

What a luxury! It is a highly favorable condition; and thus with care and management, physiological solvency is secured and maintained.

But a physiological sound sleep is another, regular eating and good digestion.
