Miss Eva Sweet, formerly of Elwood, but for some years in government employ in Washington, died last Sunday morning, in Asheville, N. C., where she had been sent by her physician. Consumption had fastened itself upon her, and neither climate nor loving care nor medical skill could restore her. Funeral at Elwood, on Wednesday. Miss Sweet was a lovely Christian girl, a cultured young lady, a favorite while teaching school, beloved by all who knew her.

According to Thursday morning's dispatches, the Egg Harbor City electric light company have decided to discontinue business and remove their plant. There seems to have been discord in that company ever since it received the franchise. The personnel of the company has changed several times, and the plant was put into operation without any contract for street lights. There was not commercial business enough to pay expenses, hence the collapse. It is said that no light was furnished Wednesday night.

Last Saturday evening, after the Grand Army Post had completed its business, a delegation of the Woman's Relief Corps and Sons of Veterans claimed hospitality, and were cordially welcomed. Then followed a season of sociability, flavored with cake, grapes, and bananas. Arrangements were made for monthly sociables, to be given by the three organizations in turn, with a programme and possibly refreshments. It is a good move, for the three societies are united by a strong bond, and should know each other better, and work together.

Mrs. Mary E. Whitaker, mother of Mrs. Harry Smith, died in Philadelphia, on Friday of last week, and was buried at Laurel Hill on Monday. Mrs. Whitaker was born in Alabama, on April 16, 1837, and was the widow of James C. Whitaker, of Raleigh, N. C., who was killed during the Rebellion, while serving as Lieutenant on a Union gunboat, on the lower Mississippi. Mrs. Whitaker was a woman of very quiet and domestic tastes, and practically devoted her life to the service of her children, by whom her loss is deeply felt.

Labor is the inevitable lot of the majority, and the best education is that which will make their labor the most productive.

The Junior Mechanic's entertainment last week Friday evening did not draw as large a crowd as it deserved. Comrade Williams entertained all by his address on "Eighteen Months in Libby Prison," and the selections by the band were very well rendered.

It is a significant fact that the ships from Europe are bringing in more gold than those from the Klondike.

Temperance and labor are the two best physicians of man. Labor sharpens the appetite, and temperance prevents his indulging to excess.

The more a man studies himself, the less fault he is apt to find with his near neighbor.

Cheerfulness is an excellent wearing quality. It has been called the bright weather of the heart.

A good life is the best philosophy; a clear conscience is the best law; honesty is the best policy; temperance is the best medicine.

A Missouri farmer plowed up a pot of gold on his farm, recently. Many other farmers have done the same, indirectly, this year.

NEAR TO NATURE'S HEART.

I have dwelt in the earth's less places. On her prairies, wild and wide. Where the waving grass, like billows, Ripples from side to side.

I have dwelt where the foreign monarchs Were closely gathered near; They have sung me the grandest anthem Ever heard by a mortal ear.

And near and dearer ever The earth has grown to my heart; For the will not miss me, When I to my place depart.

—Waverley Magazine.

TAMPERING WITH A SIGNAL.

We wrote on the platform at Kings Cross. The evening train for Aberdeen was drawn up, ready for its journey. "A fine train, sir," I said to a guard of another later train, whom I knew slightly.

"Yes, sir, it is a fine train, this one, but—though I say it as a soldier—it's not the train it was a year ago, when we used to run up against the London and Northwestern every night."

"Exciting, sir? Why, I could tell you a regular story about it, that night as we ran from Kings Cross here to Newcastle without a stop. That was something like a run, wasn't it?"

"It was, indeed, and if it is not troubling you too much, I'd like to hear your story, for we are waiting to see the train off."

"I was the guard of this train on this particular night, sir. Our usual course was to run to York, without a stop, then on to Berwick, Edinburgh, Dundee and Aberdeen. Three nights before, though we had gone a large part of the distance at eighty miles an hour, the other company had beaten us by just about five minutes."

"But this night all our officials not only hoped, but had made all preparations both for beating the London and Northwestern, and also breaking the record."

"I was sitting at home that day, before the evening run was to take place, mulling my pipe and thinking deeply, when I was aroused by a sharp knock at the door. On opening it I found a well-dressed gentleman of about 50, who asked scuffingly if Mr. James—my name—was at home, and if he could see him."

Quaint Actions and Bright Strivings of Many Cute and Cunning Children.

Donna's Skirt Dance. Put on the lawn sit father and mother, Four-year-old Donna, Kate, Joe, neighbor and grandma, who asks, "Now, will we dance while papa gaily sings 'Tumity Tum'?"

Yes, oh, yes, g'an'ma, dear, and up she stands blushing. Her lavender muslin 'twist finger and thumb, her eyes are patient waiting. For none but papa must sing 'Tumity Tum'.

Tumity tum sets the tin clippers flying. Around and around the waving locks come, fall in, rise rustle, and "Bravo!" is shouted. To the musical beat of tum, tum-tum-tum.

But a dry, old stick, all doubled and twisted. Lies right in her path, close-crouching and dumb. 'Till her steps hasten on to a quick, quick, tee-tum-tum, tumty-tum, tee-tum-tum.

Then it springs! There's a whirl of locks, and an angelic. Embroidery and shoes; there she's up, rather glib. But again directing smoothly and steadily. To papa's cheerful "Tut girls, see-tumty-tum."

Coora, loora, tee-tum," so it now must be ended. With spirit and sever a tear in her eyes; That, time, she slips quiver while showing her brushes.

As she leans on papa, and, oh! how she cries! Detroit Free Press.

A Awfully Concisely. The Indianapolis Journal reports a crap of dialogue between two boys, some people would say that their ideas and logic were both rather characteristic of their sex.

No Old or Defaced Bills Paid out by the Bank of England. If the people really knew how many persons had caught some sort of disease from handling paper money which had previously been in the possession of sufferers from some contagion they would demand a radical change in the policy of the government toward old greenbacks and bank notes.

The Gory Figure of the Duke of Cambridge cut in the Crimea. It is rather amusing to read the English newspapers of the splendid service rendered by the Duke of Cambridge in the Crimea. As a matter of fact, the generalism of the British army cut a very sorry figure during that conflict. He was only present at two fights, at Alma and at Inkermann, and in the latter combat he fairly lost his head.

For Assemblyman, Leonard H. Ashley, For Surrogate, John S. Ristey, For Coroner, Chas. Cunningham, M. D.

It's Wins, They Say.

Some one signing himself "I. Renaut" writes to the Journal, evidently in defense of the proposed wine factory. As he refers to our article on the subject, we have something more to say.

Of the personal things at the Editor's stomach, we shall only say that neither our stomach, brain, nor palate have known the effect of any sort of alcoholic beverage for twenty years; hence that little stat's tails harmless.

As to mixing drinks,—no one thought of doing so; the active principle of each is alcohol, and as alcohol is only produced by the death and decay of the fruit or grain from which it is obtained, good sense should teach us that it is unfit for the human stomach. Who would eat a rotten grape? Yet fermented wine is but the rotten juice of grapes, disguised by sugar and various chemicals.

Mr. Renaut says that no pain is experienced if champagne is "used temperately." No doubt he is right; but observation proves that few men or women are long contended with its temperate use. Alcohol induces that peculiar appetite which only repeated intonations can satisfy—and that but temporarily. Increased thirst for the same deadly beverage follows each indulgence, until drunkenness results; and this, we presume, not even the "Benchman" will approve. Better let the still alone,—neither make our use it.

We cannot blame Mr. Renaut; he was no doubt trained in the use of wine from childhood. But there are others, who know the effects of strong drink; and other still, for whom we are anxious that they shall not know from experience. Those who do know will be responsible for the result of their acts if they enter upon the manufacture of champagne wines in this community or elsewhere. The hope of gain should not overbalance the knowledge of right and wrong. Bribery is condemned by every right-thinking man; yet the promise of pecuniary advantage, when it induces a man to do what he knows to be injurious to his fellow-man, is bribery pure and straight; and he who accepts cannot be counted innocent.

The State Board met on Tuesday, at Trenton, and canvassed the vote for constitutional amendments. The figures are about as we have given them. But an attorney for the race-track people was present and protested against the Board's decision in favor of the gambling amendment. He stated that while there was an apparent majority of 801 votes, about 901 ballots had been rejected, mostly because the official ballot had been crossed with a colored pencil or ink. The general law requires all marking to be done in black; but the special law only requires the crossing done "with pen or pencil," saying nothing about color. If that attorney should make a content, friends of the amendment may call attention to the fact that thousands of ballots voted had the crosses printed; and they may demand that all such be thrown out, because not crossed with pen or pencil.

William Emmons, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. B. Wood, of Hammonton, died at Vineland on Sunday morning, the 17th inst., aged two years. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. H. C. Randall, on Wednesday afternoon, at the parents' home, No. 17 Horton Street.

These languages in the household; it is desirable, a family should be speaking French the parent next has shown. A little more is nothing.

A man had crossed to land, and the child of five had been strangled at the doctor's feet. Oh, think where your daughter is, not in his hands but in the hands of God. With the still and mounting dead; but to the heavenly mansion. Upon the heavenly breast, the child has been laid out. Oh, weep but with pitying; the mother's tears are given, and to the child's grave, in the streets of heaven.

The Revival Services.

Rev. William E. Geil continued his meetings all this week—every evening and on four afternoons. Last Sunday morning he preached an exceedingly strong sermon. In the afternoon he dressed the children and young folks. In the evening, the large Presbyterian church was filled, including the annexed Sunday School room. On Monday and Tuesday evenings the attendance was large, and the interest marked. On Wednesday evening his text was, "And the hour is coming in which all the dead shall hear his voice and come forth,—they that have done well to the resurrection of life, they that have done evil to the resurrection of damnation," and it touched one of the most powerful sermons we ever had the pleasure of hearing. There was no laughter in this, but a deep, thrilling, eloquent earnestness that held his audience spell-bound. The effect was evident. On Thursday evening the topic "Where is Hell located?" was treated from the text, "Whosoever a man soweth, shall he also reap," and "Be not deceived, God is not mocked." He found Hell at the end of every unrepentant sinner's life. There was an immense audience.

Mr. Geil has a manner of preaching and work peculiar to himself. He holds that men who come from the business cares of the day, and its labor, have a right to be entertained; hence he uses many illustrations that are decidedly amusing when related in his ministerial droll manner; taking care that when their attention is fixed, some quick sharp truth shall enter when the laugh is ended. To some, his manner seems arbitrary; but he is a leader, a trained director, and knowing what measures usually bring success, does not hesitate to direct, and vigorously urges Christian men and women to present the claims of God to unswayed ones about them.

His after-meetings are the real work hours. Candidly notifying his hearers what to expect, he invites them all to remain. Then Christians of all ages are directed to talk with the unconverted ones present, on the subject of personal religion,—presenting the cause to the best of their ability, and the desirability of a clean life,—urging them to accept the offer of mercy and help. This work is comparatively new to Hammontonians, but seems to be the right way.

Of the results we are not fully prepared to speak; but the movement has not been a failure—far from it,—and it is not yet ended. We know that there have been a number of conversions; also, that many others, who have been simply careless on the subject of religion, have promised to give it honest and manly consideration. It is a manly thing for a man to do. He works hard from day to day to provide for himself and family; he builds and decorates a home in which he hopes to spend many happy years; he has his eye ever on the future. Why not extend this greater worthy care by preparation for the life beyond? It will not lessen his ability to labor; will not decrease his earnings or savings; will not detract from his happiness here; will lighten his cares to-day, and assure him joy and comfort when his earth-work is finally ended. Why not consider it?
