FOR GOVERNOR, Cornelius Walsh.

We invite the attention of Republicans, generally, and prospective candidates particularly, to the communication of "A Republican," in this issue.

Senator Cameron, as it appears, has given the opinion at Washington that Pennsylvania is right side up and will give a good Republican report of herself in October.

A Democratic paper says that Gov. Haight of California was defeated because he "desired to protect the State from extravagant expenditure." The Democrats of New York seem to be pretty well guarded against defeat from that cause.

The Newark Courier says that several harness makers are anxious to secure the contract for manufacturing the gear with which the Hon. Nehemiah Perry proposes to pull Joel Parker through Essex county to the tune of fifteen hundred majority—or "break the traces."

This is the way the Southern Democracy have of getting rid of those who will not let them have full sway. Mr. E. M. Sandy, Republican candidate for the Legislature from Essex County, Va., a few days since, received the following:

Mr. E. M. Sandy: You are hereby notified to leave this State within ten days from the date of this; should you fail to comply with this order, you will, without a doubt, be thrown over the end of the wharf with a rock tied to your neck. We do not wish to do anything of the kind, but the interest of our county requires it. MANY.

When the stealings of Tammany began to be shown up, with its two hundred millions of dollars, the Democratic press loudly protested that the party could not be held responsible for the acts of Tweed, Hall & Co. But when a person appointed by the present administration appropriated a few thousand, the Republican party is immediately arraigned by these papers, as a party of corruption and thievery. We do not wish to excuse the default of Hodge, but think a little consistency would look just as well in the Democratic press as elsewhere.

THAT $30,000.

It is well known throughout the State that Joel Parker declined, repeatedly, to be a candidate for the Governorship. The chief reason for this was, that he could not afford it,—that he would lose several thousand dollars, and could not think of making so great a sacrifice. His prompt acceptance of the nomination is rather curious in the face of this declaration and various are the conjectures as to the reason of his sudden change of base. The New Brunswick Freeman publishes the following, which may throw some light upon the matter:

"Now the singular story is afloat in the State, that certain persons in Jersey City have agreed to give him, in case he is elected, an additional sum of ten thousand dollars a year during the next three years, to compensate him for the loss of his law practice, he asserting that said practice is worth that much to him, and which he will be obliged to sacrifice if he accedes to the Governorship. At the State Convention the other day the question arose, who is going to contribute that thirty thousand dollars? and it was boldly asserted by his admirers, that the Erie Railroad Company had agreed to furnish the amount! As the Erie Railroad Company is not supposed to pay out its money to public officials without a proper equivalent, it naturally follows that the recipient is to use his influence—official and otherwise—in behalf of the pot scheme of that Company; and it is not at all likely that after agreeing to such a bargain that they will stop with the disbursement of $30,000, but will contribute very largely to secure Joel Parker's election."

Now we admit that a person has a right to give Mr. Parker as many thousand dollars to induce him to be a candidate as he pleases. But when a gigantic railway corporation furnishes the cash the affair assumes an entirely different aspect. "If the above is true, then it is not Joel Parker who is to be the real Governor, in the event of the Democratic success, but Jim Enke—and all for $30,000."

The Trenton State Gazette says:

The Democratic papers, from one end of the State to the other, abound with the vilest and most malicious defamations of the character of our worthy and popular candidate for Governor, Mr. Walsh. Mr. Walsh is a pure and upright man, and those who say to the contrary are, in the terse language of Horace Greeley, "liars and villains." But if throwing filth is to be the policy of our opponents in this campaign, we shall have to match them by showing up painful facts. Let Mr. Parker and his friends take notice.

The New York Citizen is edited by Robert B. Roosevelt, a Democratic member of Congress. He was supported by Tammany last Fall, and is fully orthodox in the party, except that he prefers honesty to rascality. And this is his confession, made in the Citizen of Saturday:

There is but one chance for the Democracy—one means of escape from the hopeless position in which we are placed: we must vindicate the party's reputation for honesty. We are drifting, we are driving headlong, toward ruin and utter extinction. In two months our party will have ceased to exist, unless something is done to avert such a fate. We have lost California, where there was every possibility of success; we have lost Maine, where there was little hope; we shall lose Ohio, of course, and Pennsylvania and New York. It seems that we shall lose every State in the Union—unless, perhaps, it be Delaware.

It was always the boast of Tammany that it controlled the Democratic party of the country—the remark was never truer than at this moment. Tammany is dragging the party down to the perdition it has earned for itself.

At a Republican Mass Meeting at New Brunswick, on Monday, Mr. Walsh was called upon. He said that he did not intend making a speech; that he proposed doing the hard word of the campaign and leave the speech-making to others. Speaking of the principles of the Republican party, he said:—

The question, however, allow me to say, is not shall we ratify or annul any of the principles or acts of the Republican party. They are established. The thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth amendments are in the Constitution, and are to remain there forever, and no true American will attempt to blot them out. The question is, has the Republican party discharged its duty to the people of the country? I answer yes. Since the formation of our government there has never been a party with less imperfections than this. Its history is the history of the country. In all respects its administration of the government has been good, and we mean to endorse it at the election this Fall. Every Republican is expected to engage heartily in the work. We ask you, Republicans, to give it your best efforts. If you do this, the result will be victory for us in November. It is of paramount importance that the party have success; not so much for the sake of its candidates, but its principles, expressing the conviction that Republicans here have this view of the matter, and would do their duty, as in the past.

(For the Republican.) THE COUNTY CONVENTION.

It is to be hoped that the Republican Convention of Atlantic County, (to be held Sept. 30th,) may unite on Candidates who may and can unite all the Republicans of the County. To do this, it will be necessary for some to set aside personal and local preferences for the good of the whole.

The success of the glorious party which has done so much for the Country, should be the great idea, and this demands that all good and patriotic men should make some compromises and sacrifices (if need be) so far as more men are concerned, that great principles may triumph in the coming election.

If a proper spirit of conciliation is shown in the Convention, and a ticket nominated in a spirit of compromise and good feeling, the County can and will be carried easily by the Republicans, by from three to five hundred majority. The Democrats will know there is no chance of their electing any one on their ticket, if the Republicans will only agree among themselves.

We need every vote we can get to elect our Governor. We all agree upon principles, then let us rally hand in hand in upholding the good old standard. "Men die; principles are eternal."

The convention of the people is not intended to settle local quarrels or private grievances, it is a place where clear, clean, deliberate reason should prevail, and the person should be most respected who tries to heat discussion rather than open old wounds.

Let all dead issues be sunk now; let us be sensible and true to the principles that saved our country from dismemberment and disgrace, and with a long pull, and a strong pull, and a pull all together, elect our Governor, and the whole ticket in November, and win the thanks of posterity.

A REPUBLICAN.

Woman's Department.

The first meeting of the Woman's Club in their new quarters, Ellis Hall, took place on the 19th inst. New members of both sexes signed the constitution and by-laws and the re-union which was large and enthusiastic was one of the most satisfactory since the organization of the Club. By enthusiastic I mean comparatively enthusiastic, for the members of the Club are mostly grave and serious men and women, not fond of arguing and wrangling simply for self gratification.

The committee on sewing machines reported progress and further time was granted. It was decided to rent a sewing machine for one month and try the experiment while the committee are deliberating as to the best machine to purchase.

The Club reading room is to be opened in a very short time, very probably the coming week or before. Friends of the labor and suffrage movement and of social progress generally are cordially invited to help us by contributions of books and periodicals and in any way they find convenient; all such contributions can be left to the present with Mrs. Mattie Ellis, our Treasurer. If any of our friends have furniture proper for our club reading room which can be donated or rented we shall be happy to hear from them. A bookcase of some sort, tables, chairs etc., we must have immediately even though reduced to the distressing alternative of buying them. We want to make our reading room an attractive place where friends can run in at all hours and be sure of hearing something worth remembering. In the next issue of the REPUBLICAN we hope to say definitely when our reading room will be opened.

Now is the time for our friends men and women who have not yet joined us to come and help us do our work. We do not ask for money and our dues are so little that all can afford it. It is indeed a mere bagatelle, we have proved that the Woman's Club was an excellent movement in the right direction. Pecuniarily we have reason to congratulate ourselves. We have no debts and a very respectable balance remains in our treasury. Other Clubs are greatly interested in our success and that of Detroit, Mich., has sent for our constitution and by-laws, to aid in the completion of their organization.

That the Suffrage movement is one of the great questions of the century no one doubts who reads, thinks or to whom the signs of the times mean anything. At the coming November election we shall of course go again and try to vote, knowing well that our demand for recognition as citizens will receive the courteous consideration that characterized our last attempt. We even hope that our judges of election will take a bold step and interpret the constitution of the country by the light of common sense, and receive without question the votes of all citizens who are otherwise qualified whether they have heretofore claimed their right as citizen or not.

Who are citizens? the constitution answers the question—"All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the state wherein they reside." Now what does "citizen" mean? Turn to Webster's unabridged dictionary—"Citizen—a person native or naturalized who has the privilege of voting for public offices and who is qualified to first offices in the gift of the people." Now as "all persons born or naturalized in the United States," are, by the language of the constitution "citizens" what risk does a judge of election incur by taking the votes of women? Not only this, but how can he in conscience and common sense refuse them simply and solely because of precedent? Perhaps it does require a certain moral courage for a judge of election to go counter to precedent. We hope ours will take the risk and immortalize himself as the man who seeing the right dared to do it despite the outcry of those whose moral eyes are in a state of chronic myopia from the constant exaltation of red tape and precedent.

In my humble opinion we need no XVI amendment and no "declaratory act" on the part of Congress, but simply an honest courage and a love of justice on the part of those who at elections decide what votes shall be registered.

However, a great effort is to be made in Washington during the coming session; by one wing of the Suffragists for the XVI amendment, and by the other for a declaratory act saying definitely that the constitution means what it says. The New York World gives a column and a half in its issue of the 17th of the Winter's work in Washington which is laid out on a scale unprecedented.

Cor. Sec. of the Woman's Club.

Why not change the name of the Metropolitan Hotel in New York to "Tammany"? It is now run by a son of "Boss" Tweed, and manned by the Ring of course. Who pays the bills is not yet ascertained, but if we may judge from the report of its opening last month, the taxpayers of New York are in for it again. We read—

"The new furniture is gorgeous. Every room in the hotel has been completely renovated and redecorated, and entirely refurnished. The lady's parlor is a perfect paradise. Royal Wilton and Axminster cover the floors, and gold and walnut furniture abounds. The bridal chambers on the third floor are marvels of elegance. Axminster carpets of the softest tint cover the floors, and in the bedroom is an elaborately-carved walnut bedstead of the Turkish pattern with furniture to match. The bridal suite consists of parlor, two bedrooms and two bath rooms, all connecting. The furniture in each corresponds. The famous corner suits, which in Warren Leland's time were so popular, have been fitted up with an extravagance that seems almost incredible. The one on the second floor is furnished in mauve moquette, with Wilton carpet and lambrequin to match. That on the third floor is in blue satin and lace, with the finest of Axminster on the floor. The furniture in both these suits is a miracle of carving and gilding, and seems better fitted for a fairy palace than for a public hotel. Among those who congratulated the young proprietor were Hon. (J. W. Brennan, Senator Norton, Hon. Thomas C. Fields, Judge Shandley, Alderman Mitchell, Wm. J. Florence, Howard Paul, Col. John R. Fellows, Hon. Michael J. Shandley, Hon. Eugene Durnin, Dr. Nealis, Hon. George W. Fox, of Troy, Capt. Walsh, Hon. Jas. Robinson, Justice Dowling, Hon. R. D. Sharpe, Hon. Henry Smith and others. A thousand of the young proprietor's guests assembled in the room and around the well appointed tables. Champagne flowed like a mountain stream down a mill race."

JOHN'S WIFE.
A young wife stood with her hand on her forehead, and looked a little more than half-broiled.
"Nothing's the matter, my dear," said John, "I'm all right, and all right you are. From a fellow who has all his lights on him, I wouldn't expect to see him blink."
"We need not live by the sweat of our brow," murmured the wife, "but by the sweat of our tongue."
"Gearing away, spoke maker John—"
"We've got to see well what we're standing on," said John to her husband's chair.
And quietly passing her hand over her forehead, she said to herself, "I don't know what he's got on his mind, but I don't want to get mixed up in it."
"And a word said fit on the town best heard," said John, "and a word said fit on the town best heard."
"If we were only rich, my dear," said the wife, "I wouldn't mind doing nothing to do for the rest of my life."
"But you can't be rich, my dear," said John, "and you can't be rich, my dear."
"What a happy woman I should be," said John, "if I were only rich, my dear."
"Looking up from his ledger, spoke merchant John said to his wife, "What a happy woman I should be, if I were only rich, my dear."

"We ne'er see well what we're standing on."
A stately form, in velvet dressed—a diamond gleaming on her breast;
Nothing but toll for fashion," she said,
"Till I sometimes wish that I were dead,
I might rest this wealth of mine
And be, once more, the poor man's bride."
From his easy-chair, spoke gentleman John—
"We ne'er see well what we're standing on."

An Afflicted California Damsel.
A young lady, in a communication to the San Francisco Chronicle, makes insignificant complaint of the unreasonableness of men in asking women to marry. She says:
"I am pestered with offers. Now, I like men; I like gentlemen's society better than that of my own sex. I like them because their association is to me pleasing and profitable. I want information and knowledge of the world, and all the wisdom I can acquire, and this I can better derive from personal association, and a more solid association at that time from all the books of the women in the world. Now I'm going to put together a new book, a book of singular, shrunken, sharp-featured, wide-eyed, spectacled, and strong-minded. My blood circulates pretty lively, and I am not adverse to the feel of a cold-sleeve or the sweep of a mantle to fill up the voids of my life. I have a great predilection for judgment, and prudence in all things, say I. Because champagne is so exhilarating that it is no reason why any man should drink themselves into any sort of a gutter. Now I never offered my hand to any man, I never gave my hand in promise to any gentleman. I never thought you will be my exclusive companion for life I will support you ; I will be a mother to your children. As to companionship, I've only seen you in the street, and I've never seen you in the street, and I'll take it for granted that you are all the more interested in my intrigues and my complications.

Michael Sullivan's Illinois Farm.
A visit to the farm of Mr. Sullivan,
Vernon county, Illinois, is of itself a trip, and its management a subject full of entertainment. The farm contains forty thousand acres in one tract. Much of this land was entered by Mr. Sullivan years ago at a very small price per acre, something less than $10. The land is now worth about $40 an acre, and is rapidly increasing in value, for the soil itself is eminently productive. With good farming, the place yields a full commercial wheat, mainly oak trees. The extent of this tract is beyond what can be seen, and it is stated that shared trifles which the servants might have used to throw out.

Now, getting rid of the affair, with the sageacious notion that they might have a quarrel, they were, on the next account, were soon on the scene of action. Fingling has no companions; and he is not so much of a body-guard as the other, approaching more closely than the first, to the position of a body-guard.

He ventured to dispute the possession of a dog with the adjutant. The question was referred to the adjutant's dog. At moments, the adjutant—leaving the room for subsequent discussion—seized the dog, and, with a sudden dash, rushed him at the man guilty of this summary assault. The dog, however, was the property of the other crew, who by their cries soon brought together numbers of others who were not so much of a body-guard as the others they never ceased—some from the ground, others from a neighboring wall—were shouting and waving their hands to the top of their lungs, and taunting the man who had dared, extending a leg, or a wing, to stand within his reach, and to attempt to strike them. And this universal vengeance they continued for two or three mornings.

A Chinese Parable.

We question whether an American, with a limited knowledge of the Chinese language, could venture into that land, to the purpose of visiting the foolish virgins any better than Ch'oy Wang-shing, has England it. The following is his version:

"The kingdom of ten girls; never marry; they bring some luteiras; come some ten newly-married man come this way. They are all foolish. Five hold luteiras with no oil. Five hold luteiras with oil. The newly-married man come into; they sleep; By-and-by, they all say, 'New-married man, give me some luteira. Five foolish say, 'I have no luteira. I give you my oil, my lamp no oil, you give me my oil, I give you my oil. I give you; I not enough; you go market and buy some. Five newly-married man, new-married man come. All come in to dinner. Said the door, By-and-by the door. He say, 'I like you; you no my.' Must be make to understand the day."

On one occasion the children were all gathered in a room, when they made a decree that every one that entered the room should be obliged to sing a song, and if they were not, they were to be trapped, and made to pay her forfeit, when little five-year old Robby came in, having got out of bed to see what was the matter, and he was over-come with him. He was about to be turned ignominiously out as my boy would not pay the forfeit, when he produced a song, and then he was let go without a trial, and declared that he could tell "lots of ones" when he had got up in the night, and he was then dismissed, perched on his mother's knee and wrapped in the gay coverlet, he told the following brief but tragic tale.

"Once a lady had a million children, and a nice little boy. He went up one day to his mother's room, and said, 'Mother, I want to go to the window.' But she wouldn't let him go to the window."

markedly small. The usual complement will hardly be secured, and dealers anxious to get away from the market actively shipped to Australia and California. The demand has not started up yet, but it is expected to be placed early next month, though the great abundance of everything, and the prevailing opinion that those goods would not interest buyers to hold off as long as possible.

ENJOYMENT OF LIFE.—Two wealthy gentlemen were lately conversing about the advantages of life to themselves. "I will tell you," says one, "when I most enjoyed life. Soon after I was twenty-one I worked for Mr. ————, who paid me twenty cents per week, and I lived alone well for twenty cents per week."

"Well," replied the other, "that does not seem very good." "Experience," said the first gentleman, "has taught me. When I was twenty I hired myself for $700 per annum, and I have since made seven dollars per month.

A Masha gentleman said to an old lady who had brought up a family of children near the river, "I should think that some of them would have got drowned." "Oh, no," responded the old lady, "we only lost three or four but never enjoyed myself better since."

charm of this place, and indicate the presence of women for whom there are a love and a delight. Yet—the appearance of our homes is of importance in the summing up of our social influence; and in this respect the householders themselves may speak powerfully to the imagination. One evening this spring we were in one of our cottage homes of the village, sitting around a table, a group of women and children, the lamp burning brightly, and the windows open. One of the family came from outside, and exclaimed, "What a picture this makes from the street!" Will not the same picture, if drawn, indicate the heart good to see? So it is, the "light in the windows" cheers many who are in the darkness.

An attempt to give a few lines to point out the pleasures and resources of country life, I would not be supposed to ignore as unworthy the attention of the country woman for better chances of culture and work; but the question is too important, and demands too serious consideration, to be treated lightly. What I have tried to prove is that from the country woman starts with real advantage; that she is not less intelligent in its security and refinement, does not dwarf her intellect or the development of her talents; for the country woman is the one that can best works of our feminine literature.

totally discourages the efforts to destroy it which come from the ordinary rustic. As the season is now commencing when the birds begin to be intolerant of the presence of man, inducements for its pursuit. Of course, every one knows that the wood-pigeon is a good eating fowl, and the "red herring in it" is regarded by west country cooks as the greatest of table delicacies. But even those who know what Mr. Walker has learned in China—namely, that its flesh contains the most deadly of poisons, and that it enables him to do with little or no pepper. Moreover, "its foot and leg bones are very delicious and good for eating." The bird is also said to be suffering affection between two and five years on the fifth day of the fifth month of the human lunar year. On this day the bird takes one of these bones in a basin of water, one from the left and the other from the right side; that two bones will come from the Artificial Ivory.

By means of a simple and ingenious process, the best grades of artificial ivory is now produced from India-rubber. In the first place two pounds of pure rubber are dissolved in thirty-two pounds of chloroform, and the solution is then saturated with a current of ammonia gas. When the rubber has been completely bleached, the addition of the gas is stopped, and the solution is poured to a vessel provided with a stirrer, in which it is washed with hot water until the odor of chloroform is completely removed. During this operation the temperature may be increased to 180 degrees Fahrenheit, in order to evaporate the chloroform, which is then removed in an apparatus of condensation, and is again made use of. The remaining the dried form of the material being pressed out, dried and again treated with a small quantity of chloroform, is finally obtained as a consistent product. It is a white, crystalline, odorless substance, soluble in a sufficient quantity of finely pulverized phosphate of lime or carbonate of lime, and insoluble in water and alcohol. In this condition it is pressed in hot molds, which it leaves sufficiently hard to be turned, planed, filed, or bored. After the initial treatment with hard woods, etc., it is only necessary to mix the paste with the desired color previously to its being compressed.

which latter compulsion he received his share of. "The mine was a terrible thing; the words; it set upon him making 'a bee-line' for the 'Pony Bald,' and 'shook $16,000 worth' of silver, and shook $16,000 thousands in the hands of the 'New York Flat.' Snake always charged two dollars for two cords per day. 'Three dollars' was a price for a day's work, 'and' 'and' for hauling, which, of course, considerably diminished his earnings. 'Snake' was a pure 'old-time' miner, it came to pass that he should always be paid, could never be satisfactorily explained, the word of being what he termed 'flat broke' was applied to all, and was considered another of the mysteries of his peculiar life that no one dared to snipe, and accepted unquestioned."

Noway Flat, since the time of its discovery, has been the scene of the famous porphyry mining camp. The fabulous yield of many of its claims had been reported in the columns of the leading newspapers, and the prospect of enormous opportunities had been offered to Snake to become the possessor of ground which would bring him a fortune without any further mining. However, possessed no attractions for him. There existed in his mind a belief in the future of the excitement of the average gold miner's life. He never owned a foot of mining ground, "and didn't intend to," he said, "because I believe in the future of mining." Even when the Wake-up-Jake Company struck a two-onces-to-one lode of silver, he sold his share for nothing. When the company, then vacant, and upon which he was the largest stockholder, was sold, he sold his share of ground downward proved the richest of the camp.

I was, however, under no hasty consideration to do so, but was more than willing to see it, and in this he was invariably right. He would enter the room, and I would be inserted in his pocket, and he would say, "Come, come—keep your tongue in your pocket, hurry up; give me a look at it." And I would first cast a surreptitious glance of the hand, and then, as he would say, "I must drink." "Here's to the coming of a winter with a little snow."

In an inside pocket of a vest worn underneath his ragged overshirt, a packet of letters was found, all of which were addressed to James Wilkinson, Esq., Norway Plat. Sundry photographs of a young woman, a girl, a boy, and one of an aged lady, another of a woman in the prime of life, and the rest of the miscellaneous pile ran from ten to fifty years of age. "The letters were of the same post-mark," Mr. Eachenwood was induced in pencil mark, "to read, 'New York, Nov. 17, 1850, J. W.' " Indeed, "it read that Blake had been two miles from its starting point (throwing the debris into the air) and about six miles from Tuxedo, it struck a log cabin in which were sitting a woman and a child. The child was killed, and the door was carried away, while the occupants were left uninjured. Twelve feet of water was thrown into the air, taking off every log of the house without the slightest hurt to any of the family. The debris was scattered for miles on its approach. This is remarkable, but there are other like instances recorded, and it is not probable that the belief that a log house is the safest retreat. The direction of this tornado was east, and it was not very strong. The air was cool and pleasant, and at four o'clock in the afternoon heavy rain came on, and continued for several days in the form of a steady shower with northwesterly winds.

REPUBLICAN

Mass Convention!

Pursuant to authority conferred on me, I do hereby call the Republican Mass Convention of Atlantic County, to meet at ETHEL'S HALL, EGG HARBOR CITY,
Saturday, Sept. 30th, 1871, at TWO o'clock, p. m., to nominate candidates for Senator, Assemblyman, Sheriff, and other officers to be supported at the coming election.
WM. H. BOLTE,
Sept. 1871. Chairman of last Convention.

LOCAL MISCELLANY.

TOWN.

Mr. E. J. WOOLEY has the REPUBLICAN for sale at his news stand. Persons wishing extra copies can obtain them of him at the same price as at our office—single copies 3 cts. or 6 copies for 15 cts.

Mr. R. J. BYRNES, Esq., is grading the road between his property and the railroad.

The high pressure bellows at the blacksmith's, exploded a few days ago, demolishing a skylight. Cause—"a nigger on the safety valve."

Yesterday morning the house of Mrs. Wilson, on Third St., was entered, and a purse of money taken from a drawer, by a person who professed to be a plater of silver-ware. He was seen to enter the house by Mrs. Wilson, who arrived upon the spot in time to see the light-fingered gent take himself off through a back door. We suppose he is still in the vicinity: probably waiting for a job. If he should see this, we advise him to call upon Sheriff Redman, who will give him one ch. carefully.

The reception given to Mr. J. M. Peebles, on the evening of the 8th inst. at Union Hall, was a very pleasant and interesting affair. We regret that the press of business forbade our attendance, and that we have not been able to obtain a satisfactory report. The hall was filled to overflowing early in the evening, with old and young, grave and gay, to welcome Mr. Peebles "home again." Mr. P. greeted his friends in a short address and related many amusing incidents which occurred during his late visit to England. Among the famous personages whom he encountered were Elder Evans, of Shaker notoriety, and the irrepressible George Francis Train, both of whom were his fellow passengers on the voyage home. Misses Gregory and Platt, favored the audience with a few songs, one of which—"What are the Wild Waves Saying?"—we consider one of the finest pieces of music extant. To hear it well rendered is indeed a treat. Mr. J. B. Holt and Miss Gregory, recited several pieces, and as the time for dismissal neared, Miss G. sang a parting song—"Good Night,"—after which the large assemblage dispersed, well satisfied with the manner in which the evening had been spent.

Miss Mina Gregory, who is stopping with her friends in this town, for a few weeks' recreation, has yielded to their repeated solicitations, and will give an entertainment of song and recitation at Union Hall, on Thursday evening, next. We have not had the pleasure of hearing Miss Gregory, but from the many complimentary notices we have read in the New England papers, we judge she is a young artist of great promise. The lecture committee of Montpelier, Vt., in their prospectus, say:—

"We have engaged Miss Mina E. Gregory, whose dramatic and poetical recitations last winter (outside of the regular course) were received with more general and hearty favor than those of any reader who has ever been listened to by our people."

A Montpelier paper speaking of her engagement there, says:

It seems unnecessary to make any special announcement regarding this favorite elocutionary artist to secure for her a large and appreciative audience when she appears here under the auspices of our Association. Her great success two or three years ago in the peculiarly difficult role of Lucretia Borgia, when her historical and elocutionary talents were displayed for the first time before our people, is not yet forgotten. Last spring she gave two evenings of readings in Village Hall, and, contrary to the usual result when entertainments—though of real merit—are repeated in small villages, the second entertainment was given before an audience even larger than the first. Of those recitations we have heard only the most satisfactory accounts, and have good reasons to believe that none were disappointed in them. The committee desired to secure the best available talent for the evening of readings this winter, and from among the score or more of elocutionists seeking an engagement, selected Miss G. as most certain to please.

My Experience.

It has always paid me manifold to advertise anything I had to sell which the people wanted. It pays best to lay out your means in short, pointed advertisements. Ten short advertisements in ten different papers will pay four times as well as one large advertisement in one paper costing as much as the ten short ones. Much also depends in advertising in the right sections and in the last paper of that section. A judicious use of circulars to send to correspondents is of the utmost importance. When one feels enough interest in your advertisement to answer, be sure and be ready with a full, clear, and strong statement of all your advantages and inducements. Be sure and have it printed on good paper in clear new type, so as to be easily read and so arranged as to present the subject in an attractive and business like manner. The best class will be much influenced by the general appearance of the replies they receive.

Hammononton ought to keep short advertisements in all the best papers in the different shoe-manufacturing sections. We have advertised our place so widely as a Fruit section that it will not pay to run in that line much more except in connection with other things. Let us now ring out its advantage for shoemakers and manufacturers. Keep talking at home and advertising abroad and my word for it we shall build up a large place. My experience has taught me the almost omnipotent sense of persistent effort. All we have to do is to just keep doing and we are sure to succeed for we certainly have a good thing that will pay to advertise.

ADVERTISER.

COUNTY.

Tomorrow will see the last Sunday train for the season.

The Egg Harbor Fair will be held next Wednesday and Thursday.

The Democratic convention is called to meet at Egg Harbor City on Saturday, October 7th.

The Pleasantville and Atlantic Turnpike Company's toll for the month of August, amounted to over $300.

We hope the Executive committee of the Atlantic County Teachers' Institute will not forget to meet Supt. Wright at Absecon next Saturday, agreeable to his call which was published in our Wednesday edition.

Who took the Bell?
I, said Frankel,
With a Sheriff and writ,
I took the Bell.

Jes so. And who ran the same chap out of New Germany?

A Pic-nic will be held by the scholars and friends of the M. E. Sunday School at Absecon, on Wednesday afternoon and evening of next week. Interesting speakers will be present. Refreshments on the grounds. Proceeds for the benefit of S. S. Library.

The second monthly meeting of the Elwood Loan and Building Association will be held on Monday evening next. The Constitution has been printed and the necessary books procured, and the Association will be ready to make a fair start on Monday evening.

The Methodist Church at Absecon, which has been undergoing extensive repairs, will be re-opened on Sunday, Oct. 1st. Rev. Mr. Thomas, of Philadelphia, is expected to be present, and we suppose will deliver the opening sermon.

A correspondent of the Journal, with the characteristic windiness of that sheet, elaborates upon our modest notice of a dozen lines relative to our change to a semi-weekly, and fills half a column. We thank him for the very prominent notice and for many truths, which were doubtless unintentionally inserted. We suppose it is the first of the series which is to "overturn the Hammononton editorial chair." Next.

The Rev. Maximilian took the bell from the New Germany church a few weeks ago, to which he had no more right than we. It had hung in the Lutheran church for nineteen years, but the Rev. disorganizer couldn't stand it—it had to come down. It was a interesting sight to see the Rev. gentleman clinging to coat-tails of the sheriff for protection, after he had done the deed. The citizens promise to give him a free ride, over the Wolffield railroad, (narrow gauge) if they catch him over there again—without the Sheriff.

The Journal of last week related the story of an ass in reply to the "itemizer a la Journal." We thought, upon reading it, that it was intended for us. We beg the editor's pardon for our dullness. We did not intend to appropriate his autobiography, which we now see it is intended for, the itemizer of the Journal being none other than the Rev. Frankel. Hear what he has to say concerning himself:—

The itemizer a la Journal shows that he is not only an ignoramus but also a fool. It is beneath our dignity to answer him but we will do so by the following suitable anecdote.

A friend of ours had a mule which once during the process of being cleaned kicked the hostler. Smarting under the pain, the hostler took hold of a heavy whip and lifted it up with the intention of dealing out a blow to the refractory animal. But before the arm descended, we heard him soliloquize: "It's true you kicked me, but then you are on my ass. The whip was put back without being used."

And now we'll to a moral pass, Which this tale now, has taught
We do not like to whip an ass,
That like an ass has sought.

To all of which we very readily assent.

The Republican.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 27, 1871.

Mass Convention!

For the purpose of electing delegates to the National Convention of the Republican Party, to be held at Atlantic City, N. J., on the 1st of October, 1871, the undersigned hereby call a public meeting of the friends of the Republican Party, to be held at TWO O'CLOCK, P. M., on Monday, September 27th, 1871, at the Bakersville Agricultural Club, for the purpose of electing delegates to the National Convention of the Republican Party, to be held at Atlantic City, N. J., on the 1st of October, 1871. WM. H. BOLTE, Chairman of last Convention.

LOCAL MISCELLANY.

Mr. E. J. WOOLLEY has the REPUBLICAN for sale at his news stand. Persons wishing extra copies can obtain them of him at the same price as at our office—single copies 3 cts. or 6 copies for 15 cts.

The Democratic convention meets at May's Landing, not at Egg Harbor City, as stated in our last issue.

Our friend Clark, "over the way" has placed a handsome sign, of black and gold, upon his building. It was painted by M. H. Robinson.

The Second monthly meeting of the Elwood Loan and Building Association was held on Monday evening at the office of Thomas Irving, Esq., Elwood. Five Hundred dollars were sold on long loan at 83 per cent. From present indication, the Association bids fair to be very successful.

As wintry storms are approaching, it is well to have our roofs in good condition. We know of nothing better for leaky slate and tin roofs than the Patent Roofing Paint of the Mica Roofing Co. for sale by A. G. Clark. We have tried it and find it a good article. It is easily applied and costs but $1.50 per gallon. Try it.

Solomon says "there is nothing new under the sun" but Darwin's story how the monkeys lost their tails "by natural selection" and became men is new to some of us, but natural selection and survival of the fittest is not all a poetic fancy, but a stern fact in many cases. Farmers sow wheat and the "good grain" comes up strong, overtops and smothers out the feeble and sickly plants. Wild animals are in a constant "struggle for existence" and the fittest survive and propagate their kind. Even cities and nations follow the same rule, the fittest survive, the others perish. Western cities and even South Jersey settlements "among the pines" cannot escape the law of growth or decay according to fitness or unfitness, all things being considered. Now what we would like to know, is Hammonston as a community fit to survive and grow to a large place? Yes, undoubtedly, unless we lack fitness to our environment in being such blockheads as not to see the need of ADVERTISING, or seeing the need are so selfish and disinclined as to fail to do it. If we are so stupid, selfish, or inharmonious as to fail to attend to what so nearly "concerns our temporal salvation," we ought to suffer by fitter ones taking the lead of us as we certainly shall if not up and doing.

Mr. Thos. Depuy, No. 37 South Second Street, Philadelphia, would call attention of those wishing to purchase Carpets, &c., to his large stock. Read adv. in this issue.

Nothing, except the Sewing Machine, has ever been invented which so much relieves the labor of the household as the Wringer. But its usefulness does not end here. The saving of clothing is fully equal to the saving of money. It is often remarked that articles of fine texture, last twice as long when wrung in a Wringer as when wrung by hand. The Novelty has Cog-wheels on both ends. The rollers are allowed to separate freely at either end. There, besides other advantages which it contains, seem to be indispensable to a practical wringer.—New York Independent.

THE NOVELTY WRINGER.—Has become an indispensable institution to thousands of families. And we believe its great and increasing popularity is fully justified for the Novelty is a practical machine. Indeed, after using one for many months in our own family, we are prepared to endorse the Novelty as unsurpassed (the laudress says unquelled) by any of the several wringers previously tried.—Moore's Rural New Yorker.
