Sunday School Convention.

The Twenty-sixth Annual Convention of the Atlantic County Sunday School Association was held in the M. E. Church, May's Landing, Nov. 2nd, 1892.

The convention was called to order at 10 A. M., by Allen B. Endicott, President.

Devotional exercises were led by Rev. C. K. Fleming, assisted by Rev. T. C. Carman, Rev. C. W. Livezey, and Rev. A. H. Brown.

Rev. J. Wagg, Pastor of the Church, welcomed the Association.

The President appointed the following Committees:

On Nominations, Rev. G. W. Livezey, Edw. E. L. Tice, Mrs. Jacob E. Leedom, Mrs. M. C. Munson, and Miss Amelia Hanthorn.

On Finance, Prof. E. D. Riley, F. A. Souder, and John W. Johnson.

On Resolutions, Rev. A. H. Brown, Rev. T. C. Carman, Miss Clara Anderson, and Miss Cornelia Frink.

Rev. E. M. Fergusson, General State Secretary, then delivered an address upon "The State Work," and also spoke upon "How to Ask Questions."

Township Secretaries present, being called upon, reported.

Report of the County Treasurer was presented and referred to Finance Com.

Benediction pronounced by Rev. S. W. Beach, and the Association adjourned to meet at 2 o'clock P. M.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Devotional exercises were led by Rev. H. R. Rundall.

Committee on Resolutions reported the following, which were adopted:

1 Resolved, That the Atlantic County Sunday School Association hereby extends thanks to the official members of the M. E. Church of May's Landing for the use of their house of worship, and to the people of May's Landing for generous hospitality.

2 Whereas, during the year, Secretary S. W. Clark, Mr. Z. U. Matthews, and other efficient workers have been removed by death, we record our appreciation of their labors, our sense of our own loss, and our duty to work more diligently while we have the opportunity.

3 Resolved, That we cordially welcome the new State Secretary, Rev. E. Morris Fergusson, and request him to visit the Churches and Sunday Schools of our county as often as his duties elsewhere will permit.

4 Resolved, That we recommend the stronger Churches and Schools to establish mission-schools in out-lying new and destitute settlements.

5 Resolved, To appoint a committee of five to attend the semi-centennial of the Atlantic County Bible Society, on the fifteenth of November, at Hammonton, to suggest the importance of supplying every Sunday School scholar in the county with his or her own copy of the Bible, and to ascertain upon what reduced rates such a supply may be obtained.

The following committee was appointed in compliance with fifth resolution: Rev. J. Wagg, Rev. C. W. Livezey, A. J. Smith, W. R. Tilton, and Mrs. E. Joslin, of Hammonton.

Committee on Nominations made the following report, and the persons named by them were elected:

President, Allen B. Endicott.
First Vice President, Rev. J. Wagg.
Second Vice President, Rev. B. Eldridge.
Third Vice President, Rev. J. C. Cobb.

Committee on Finance reported that they had audited Treasurer's accounts, and had found them to be correct. On motion, the Treasurer's report approved.

Rev. S. W. Beach, of Bridgeton, N. J., then delivered an address upon "The Personal Ministry of the Sabbath School Teacher."

Rev. E. M. Fergusson, General Secretary of the New Jersey State Sunday School Association, spoke on "Reaching the Child Heart."

The following were elected delegates to the Triennial State Convention, to be held at Newark, Nov. 16th and 17th, 1892: Allen B. Endicott, Atlantic City;

Mrs. M. R. Morse and Miss Mary Hudson, of May's Landing; Rev. and Mrs. C. K. Fleming, of Smith's Landing; Rev. J. E. Peters, So. D., Pleasantville; Miss Clara Anderson, of Hammonton; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Leedom, Atlantic City; Rev. W. S. Schenck, of May's Landing.

It was voted to appropriate seventy dollars for State work.

The M. E. Church at Smith's Landing was selected as the place for our next meeting,—the day to be fixed by the Executive Committee.

After prayer by President Endicott, Association adjourned to meet at 7 P. M.

EVENING SESSION.

The Service of Song was led by Prof. W. J. Kirkpatrick, of Philadelphia.

An address was delivered by Rev. J. R. Mace, of New Brunswick, N. J., Subject, "Success in Sunday School Work."

The afternoon and evening collections amounted to $8.44.

Closing Words were spoken by Rev. E. M. Fergusson, and the Association then adjourned.

PAINT! PAINT!

HAMMONTON.

When you buy the Hammonton Paint, you do not buy seven-eighths of a gallon for a gallon, or three pints for a half gallon; nor do you get one of those packages that weigh 12 to 14 pounds, and containing so much alkali that it appears to be so thick that it is impossible to use it without thinning; but in buying the Hammonton you get a full standard gallon of paint, weighing 14 to 16 pounds to the gallon, made from the best materials known to the trade, and costs the consumer from $1 to $1.50 per gallon for honest paint.

If the purchaser doesn't want honest paint, and wants to be honest to himself, then be sure to buy the Hammonton Paint, and the manufacturer will give a receipt with every gallon sold telling you how to make two gallons of paint out of one of the Hammonton. It will cost 33 cents for the extra gallon.

One Dollar.

And then here comes Commercial Paint, in 30 shades,—the best wearing paint ever put on the market for so low a price as $1 per gallon, and guaranteed to be a first-class wearing paint. If any one should not want to pay so high a price for a good exterior paint, then work the 33 cent racket, and get two gallons for $1.33. Manufactured at

A LITTLE WORD LOST.

I lost a very little word
The other day.
A very naughty little word
Which I was afraid to say.
If only it were really lost,
I should not care a straw.
I think I should deserve a prize
For really losing it.

For if no one could ever find
The little word,
And no more from any lips
Should ever hear it,
I'm sure well of it would say
I should never regret it.
With such completeness to have lost
That naughty word.

But this time I really lost
It from my lips it flew;
My little brother picked it up,
And he says,
Mamma said that the worst word
Which he ever got it from
But the worst of it now seems to me,
He's always on it.

And said, papa looks pained;
Mamma said it was it twice;
Of course it's no use for me;
To tell him it's not true.
When you lose other things they're lost
And I'm sure of that;
And for every time I was heard before,
Now they think I'm lying.

It was then only really lost
Or then I should be glad
To tell him I was right;
The day that I got mad.
I'm sure, however, you've seen
To come upon their track;
But I'm sure you never saw
It always come back.

RAJEH'S REWARD.

Rajeh was a youth of Cairo, who inherited from his father a fortune about two thousand piastres. He inherited his little capital in trade, which have done very well for him. He was the first-born of his father's death. He needs fall in love with a beautiful girl, and then he would think of nothing else. He has a cousin named Saïd, who is the captain of a mosque, who has drawn aside her veil for a moment in dress "O drink, She was pining away," appears, she belongs to a noble family, and respectable family. As soon as she became aware of young man's gaze she replaced with modest-hate, and immediately, with a backward glance, he shoulder, which showed that he was no coquette. Rajeh followed and saw her enter a small house, which was occupied by a rich family, but fell in love at first sight, lost time in making inquiries concerning his enchantress. He could find no more of her, he thought that she was so good as she was beautiful.

He then called upon her parents, boldly asked them to give her to him in marriage. They seemed not adverse to the match, but when subject of her dowry was discussed, he was astonished to learn that he was to receive only their daughter's hand, no less than five thousand piastres, vain the disappointed lover protested that such a sum was beyond his power to pay. He then proposed to give money or to let the girl. As the latter course was intolerable he felt that they would allow him a few days delay.

And the parents, he did not act within the appointed time, they at once considered themselves at liberty to accept the proposition.

Rajeh, as he returned to his home, reproached himself for having away his past time. "Ah!" he thought, "if only I had not been so vain, and had been rich enough to purchase my happiness!" He took his money and counted it again, again, but no amount could make it more than two thousand piastres. — He to bed, but could not sleep. — Thinking of possible means of getting his means for procuring the loss of the money. At last a plan seemed feasible presented itself to his mind. There lived a not less than a rich man, who did not need for ten years, and who was said to be rich. "I will look him up," said Rajeh, "and beg of him to lend me some money, and I will give him, surely, refuse!" And he longed the day that he might get out of this hopeless quest.

He then dawdled at length, and he started on his journey. In both to be and to appear economical he walked all the way. Just as he was the first to meet him, he met some boys, of whom he had heard for his uncle, "the rich Jossouf," rich Jossouf!" echoed they, in deprecation. "There, I have seen him, Jossouf, who hates to lend away any money he has picked it clean."

At these words the youth's mind was within him. He knew that one of the lads to take him to be old's house. There he beheld a scared, ragged, dirty old man, who told him roughly to get out of his house. "What do you want?"

"Oh, dear uncle!" exclaimed the youth, "do not remember me? I am your sister's son, Rajeh, him that you used to love. Have come to you. How are you, dear uncle?"

"Oh, I'm quite well," said the old man, "quite well, but very poor, and I have to offer you very poor hospitality."

"What of that," returned cheerfully. "Both riches and poverty are heaven."

Thus conversing, they entered the soot's room, which was execrable dark and dingy, and where the old man, as an old man, and a father. Neither pipes nor coffee were to be seen. Rajeh, however, was humored and appeased, and he ate a morsel of detestable cheese and crusts of coarse, black bread, which was an unsavory treat, and he drank for the occasion, neighbors who was an old man, and he could scarcely believe eyes.

Rajeh was not accustomed here, but after his tollsome journey, really stood in need of a good rest.

"I wish you were going away with me," she said, "but your destination was in 'a wild and woolly' land and that the biggest crop was her ideas rapidly changed. "The Pacific," considered her doubts at civilization to a fellow-passenger a harmless-looking, middle-aged and told him the purpose of her was to teach school. "I am," he asked in tone of a clerical examiner to not to let to depart on the long-journey which there is no end. "I think," she said timidly, "I think I am," he said, "I think twice and brought a whole year at home." "You have some advantages. You permit me to ask you a few questions?" "Oh, yes, I am ready. I have good examinations in the East, and I think I don't fully understand them." "Well, suppose you tell me what you know?" "I know," he said, "white and sand--and why, I don't remember--what else. How?" "I am so sorry. I wish--" "Oh, never mind. Don't get excited. It's all right. There is a lot of it." "That is mined, isn't it?" "No; it is a product of man's hands. It is made of copper and iron, but I don't know. It's so stupid to me to forget, but I every day and I haven't succeeded. It is my dear young lady, you are at road to success. Origin of Table Utensils.

A French writer attempts to trace the utensils--most of them of Roman origin--to their origin. The Romans took their meals lying in very low couches, and it was until about the time of the Christian era that the stand was used, around which guests were seated on cushions, while the table made its appearance in the middle ages, and which it came beneath the table. The use of porringer, yet during a portion of the middle ages sices of bread round took the place of plates. The spoon is very ancient, and most of the articles of table use which are used by the Egyptians in the thirteenth century B.C. The knife although very old--had not come into common use as a table utensil in the thirteenth century. Examination of the utensils unknown to the Greeks and Romans, appeared only as a curiosity in the middle ages, and was first used on the table by Henry III. Drinking cups in the thirteenth century were more or less precious--usually date from the remotest antiquity. The use of glasses, from the thirteenth century. The use of glasses in the early date, and occupied the place of honor at the banquets of the Greeks and Romans. Many of them being of gold and silver. The castor is probably not older than the sixteenth century.

An Old Jewish Custom.

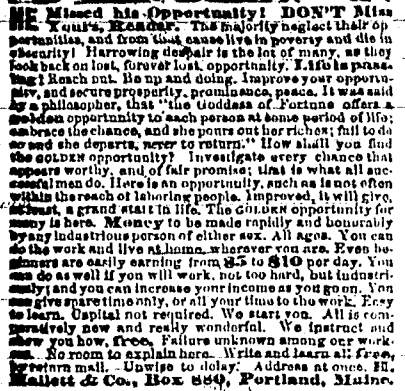

At the home of a well known Jew as recently seen a tiny flame burning in a glass. Examination of the bottle to be half filled with water, on the top of which floated an inch of pure olive oil. A miniature doat of corks, fastened on the side of a metal ring, placed in the water, passing through a small hole of thin wool, so that the lower end of the thread dipped through the oil into the olive oil. The upper end of the thread, as it came above the water, was covered with wax. The wax-covered taper served to keep the flame alive for several hours. "We burn this," said the lady of the house, "to keep the memory of our loved one. It is an old custom, and is observed. Some burn it for a month, while others, burn it for a year. Our family, adheres to the custom in all its purity, always keeping the flame alive for a year.

The "Chiquita" is a fine specimen of the great pair of you da Wauch (the most celebrated of modern painters of baby life) are to be given to those who subscribe to Demorest's Family Magazine for 1893. The reproductions cannot be told from the original, which cost $400, and are the same size (17 1/2 inches). The baby is life size, and absolutely lifelike. We have also in preparation, to present to our subscribers during 1893, other great pictures by such artists as Percy Moran, Maude Humphrey, Louis Bouché, and others, who are world famous. Take only two examples of what we did during the past year, - "A Yard of Panthesies," and "A White House Orchid" by the wife of President Harrison, and you will see what our promise mean.

Presidential Campaign of 1892.

GRAND INDUCEMENTS

TO READERS OF THE

South Jersey Republican.

The Presidential campaign of 1892 will, without doubt, be the most intensely interesting and exciting in the history of the United States, and country people will be extremely anxious to have all the general and political news and discussions of the day as presented in a National Journal. In addition to that supplied by their own local paper. To meet this want, we have entered into a contract with the

New York Weekly Tribune.

Leading Republican paper of the United States.

Which enables us to offer that splendid journal (regular subscription price, $1 per year) and the REPUBLICAN for one year
