HARD P.

A. C. YATES & Co.,

Now only corner 13th and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia.

It requires "hard pushing" to dispose of poor wares. All sorts of schemes are devised to "push" inferior clothing onto the unwary.

At Yates', corner Thirteenth and Chestnut Streets, schemes are not in vogue—the goods sell themselves. They are gotten up with great care, are superior in every way, and still are sold at moderate prices.

THE PHILADELPHIA PRESS has won the foremost place among Pennsylvania newspapers by the liberality, enterprise, and fairness with which it conducts its business. Records, great events, and the completeness with which it records, day by day, the life of the city, state and country.

The Press, said one of the managers of Western Union Telegraph Company, "now receives more telegraphic news than all the other Philadelphia newspapers combined." This statement is authoritative and conclusive, and the Press offers in daily witness to its truth its twelve to twenty four bright and interesting pages.

The printing of news is always its first business, but it columns are also enriched by contributions from the most gifted special writers, the most famous novelists, and some of the most eminent public men of the day. The literary engagement already made for 1911 probably exceed in number and variety, and nearly equal in cost, any contemporary magazine for the field and resources of such a newspaper as The Press make it not only a daily history, but a daily forum and a daily tribune.

Its steadily growing profits and its steadfast contributions to the cause of the people, its progress, the greatest authors, as well as the best news correspondents, and their largest profits derived from its Pennsylvania newspaper, as well as their best Pennsylvania audience, in the DAILY, SUNDAY, and WEEKLY PRESS.

In its office, the Press is Republican, but it knows no other master than the people whose rights, aspirations and needs it always defends. It has no enemies to please, no individual parties to flatter, no party to please, and is not subject to any political or religious influence. It is the only newspaper in the city which is not controlled by any party or interest, and is the only newspaper in the city which is not controlled by any party or interest.
