TWO WEDDINGS.

Mr. Walter J. Coggey and Miss Katie U. Davis were married on Wednesday, Oct. 18th, 1905, by Rev.
Joseph Trencher, of St. Joseph's Church, at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Davis, on Second St., Hammonton, N. J.

The newly wedded being among the popular young people, a great crowd gathered at the Reading Station, it having been announced that they would take the 8:04 p.m. train enroute for Washington, D. C. But the rice and shoes and plot generally went astray, for, by private arrangement,
the carriage was driven up Bellevue
and spent the half-hour out of sight, until time for the bridge train on the Pennsy, which stopped for them; and only a very few saw the party off, and but a handful of grain was wasted in manifestation of good-will. We join in wishing them joy and prosperity.

Mr. Llewellyn R. Jones and Miss Bessie P. Westcott, both of Hammont-on, were married in Woodbury, N.
J., July 23rd, 1905, by the Rev. J. L.
Howard.

There was no demonstration on their return, as the affair was kept a close secret, and each pursued the even tenor of their way, until Mrs. Jones admitted the fact, last week. We all wish them long life and happiness.

It is stated on good authority that Jos. Campiglia will apply for a license, and conduct a combined poolroom and rum-shop in the old Fruit Growers' Union property, near Ben.
Foglietta's hotel. We do not believe that our Town Council would grant the license; and we know that there would be a vigorous protest against it. Under the best of management, a pool-room is a noisy rendezvous; and when attached to a bar, goodness only knows when and in what condition our young men (and they are in a majority in the games) will reach home. Keep the saloons and pool-rooms apart, and do not locate either out of civilization, where you cannot watch them.

O! the happy little home when the sun shone out,
And the busy little mother got the children all about;

Mr. Migg's Proposal

I set down Martha. She was of the ample, energetic type, and I felt that I was placing Mr. Migg in capable hands.

"She's not so ill-looking, neither, as you might think. Grayton went blind a month after he'd married 'er," he added, meditatively. "What next, mum?"

"I—I have cured for you a lone time!" I suggested.

"Nay, nay," said Mr. Migg, gravely. "I have cured many a man, but I might as like as not 'I've nothing put' I might reproach myself for after. I'd like 'Will you marry me?' simple."

It struck me that even a limited knowledge of the English language rendered this much for itself, and I said so. Mr. Migg shook his head.

"If you've wrote it," he said, "she can't for shame say if it's not to 'er liking. 'Tis no lie, nor is she name?"

"I explained to you the sign," I answered.

otherwise be valueless, and he traced his signature in irregular, disconnected characters. At the moment there was a tap at the door.

"Now Grayton would like to speak to you," I said.

"Not in 'ere!" interrupted Mr. Migg, abruptly.

"It'll come to her in a minute, Ethel," I said.

"What's that 'out' post this?" added the squirrel of demure hurriedly as my maid vanished. "If she sees me, she'll get round me with 'er tongue, and I'll not alter now!"

I hastily crammed my letter and his own into their envelopes.

"You'll find a stamp in that little box over 'er head at the end, and this one for me, if you will, and you'll let yourself out by the conservatory door. Miss Drayton will never see you."

I cut short his thanks as I departed to the individual whose hopes I had shattered during my brief period on earth.

When I returned from the interview which concerned Miss Drayton, I found the door ajar, and with-the-prise of eggs, Mr. Migg had made good his escape.

It happened that I was starting on the following morning for a fortnight's visit to a cousin, and I heard nothing more of the little bootmaker or his wife until the day after the next, when my hostess looked across the breakfast table from a letter in her hand.

"It's from your respected vicar's wife, Mary, and there's a message for you. One Thomas Miggs is—"

"Oh, you be unkind, I said.

"Gee, you're right, she is—"

"Tell Mary Thomas Miggs has anteduced us all by proposing to little Martha Mayne, at the Red Lion. He seems—"

"What?" I shouted.

"Oddly depressed, poor little man, and the little Juliette to whom we had opposed him are freely frolicking. Martha is cheerfulness itself, but I

"Oh!" I gasped. "I believe it's my doing—my mistake?"

"I knew you were a secretist or a hypocrite," had been writing to Martha Mayo when Thomas Migg had sought my services, and it came to me with a flash of intuition more convincing than any direct information that in hurriedly manipulating our joint correspondence when leaving him, I had been guilty of the same error. Over-persuasion is too each other's weakness.

And Mr. Migg, with his unfeeling horror of making himself ridiculous, and possibly some slight awe of me and consideration for my feelings to say nothing of Martha Mayo's was

"There's nothing for it but owing up," she said.

A Mother of the Revolution.
The city of Elizabeth, New Jersey, celebrated in July its successful stand against the British soldiers who marched through the little town on their way to Saratoga—the "Redcoats," the Queen's Rangers, the English and the Hessians, gay in new uniforms and brave with glittering swords—were held at bay by a little company of brave patriots, armed with muskets.

On the morning of the invasion a few young men, armed for fighting, stood in the front of the little old woman, feeble and gray, the grandmother of two of the group, came out of the house and went from one to another of the young men, encouraging them. "You are the men of the town," she said. "You are the little company." Then she addressed the little company.

"My children," she said, in a voice sweetly firm, "you are going out to fight for the rights of the people and the liberties of your country. You have my blessing and my prayers to God for your safety. But if you fall, I will be gone. Let the bag of you is empty. It may be in your hands, and the blood of your wounds may be in your backs."

The old woman's name is forgotten, and her speech still rings brave and true.

How He Knew.

It was a beautiful day, without a single cloud in the sky. The man who was in the store took a load in a delicatessen store remarked on the weather.

"Yes, it's fine, but it's going to rain," replied the dealer.

"Impossible!" said the customer.

"I'll bet you a fiver, said the dealer. Before the rain began the dealer was over, although I hate to take your money."

The money was put up and the customer went away chuckling.

Before the rain the man was calling in torrents. The man who lost the bet stopped at the delicatessen store to see the winner.

"How did you know it was going to rain?" he demanded of the storekeeper. The latter chuckled.

"See that ice chest?" he asked, pointing to a big box in the corner.

The customer saw the ice-box. It was sweating big drops of water.

"That chest," said the storekeeper, "is my brometer. When there is rain in the air, it begins to sweat. When rain is imminent it sheds those big drops you see now. I've had it over two years, and it never yet prophesied falsely."

"Never too late to learn," sighs the customer, "but sometimes a little knowledge comes high."—Chicago Inlander.

Green and Red Pepper Salad.—Six peppers—three red and three green—one bunch celery, one-half pound Swiss chard, one-half cup green peas, one head lettuce, French dressing, Yarb the peppers (cut off the tops and scoop out all the seeds), chop the tender stems and leaves of the green and red peppers, add the tender leaves of the lettuce and mix, then fill the peppers and stuff them with the mixture. Serve on a very-delightful-solid-course, as well as one pleasing to the eye. Serve on all green or all red papers can be used. If there is a color scheme to be carried out at a luncheon.

Crown of Celery Soup.—Wash twelve stalks of celery, cut off the tops, and cover the fire three cups of water, and as soon as it boils add the celery with the tops, and cook for one hour. Strain the hot liquid through a fine cloth, and add salt to the hot liquid. Boil for half an hour. Then add butter through a puree sieve and a pint of cream. Add a few drops of pepper and a dash of salt. Thickening made by stirring a tablespoonful of flour with a generous teaspoonful of melted butter. Let the soup stand in a bowl with a cup of cream and serve with croutons.

Apple-Cream.-Boil 12 tart apples until tender, remove the skins and pass the pulp through a sieve. Add a cup of sugar, heat well, and fold into the only well-beaten whites of two eggs, beat until white and foamy and heap in a glass dish. Garnish with candied cherries and strips of angelica, and serve cold.

Chicken Pie With Oysters.-Prepare and disjoint a nice fat chicken; put in a vessel, cover with water, season lightly with salt and pepper, and stew until it begins to get tender. Line the bottom of a deep baking dish with a nice sliced, raw, or boiled, thick, and the chicken and place a layer of the meat in the crust. Dredge it with flour, and place a layer of oysters with the pepper and salt on top. Repeat this until all are used. Pour in half the gravy and some oyster liquor, and mix with your cream and butter one hour.

Turnovers.—One cup of brown sugar, one cup of lard, one egg, two cups of oatmeal, one cup of corn meal, one tablespoon of butter, one cup of milk, one-half cup of sugar, one-half cup of molasses, one-half cup of white flour enough to roll out thin. Cut with a thin oyster cutter, join or jelly on, turn over and bake.

Hacked Mackerel.—Hack a cup of mackerel, broken in half length pieces, in rapidly boiling water until tender; drain and place in cold water. Turn out on a cloth and dry. Season with salt and a few grains of cayenne until full flavored. A full spoonful of the mixture can be used.

FOOT-BALL.

The High School team was defeated
by the Vineland High School boys,
last Saturday, by the score of 15-0.
Vineland started out with a rush, scoring in the first three minutes of play, when Chew went over for a touchdown. Fisher tried to kick goal, but failed.

Hammoncton then took a brace and prevented further scoring in this half,
and at one time had the ball on Vine-land's twenty-yard line; but Vineland scored the ball on a blocked try for a field goal.

In the second half, the Hammoncton line-up was changed. Smith had been knocked out by a crack in the head,
so Capt. Crowell went to quarter, Lentz took full-back, and Lockhart
and Jackson, right end and tackle,
had changed positions.

In this half, Vineland scored twice more.—Chew and Coates both making touchdowns, from which no goals
were kicked.—It was in the kicking department that Vineland was weakest, their kick-offs and punts averaging up to but ten yards, while the average of Hammoncton's kicks was thirty yards.

The lack of coaching told on the Hammoncton team.—their work in forming interference being very slow,
—but with another week to prepare for the game at Vineland, the score
should be different, now that the weak spots have been made apparent.

The line-up—

The Hammoncton Branch of the American Needlework Guild will hold its first annual meeting or reception in Odd Fellows' Hall next Wednesday,
Oct. 25th, from 2.30 to 4.30 p. m. Miss Rosemarie K. Bader, National Corre-

deliver an address. All articles con-

The garments or supplies are intended for our own town poor, as well as those at a distance; and the League would be glad to help any who may be needy.
All are cordially invited to attend this meeting. It is certainly a very worthy object, and every lady in town should bring to this society. At present there are about one hundred and seven-

YOU CAN GET YOUR ENTIRE OUTFIT AT OAK HALL

Every department thoroughly organized and splendidly ready to serve you intelligently and faithfully.

Men's all wool suits $10 to $27.50. Sterling fabrics in all the new models. The double breasted sack coat style this fall is immensely popular. We sell all wool black cheviot in this style at $10.

Men's fall overcoats $8.50 to $22.50. Plenty of worth and character in the all wool line of covert top coats and black cheviots at $8.50.

Very unusual value in the Oxford and Black Cheviot silk lined (some to edge—some to facing) Overcoats. $15 and $20. By large odds the best overcoat values we've ever given, and that means easily the best in all Philadelphia. There is nothing extravagant in this statement—there can be no other result when four hundred cutters and tailors are employed on the OAK HALL stock every working day in the year.

Men's and Young Men's overcoats in fancy
cheviots and worsteds, 51 and 47 inches in length, cut full, some with belt. Each pattern cut in a very limited quantity.

It's advice well worth taking when we say—buy early—these coats will be hard to duplicate in value later in the season at the price.

Men's soft vici kid shoes $3.50—solid comfort
for little money.

New shapes in men's hats. Derbies outsell all other styles. We show a splendid line at $2, $2.50, $3 and $3.50.

Men's furnishings. Sweaters for men and boys
$1.50 to $5.. Underwear 50c. to $2.25 the garment. A rattling good stock of neckwear—we make a specialty of the 50c. grade. Gloves—full line of cape-skins—$1 and $1.50.

Boys' all wool suits, short trousers at $5, ages 7 to 16 years, in cheviots and fancy cassimeres in double breasted sack suits. Extra good value because made by our own force, and the style is the big broad shouldered sort that growing boys like.

CARFARE TO PHILADELPHIA

If you purchase a certain amount here and show
your return ticket, we pay your carfare both ways.
