The Republican.

[Entered as second class matter.]

SATURDAY, NOV. 14, 1896.

The Parade.

After our gentle hint, last Saturday, arrangements were hastily made to publicly express on Monday evening the popular gratification felt over the results of the recent election.

The Germania Cornet Band, of twelve pieces, came up from Egg Harbor City, and furnished excellent music. The McIntyre and Hobart Club and the "Star" Republican Club (Italian) formed in line in front of the REPUBLICAN office, followed by gaily decorated teams freighted with members of the fair sex, who were equally as enthusiastic as their voting partners over the glorious victory achieved. Colored lights and popping candles aided in illuminating the night. All over town, residences were brilliant with lights, testifying to the owners' joy. The procession marched up Bellevue to Main Road, back to Third Street to Pleasant, to Horton, to Central, down and back to Vine, to Egg Harbor Road, to Bellevue, to the starting point, and dismissed with hearty cheers.

Noteworthy among the illuminated residences were those of Mrs. Dr.
Peckles and W. L. Black. Mrs. Oakley's wagon was universally admired,—its wheels covered with bunting, a canopy of the same covering the occupants, Japanese lanterns and fireworks adding to the attractions.

It wasn't the grandest parade Ham-monon ever saw; but it was a success, just the same, considering the hasty manner in which it was gotten up.
Some of our prominent Democrats were invited to participate, being promised a free boat ride; but "they all with one consent" declined. In fact, they refused.
They said "No!" Evidently they didn't want to; so we excused them, and managed to celebrate without their aid.
We can hardly blame them, for how can one be cheerful at his own funeral? or the funeral of his fondest hopes!

Thus closed one of the most important political campaigns in the history of our country, and one of the hardest fought.
Possibly ended, let us—all of us—join hands in an effort to promote prosperity and happiness for all in this proud land.

The "Professor" will arrive on Thanksgiving evening (Thursday), Nov.
20th, and will remain over until the following Saturday, the 23rd. Tickets will be on sale Thursday, Nov. 19th, at 7:00 p. m., at Croft's Pharmacy.

As the business manager of the Acme Club has been asked by several parties to keep good seats for them, he wishes to state that no seats will be reserved for "The Professor" until the seats go on sale so as to give all an equal chance. Due notice will be given when seats can be had.

57 ACRES of land for sale, near Barnard's

N. B. AARONSON,
12th and Grand Streets, Hammonon.

The Reading Railroad Company will attach a special car or two to the excursion leaving Philadelphia at 10 o'clock, Thanksgiving morning, for the benefit of the H. A. and such of their friends as wish to see the great football game at Atlantic City. There will be a crowd from Hammonon.

NOW is the time to do your papering. Mr.
Powell's work will please you.

The Methodist Sunday School had a "photograph social" on Monday, adding to the above feature an entertaining programme of music, recitations and refreshments. We are assured that the next social will be looked forward to with pleasant anticipation, because of the success of this latest one.

and Philip Brotherhood of the M. E.
Church was held at the home of H. K.
Wholer on Tuesday evening, to bid a reluctant farewell to J. H. Wolfenden and family, who left this week for Germantown. A musical entertainment, games, refreshments, and a social time generally filled up a very enjoyable evening.

Bucklin's Arnica Salve

itively cures piles, or hemorrhoids. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction or money refunded. Price, 25 cents per box. For sale at Croft's.

Doubleless, most of our readers will remember that on the last Sunday evening in May a meeting was held in the Presbyterian Church, in the interest of local temperance, at which the Methodists, Baptists, and Presbyterians were represented. A committee of nine was then appointed to act for that meeting in taking active and definite steps to rid our town of "speakeasies." $105.50 was there raised by subscription to be used by said committee, added to the $50 appropriated by Town Council for the same purpose. The question has been frequently asked, "Is that committee asleep?" But they have been quietly at work, and at last secured strong evidence against a number. On Monday last warrants were issued for the arrest of six—"Genie," Tomasello, Mary Ann Clark, Matteo D'Agostino, Pagano, and John Baker. Up to this time, all but D'Agostino have been before Justice Pressey. Pagano discharged as the wrong man, Genie and Tomasello held for further hearing. Mrs.
Clark and Baker bound over for trial at County Court. Attorney Haddonfield acted for the committee. A good number of witnesses were also required to give bonds for appearance at court.

The action of M. S. Whittier in this business seems to be misunderstood.
Asking from a sense of Christian duty, he secured evidence and gave his testimony voluntarily, and should command the respect of all who look upon those places as sources of evil. Rev. Mr.
Bishop, one of the committee, while in full sympathy with the movement, has been prevented by illness from taking an active part.

It is but fair to state that a portion of the money raised for this work was contributed by Italian citizens. The committee have learned much more than they have yet made public, concerning the conduct and patronage of these speak-easies.

HOW MUSICIANS POSE

ATTITUDES ASSUMED BY DEVOTEES OF THE DIVINE ART.

Attitudinizing as a Part of the Business—The Musical Director and the Drum Major—The Pianist and the Concert Player.

Exactly why musical performers should feel it their duty to attitudinize as well as to play or sing is one of those curious problems presented by the complexity of our civilization to which a definite answer is not easy to give, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. Music, according to the most highly inspired of poets, is a heavenly gift, appearing directly to the soul, while the striking of a piano is an earthly acquisition, passed through much practice and appealing to nothing in particular, unless it may be in an indirect way to the pocketbooks of the beholder. It is quite possible that at some time in the history of the divine art, men and women played and sang without posing, such a way as to attract more notice by their attitudes than by their music, but that day, if it ever existed, has long gone by, and music at present is as much a matter of pose as of tone, and appeals in many cases quite as strongly to the eye as to the ear. It is quite possible that this fact may have grown out of the conscious superiority of the deep-dyed villain with his much-bent knees. The story of the pianist, they do not enjoy the same facilities for posing, because, being confined by the nature of their art to one spot, they cannot escape about the stage and transfer the audience with astonishment at their ability to turn round on their toes a dozen times without once falling down, but they make the most of their opportunities, under all the circumstances, really so very well, and from their initial triple bows to the boxes and parquets to their "Bait, Right," furnish their patrons with a very passable show. Lady pianists are always expected to furnish a preliminary entertainment with their flowers, which, after spending half an hour in pulling on in the dressing room, require five minutes to pull off after being seated at the piano. The gentleman of this profession, not wearing gloves on entering, do a little stage business with the piano. No matter what the occasion, it is always a little pose for one way or the other, and the services of the two uniformed Matebeles appurtenant to the establishment must be brought into requisition to make it right, while the pianist fully tackles the business of the job. Of course, they always push it too far, and then pull it back too far, so that a good deal of careful manipulation is required to place it exactly right; but the pianist does not object to working over time, the audience is always patient, for they know perfectly well what to expect, and that it is quite impossible for the artist to play until his instrument has been successfully established over a certain check in the pose, and the Matebeles have nothing to say about it, so everybody is satisfied. Confinement to the piano stool after the manual and pedal performance has actually begun does not limit, though it hampers, the posing in the least. Before actually beginning the program he may run over the keys, and then give the stool a hitch as the stage sailor does his pantaloons; during thoughtful tender passages he may lift his eyes heavenward, as though gazing into the distance, or, when the women in the audience may see how intense is his inspiration, and during the Scherzo he may sway back and forth, throw his coat tails about and kick under the piano as though driving out an imaginary enemy. The pianist has no right to pose, and all these gratuitous will be regarded as the outward and visible signs of an inward and musical genius. They are looked for by the audience, who have made up their minds to endure these things as a necessary evil, knowing that they are absolutely essential to the proper rendition of a piano composition, whether Nocturne by the dreamy Chopin, Moonlight Sonata by the rugged Beethoven, or Thalasside

where the music is merely subordinate and incidental to the main attraction, want to see the orchestra, gaze upon the bald head of the leader's bald head, watch the facial convulsions of the man whose business it is to pierce the atmosphere with the upper notes of the piccolo, and sympathize with the man who extracts dying groans from the double bass. So the posing business, to both artists and their audiences, and so long as each party is content, it is not easy to see why any one else has a right to complain.

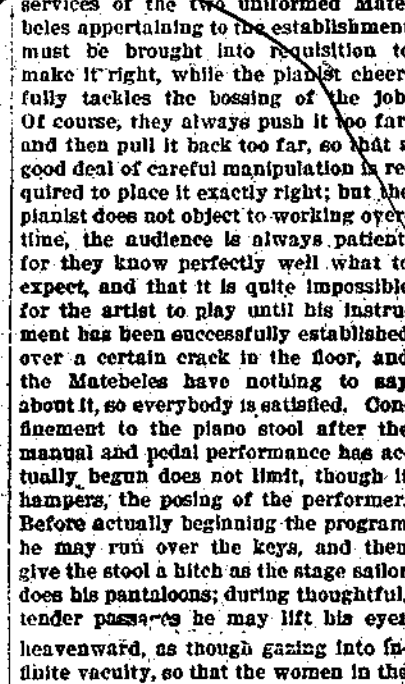

Of musical folk, the most competent posers for effect are the artists of the lyric drama. Posing is their business, and not infrequently they devote more attention to their attitudes than to their music, as reckoning that any deficiency in the latter will be evidenced by the audience on account of proficiency in the former. They have abundant facilities for exercising all their gifts in this direction, and the only criticism that can be justly made on their efforts is that they fall into execution attitudes, which are in accordance with the traditions of the stage, and have been in use so long that they have come to be considered indispensable to the proper rendition of the part. Nobody for instance, ever saw an actor play the heavy villain without bending his legs at a sharp angle and walking about on the stage as though afflicted with chronic ankylosis of the knee joints, for crooked knee joints and heavy til-many go together, and the former naturally suggests the latter. So, on one of our new stage plays, an actor, on the lyric stage, who had an enormous mustache without leaving against each other, the hands of the heroine clasped in an attitude of wild despair, while the man through one arm around her clinging form and extends the other in mid-air, while the twin jointly emit a wailing cry that makes you involuntarily feel for sympathy. It is not necessary that they be together and the more interesting the concluding yell the more intense is the expression of their mutual attraction and the greater their dis-testation of the deep-dyed villain with his much-bent knees. The story of the pianist, they do not enjoy the same facilities for posing, because, being confined by the nature of their art to one spot, they cannot escape about the stage and transfer the audience with astonishment at their ability to turn round on their toes a dozen times without once falling down, but they make the most of their opportunities, under all the circumstances, really so very well, and from their initial triple bows to the boxes and parquets to their "Bait, Right," furnish their patrons with a very passable show. where the music is merely subordinate and incidental to the main attraction, want to see the orchestra, gaze upon the bald head of the leader's bald head, watch the facial convulsions of the man whose business it is to pierce the atmosphere with the upper notes of the piccolo, and sympathize with the man who extracts dying groans from the double bass. So the posing business, to both artists and their audiences, and so long as each party is content, it is not easy to see why any one else has a right to complain.

many go together, and the former naturally suggests the latter. So, on one of our new stage plays, an actor, on the lyric stage, who had an enormous mustache without leaving against each other, the hands of the heroine clasped in an attitude of wild despair, while the man through one arm around her clinging form and extends the other in mid-air, while the twin jointly emit a wailing cry that makes you involuntarily feel for sympathy. It is not necessary that they be together and the more interesting the concluding yell the more intense is the expression of their mutual attraction and the greater their dis-

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral

A PREACHER'S EXPERIENCE.

"Three months ago, I took a violent cold which resulted in a paralytic attack of acute bronchitis. I put myself under medical treatment, and at the end of two months was no better. I found it very difficult to preach, and concluded to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. The first bottle gave me great relief; the second, which I am now taking, has relieved me almost entirely of all unpleasant symptoms, and I feel sure that one or two bottles more will effect a permanent cure. SEASON OF THE LANDLUBBER.

If you really want a song of the sea, let me tell you a story.

But some landlubbers, from an island town, this song will have the ring.

There never was a man who went to sea, about the world or before, who could sing you a rollicking song of the sea.

With a man who stays on shore, when the black tide comes and the harbor's mouth, we'll raise the lebbersons.

Oh, the starboard watch was well wound up, when the black tide came and the harbor's mouth, we'll raise the lebbersons.

And the chaplain piped the crew, when the black tide came and the harbor's mouth, we'll raise the lebbersons.

And the speaker floated free, when the black tide came and the harbor's mouth, we'll raise the lebbersons.

As we stood by our guns of some thousand tons, with a tale upon our line.

Then blow ye breezes, blow, and the suns they go hang bang!

A sailor's joy is the harbor-breeze, a sailor's joy is the harbor-breeze, a sailor's joy is the harbor-breeze.

By the light of the spinnaker boom, when the black tide came and the harbor's mouth, we'll raise the lebbersons.

Our captain said he would not, when the black tide came and the harbor's mouth, we'll raise the lebbersons.

The garboard strike gave room, when the black tide came and the harbor's mouth, we'll raise the lebbersons.

And we sailed away from New York bay, when the black tide came and the harbor's mouth, we'll raise the lebbersons.

By the light of the spinnaker boom, when the black tide came and the harbor's mouth, we'll raise the lebbersons.

The captain found the anchor a trip, when the black tide came and the harbor's mouth, we'll raise the lebbersons.

And he said to the anchor, when the black tide came and the harbor's mouth, we'll raise the lebbersons.

When the good ship crossed the line, when the black tide came and the harbor's mouth, we'll raise the lebbersons.

Then trail away on the tussled sheet, when the black tide came and the harbor's mouth, we'll raise the lebbersons.

Delay on keel downhaul, when the black tide came and the harbor's mouth, we'll raise the lebbersons.

It's our cowpait yard that is safe and hard, when the black tide came and the harbor's mouth, we'll raise the lebbersons.

And we'll reef in the sounding lead, when the black tide came and the harbor's mouth, we'll raise the lebbersons.

MADE IN GERMANY.

Anthony Alexander was a woman taster. He was also a student of philosophy, very comfortably off, a bachelor, of course, and at 40 the despair of determined mothers and dutiful daughters, who, when he came to their way (he did it as little as possible), scarcely laid heart for an attack.

Alexander made up his mind to learn German, because he desired to read in the original the works of Kant, Hegel & Co. In a weekly paper he came on the following advertisement:

"The German tongue taught on a new and speedy system, by Herr Schwartz, 615 Broadway, New York."

"Air Quilp" said the short, grimy, old man, the tall, grimy looking house.

"First floor to the left. Mind your feet when you go near the top; the carpet's gone."

Alexander climbed to the door indicated and knocked. A sweet, treble voice with a strong foreign accent said:

"Come in."

"What a fool man is!" thought Alexander. "The less he says the better."

He entered. The little room was neat, clean, and bright. A girl in a brown dress and black apron stood up to receive him. She had a pretty figure, rosy cheeks, large blue eyes and an immense quantity of fair hair rolled into a tight ball.

Alexander bowed stiffly, and said that, having seen the advertisement of "Herr Schwartz," he had come to learn German.

"Yes," said the girl, quickly; "he is my father, at all. You want to learn German, sir?"

Alexander replied in the affirmative, and added that he had had much time to spare, he would be glad to see Herr Schwartz at once. He stood like a tower, one bristling with buttonholes. The girl gave him an anxious glance.

"My father cannot tell now," she said. "Since he notices you, he has a complaint. He thinks of my father is ill, etc. He must not speak."

Alexander said he was sorry, and with a second stiff bow moved toward the door.

"But I, Hedwig Schwartz, I know the woman of my father," said the girl with a bright flash. "I can teach. I have taught. It is a great secret for me, at all."

She looked imploringly up into the face of the tall, black-headed, grumpy-looking man.

"I'm much obliged," he said. "Hedwig will be better soon. I'll wait."

Hedwig nearly let him go. Pride and love made a dash to do with her. An Alexander got to the door he heard a choking voice.

"It will not be better soon if I can no money to get him what he wants. Will you try, if I am not young, I am 23, at all."

"At all," this was one of the first phrases Hedwig had acquired on her arrival in England. She regarded it as an idiom of all work, and brought it in whenever she wanted to be particularly emphatic.

"Look here," she went on. "I shall give you two lessons, and if you are not contented you pay nothing; nothing, I beg your pardon of you; otherwise I shall persevere till the treat of my father is gone. Will you try?"

"I don't doubt your ability," said Alexander, "but—"

He thought of the girl to whom he had given his heart in early days, and who had deceived him.

He thought of the undisturbed, regular, independent life to which he was accustomed.

AN ORDINANCE granting to John D. Ball and William J. Sheetz full and exclusive power to use the public roads, highways, streets, avenues, and alleys in the Town of Hammoncton for the purpose of constructing, maintaining, and operating works for the supply and distribution of electricity for electric lights, heat or power in said Town of Hammoncton.

Introduced October 31, 1896.
Passed November 7, 1896.

1. Be it ordained by the Town of Hammoncton, in the County of Atlantic, that full and exclusive power is hereby granted to John D.
Ball and William J. Sheetz to use the public roads, highways, streets, avenues, and alleys in the Town of Hammoncton, in the County of Atlantic, in constructing, maintaining, and operating works for the supply and distribution of electricity for electric lights, heat or power in said Town of Hammoncton, and for that purpose to erect posts or poles on the said public roads, highways, streets, avenues, and alleys, to sus-tain the necessary wires and fixtures.

2. And be it ordained, that the said posts or poles, together with the necessary wires and fixtures shall be so located on the said public roads, highways, streets, avenues, and alleys as in no way to interfere with the safety or convenience of persons traveling on or over the same.

3. And be it ordained, that the power aforesaid is granted to the said John D. Ball and William J. Sheetz subject to the following regulations, and not otherwise:

That the said works must be completed and in operation in ninety days from the date on which the said John D. Ball and William J.
Sheetz shall sign and file with the Town Clerk their consent in writing to the regulations hereby imposed by the said Town of Hammoncton.

That the said consent in writing shall be filed with the Town Clerk within ten days after the passage of this ordinance.

That in case the said John D. Ball and William J. Sheetz shall fail or neglect to operate the said works at any time after their completion, for a period of ten consecutive days, then the power hereby granted shall be deemed forfeited by the said John D. Ball and William J. Sheetz, and they shall, upon ten days' notice in writing to be given by the said Town of Hammoncton, forthwith remove the said posts or poles, together with the wires and fixtures, from the said public roads, highways, streets, avenues and alleys.

That the Town of Hammoncton shall have right to purchase the said works at any time after the expiration of ten years from the passage of this ordinance, at its actual value, and that said value shall be determined and ascertained by three disinterested persons, to be appointed for that purpose in such manner as the said Town of Hammoncton and the said John D. Ball and William J. Sheetz shall hereafter agree upon by contract in writing.

That all poles shall be located and erected, and wires strung, under the direction of the Highway Committee, in a manner to avoid injury to trees and other property.

That the construction and repair shall be under the approval of the Board of Underwriters, the wiring and lighting to be done in a manner not to vitiate the insurance policies on any building or goods therein, in the Town of Hammoncton.

That the said John D. Ball and William J.
Sheetz shall and will, during the maintenance of the said works, furnish electric light to consumers on meter rates, which shall not exceed one-half cent per hour for each light of 16 candle power, or one cent per hour for each light of 25 candle power, and also furnish power to consumers at rates not exceeding five cents per horse power per hour.

4. And be it ordained, That this ordinance shall take effect immediately.
