"Dare to Do Right, Dare to be True."

Dear Boys and Girls: Your vacation over, you doubtless congratulate yourselves on being back in school, with the prospect of the holiday season in the near future. I hope I shall not put a damper on your good times by telling you that the simplest games you play have an educational value, and that they were invented by persons who had the schoolmaster spirit.

Such plays as "drop the handkerchief," "tag," and other games, give children the exercise they need to help them grow, and at the same time teach them to observe quickly and to use their judgment.

It is safe to say that smokers of cigarettes would not be likely to beat at "Pigs in Clover," or at "Jack Straws," which require calm nerves and steady hands.

Ball, croquet, and tennis each teach alertness, dexterity, and mental calculation, while real brain-work is needed if one would be expert in chess, checkers, and kindred games. If we analyze the faculties which we use in our pastimes, we shall find that they are of the same kind that the world's most famous and successful men and women have used in doing their great work.

So, boys and girls, play on if you will, but play honest, and fair, and true, if you desire to grow up sober, honest men and women.

Two Fires and—

About 10:30 last Sunday night, the fire bell roused those who had retired, and summoned the firemen to duty. A pedestrian, passing on Egg Harbor Road had seen flames at the Skinner Glass Factory, and promptly gave the alarm.
The great coal bin, built against the brick engine house, partly filled with soft coal, was on fire, and stubbornly resisted the fumes of acid and soda; but was finally conquered. What caused the fire is uncertain. Some think it was spontaneous combustion; but it was uncovered, out-of-doors. There were some circumstances which justify a suspicion of incendiarism.

NUMBER TWO

About one hour later, just as some of the firemen had lost consciousness in sleep, the dread clangor sounded again, and once more the faithful fellows hastened to duty. This time lively work was demanded, and right well performed.
The whole rear end of J. S. Rogers' pharmacy building was in flames; and being located right in the heart of the business section, there was need of prompt and efficient work, to save the entire block. Two firemen happened to be near by (had not gone home since the first call), and in a minutes time had the chemical enroute, and being quickly joined by others, ran the engine through the alley, and soon poured a hissing stream into the roaring flames. This kept the fire somewhat in check for a few minutes, and when the old reliable pumping engine began its work, we saw the gratifying effects. It was about an hour, however, before the danger was entirely over, and then the pharmacy was a bad looking place. The first story, rear, was burned to charcoal, and away up to the roof the black ruin ran.
The store was damaged by water, and its contents by heat, smoke and soot.

The fire originated in the room occupied by Mr. Rogers as a sleeping apartment. Attempting to place a lighted lamp on a shelf, it fell, broke, and scattered the burning oil all about.
Worst of all, Mr. Rogers was seriously burned about the face and head, and also both hands, but shouted for help, which came quickly. He was taken to Leib's drug store, Dr. Crowell summoned, and after having his injuries dressed, was taken to his boarding house—Mrs.
C. H. Wilson's. The next day, both eyes were closed by the swollen flesh about them, but he was much better on Tuesday, and has gained steadily.

The damage to the building (owned by G. W. Prosser) and fixtures, we should think might be repaired for five hundred dollars. The loss on stock will be greater; but we are told that both are insured.

AND—

During that same Sunday, the little son of Wilbert Beverage went upstairs, took considerable trouble to get a match, then set fire to the feather-bed.
Fortunately, he was frightened, and shouted in terror; his father rushed up in time to prevent any catastrophe beyond a damaged bed and (we presume) a well spanked boy. But suppose he had been alone there!

ANOTHER AND—

At the Columbia Hotel, that same Sunday evening, a linen curtain caught fire, and a lively blaze started; but here too, prompt aid and a minute of vigorous work prevented disaster.

It was too lively to be pleasant, when we group the stories together,—two incipient fires with narrow escapes, and two fire alarms, within a few hours, on Sunday.
