The Philadelphia Press
For 1896.

Pennsylvania's greatest Republican family newspaper, The Philadelphia Press, will enter upon the new year under the most favorable conditions of its history.

A powerful agent in the national community, it is now more than ever a leader in news and able comment.

Its various departments have during the past year been greatly strengthened.

Pennsylvania is covered county by county,
city by city, town by town. No other newspaper covers the State so well.

The Woman's Page of The Press has become one of its most prominent features and is eagerly sought by ladies.

In the matter of Amateur Sports The Press
is also far in the lead and publishes more news on that subject than any other paper in the country.

The subscription price of The Press, per year, is: Daily, six dollars; Daily and Sunday, eight dollars; Weekly, one dollar.

The Press is the greatest want medium in Philadelphia and gives the lowest rates on that class of advertising.

BOAS IN A DEADLY FIGHT.

Exciting Contest for a Mate in a Brazilian Forest.

"Brazil is the home of the most gigantic boa constrictors in the world," said Henry Closser of Nicaragua, who, the professional snake hunter and dealer, known to circus and museum managers throughout the country as "Big Doc" and "Old Dollar" a "Foot," that being his name in Brazil, that he had met with the success expected, but I brought back one of the best snake stories, I think, that ever came from the land of serpents.

"I was out taking a business look around after some rare specimens of monkeys. I had chased a choice long-tailed leopards up a tree and was trying to get him when I was startled by a loud hissing sound that came from another part of the forest, like a gust of wind escaping from some narrow space. I looked in the direction of the sound and to my surprise saw a enormous boa on the ground, locked together and writhing in such a desperate struggle that big bunches of leaves were sent flying about in the air as if they had been disturbed, as if by a whirlwind. Then it was that I groaned aloud and metaphorically kicked myself because I had not gone forth loaded for snake, for I would have needed both of these gigantic serpents.

"The fierce struggle on the ground lasted five minutes and then the boas suddenly separated. One serpent glided to a large tree near by and went up its trunk like a spiral flash of lightning. The other snake flashed in the same way up another tree fifteen feet distant from the first one. I feared that the fight had come to an end, because the snakes seemed to be afraid and the other daren't."

"But I soon saw that I was mistaken. The snakes had hardly settled themselves among the branches of their respective trees when the foliage of both trees began to quiver, as if a wind were passing through and agitating them. Suddenly each boa, coiling its tail around a branch high up in its tree, dropped like a plummet toward the ground and hung at full length, the head raised but a few inches above the ground. For a moment their bodies swayed to and fro like slowly moving pendulums. Their eyes glittered like lightning. Then each serpent glided quickly half its length above the ground. Like an arrow each head shot forward and instantly the two enormous reptiles were locked in each other's coils like immense cables twisted together.

"Up-and-down, two and fro, the writhing mass moved in quick undulation, each serpent struggling for an opening that would place the other at a disadvantage. The forked tongues darted in and out of their mouths like pieces of flame and their hissing was incessant. The troops of chattering monkey spectators had been joined by hundreds of harsh-voiced but brilliant plumed birds, which were continually about and added their excited cries to the deafening monkey chorus."

"The desperate midair struggle between the boas continued for several minutes when they separated again as suddenly as they had rushed together, and each drew itself back among the branches of its tree. For two or three minutes the snakes lay quietly, each glaring at the other.

"Suddenly in one of the trees a hiss like escaping steam was heard, and the boa in that tree shot his great length toward the ground again. The challenging hiss was answered by one still louder from the other boa and it flashed down to its former position and confronted its foe. The boas did not rush together at once. One would strike at the other with the rapidity of lightning. With equal quickness the other would flash back and strike the first. The victor of the first fight, the other, and instantly make a counter attack. This interesting sparring match lasted for at least five minutes, when one of the snakes drew itself two or three feet above the other and made a quick downward fling. Its antagonist ducked its head lower to avoid the stroke and that movement was fatal. The upper boa darted down, and so quickly was its deadly attention carried out that I was not aware it had been done until I saw the upper snake with three of its coils around the lower one.

"There was a dreadful crunching of bones and in the twinkling of an eye the victorious snake had drawn the vanquished one three folds further within its fearful embrace. There was more crunching of bones and by degrees the tail of the defeated serpent, uncoiled from its hold on the branch of the tree and at last the great reptile dropped heavily to the ground, a crushed and lifeless mass. For a moment the victor held the vanquished in its coils and then it coiled itself around the crushed body of its lifeless foe with loud and angry hisses, shooting its tongue in and out like a scaly shuttle. Then it moved a few feet and stopped.

"Much to my surprise a third boa now appeared on the scene, a magnificent female specimen. She joined the conqueror in the coils and the victor knew it was for her that the deadly deed had been fought, and she

NOTES OF THE DAY.

Experiments made by the Italians at Massowah in raising European grapes on the Abyssinian plateau have proved very successful.

An overhead single-rail electric railway is being put up between Leipzig and the twenty miles between the two towns in fifteen minutes.

During the last month 12,500 telephones were added to the number in use under contract with the American Bell company, the largest gain ever made in any one month.

Mechanisms are being turned out of Russian possessions as well as the Jews. Five thousand of them were recently carried in one batch from the Caucasus to Turkish territory near Constantinople.

Baron and Laras Dones's country is to be spoiled by a railroad, the first ground for which was lately broken between Barnstable and Lynton. The stage coach drive between Iffracome and Lynton was one of the most charming for miles of hay and straw in forming stacks. Figure 1 shows the device in perspective, Figure 2 being a sectional view of the parts of the derrick.

The base block is secured in position by headed studs driven in the ground, and receives the lower end of a derrick post, held upright by guy ropes. On the upper end of the post a carrier arm is pivoted to rock, and on a reduced portion of the arm is a traveling frame from which is supported a sheave block, anti-friction rollers facilitating the ready movement of the frame.

To rock the carrier arm and retain it at any desired inclination a rope extends from the post over a pulley on the rear end of the arm and thence over and around other pulleys on the post to a fastening point. The hoisting rope, secured at one end to the front portion of the traveling frame, passes down over a sheave pulley and up over a loose pulley of the frame, and thence over pulleys on the post, and an idle pulley held in brackets at its base, extending horizontally for convenient connection with a team or other power.

Convenient means are provided for locking the post and arm in position and for automatically releasing the arm and swinging it laterally after depositing a load, the provision for rocking or inclining the arm facilitating the deposit of its load at any required place on the track. This derrick, which is readily taken apart and packed in a wagon for convenience in moving—See entire American.

An impulse to the movement of good roads on the part of the authorities has been given at Los Angeles by a woman bicyclist, Miss Glover, who is suing the city for damages for injuries sustained by falling into a hole in the pavement of Broadway in that city. It is thought there that a few verdicts against the city will do wonders toward securing good pavements.

Montenegro is to have a standing army. Hitherto the army has been liable to serve in time of war, the Prince's body guard of 100 men has been the only organized force kept during peace. Now the whole population will gradually be drilled in the use of arms. The army is to be organized in sections following another in Russian service for three months.

Mushrooms grow in immense quantities in the Russian forests, the inhabitants in some places existing entirely by selling them. Katapoff, in Olonets, sends yearly 5,000 pounds (180,000 pounds) of mushrooms to St. Petersburg. The varieties are many. With one form, the mukhomor, the native tribes of Siberia intoxicate themselves; an infusion from it has a stupefying effect like that of opium or hashish.

Jack Beam, of Fayetteville, Ky., while out riding six years ago was thrown from his horse and badly bruised. The horse ran away and could not be found. The other day while Beam was sitting in the yard, the horse walked up to the gate. One moidy strap was the only vestige of harness left, and his hair was long and full of dirt. It is believed that the horse has been living in the woods ever since he ran away.

Glass of different colors has been tried on growing plants by M. Zacharzewicz, professor of agriculture at Vaucluse, who finds that the finest and earliest fruit is grown under clear glass, green glass produces an increase of sweetness, but the amount, size and color of the fruit suffer. Under violet glass the amount of fruit increases, but its quality deteriorates. Red and green glass is injurious to all forms of vegetation.

In the lower part of each car door is an air outlet having a covering of wire netting at one side and at the other a hinged cover plate opening outward.

THERE IS NO SUCH THING AS UNSELFISHNESS.

A TITLED NEWSBOY.

Chicago has a novelty in the shape of a newsboy, for there is a genuine title in the name of Baron Richard von Sydow and every day, rain or shine, he is seen carrying a large bundle of papers through the streets of Chicago's North Side. The Baron is not yet 10 years old, but his stooped form and wrinkled face make him appear much greater age.

Baron von Sydow is the son of the famous Gen. William von Sydow, who took a prominent part in the battle of Waterloo. He joined the German army at an early age, and for his bravery was advanced to the rank of captain in the Blucher Hussars. He was a man of very moderate means, and he found life among the members of this aristocratic society too expensive. In 1851 he came to the United States, and immediately joined company B, Twelfth Illinois Cavalry. He was with this company in many battles during the civil war, and rose to the rank of captain.

After the war, Baron von Sydow returned to Germany, but soon came back to the United States and has since lived in Chicago, where he has supported himself by selling papers. Baron von Sydow is well acquainted with Blumkrantz and was present at the latter's marriage, he being a distant relative of the German statesman.

FANTASTIC WORK IN THE COUNTRY. A Marvelous Mirage in Alaska—Some Queer Tales from Alaska—In Idaho.

Did you ever stop to think of the lavish and fantastic way in which nature has glorified the continent or deepened the mystery of some of her doings? And then with the gigantic fabric of fact, has added uncounted fringes of fiction? When Richard D. Willoughby, known to the coast as "Professor," reached San Francisco from Alaska five years ago, he told a story that seemed almost incredible, and backed it up with photographs "taken on the spot." He asserted that at 9 o'clock one evening in the previous June, while at Glacier Bay, Alaska, he had secured the negative of a mirage. The pictures displayed, although rather indistinct, were plain enough to show the details of a bird's-eye view of the bay, with its smoke stacks, ferries, walks, etc. All Canadian or English, but none could locate this mysterious city of the air. There is quite a different scene being enacted in the distance. The Amalikites, having ravaged and annihilated all the other countries, are celebrating the host of a roaring carnival. Some of them are dancing on the lawn with wonderful gyrations of heel and toe, and some are doing the whole lot of it. They are dressed in the spoils of victory—the furs, fangs and carapaces of the animals, and the feathers of the birds. They are now part of the time in the hospital and part of the time on the dance floor. The men who saw the photographs agreed that the style of architecture was either Canadian or English, but none could locate this mysterious city of the air. There is quite a different scene being enacted in the distance. The Amalikites, having ravaged and annihilated all the other countries, are celebrating the host of a roaring carnival. Some of them are dancing on the lawn with wonderful gyrations of heel and toe, and some are doing the whole lot of it. SATURDAY, NOV. 16, 1895.

How blind—apparently—are Democrats as to the cause of Democracy's recent overwhelming defeat. They have as many reasons as men have for drinking intoxicants. Why not come out squarely and give the true reason, as the man did who said he wanted a glass of brandy, not because there was anything the matter with him, but because he loved it? Why can't these Democrats be honest? If they were, they would say, "we are in the soup because our party is so full of pure cussedness,
our leaders so corrupt, and ignorant of the needs and wants of the people, and care so little for them; those in office so incompetent, the people have become thoroughly disgusted, and voted a want of confidence, as the vote of the 5th
most emphatically shows." Then, why not say so?

The great Republican majorities were given where the Imperial Democratic tariff law most affected the laboring men, taking from them their bread and butter, and driving them to beggary
and starvation. No wonder the storm
of votes astounded Cleveland & Co.,
who one would think were the paid-agents in the United States, of British manufacturers, and all British interests.

The Discovery Saved His Life.
Mr. G. Callonette, druggist, Beavers-ville, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. I was taken with a gripe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail, and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store, I sent for a bottle
and began its use, and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep house or store without it." Get a

Almost, but —!

The H. A. A. football eleven were defeated last Saturday by the United A. A., of Philadelphia, with the final score of 4 to 2.

The U. A. A. team as it came here consisted of eight members of the regular team and three members of class teams of the University of Pa.—Correa, L. E., and M. R. Jackson, L. H. B., of the Dental '97, and Griffith, R. G., of the Medical '98, champion class team of old Pennay. Hammonton had only five men who had ever played in a regular game, only two, Davison and Parkhurst, who have played in their present positions. Notwithstanding this the home team put up a much better all around game than the visitors. The snapping back of the ball, especially, formed a great contrast between the two teams. The U. A. A. persisted in trying to roll the ball back, notwithstanding the delays and fumbles caused thereby, while Davison always succeeds in landing the ball in the quarter-back's hands. When our boys broke through the line to secure the ball on a fumble, the other team would cry "off side," and would be granted 10 yards by the inexperienced though well-meaning umpire; if it had not been for Phillips the home team would have been swindled out of more yards than they were. The visitors tried to jaw the "country bumpkins" into their way of thinking, but were often treated to a forcible dose of rules. After one play of eight or nine minutes, seventeen minutes were spent in jawing. In this respect the game with the chronic kickers was an unfortunate one for our peaceable pedulous punters.

Parkhurst made some of the most rousing runs and telling tackles. Jackson made a couple catching kick offs (in which the U. A. A.'s were "not in it"), as well as some good tackles. Roberts, also, though unfortunately not well observed, distinguished himself, but by reason of his lightness the opponents doubled him up with their superior weight. Farrar, from his position way back, was able to save his goal a few times. The half backs were not used so much, or at least made less gains than the ends. All the runners made too little use of the interference. Jones ran parallel with the line too much, but Parkhurst showed considerable gain over his last year's record for losing ground. Langham's star act, as will appear later, gave us our poor, lone—but, oh, how dear!—safety.

In the game as a whole the H. A. A. played rather a defensive than an offensive game and the U. A. A.'s soon found that they could rely only on their superior weight. Even then, after the first part of the game they scarcely succeeded in forcing the ball into Hammonton's territory, so staunch was our line. The visitors had the kick off, Slack secured the ball for our team, Dodd was tackled and lost the ball. Soon after, Farrar went up to the line to strengthen the center and left the field clear for Bryan to break through in the scrimmage and make the first and only touch down—within two minutes after the commencement of the game. No goal. Jackson kicked off to Bryan who was tackled by Slack, gaining about thirty yards for our team. Teufel, the quarter back, pretending to pass the ball back, ran around the left end and was downed by Jackson after he had gained about thirty-five yards by his little trick. Soon after they lost 10 yards on a fumble and Jackson secured the ball. Then Parkhurst made 10 yards around the left end, Jones 8 around the right, Parkhurst 7 around the left and Jones lost 7. Farrar tried for a goal from the field but it rolled out and Roberts secured it. Soon after the visitors were given 10 yards for off side play before the ball had been put in play, then by pushing they obtained more until the H. A. A. were given 10 yards for another off side play. Parkhurst again had the ball and brought it within 35 yards of his opponents' goal when time was called.

The second half was short—20 minutes—in play. Jackson made 60 yards with his kick off to Bryan, through Treat's good tackle. M. R. Jackson was tackled by Parkhurst for a loss of 4 yards, Bryan by Farrar after a gain of 15. Bryan kicked from very near his goal to Farrar who returned it over the line. It was brought out to the 25 yard line. The U.'s were given ten yards for off side play and soon after Hammonton 25 yards for foul tackle. Again the ball was close to the visitors' goal and Bryan kicked it only to be blocked by Langham who had broken through just in time. Parkhurst started after it, but hesitated, and the golden opportunity was lost.— Correa dropped on it, making the safety touch down. Nothing else of great moment happened during the game save Parkhurst's great run around the left end gaining 80 yds. The game closed with the ball in the U. A. A.'s territory.
