Two Fire Alarms.

It was just 2:25 when the bell sounded, last Monday afternoon. Flames were then issuing from a barn owned by Mrs. Teke C. Ballard, on Horton Street, which housed the Childs team.
Ten minutes later it was evidently impossible to save the structure, and attention was given to the several smaller barns and outbuildings close by.
The one horse therein was saved, slightly singed. It was a lively fight, but well won, with roof and one side of Mrs.
Carlaw's barn burned off. It was a bad nest, as the small buildings made pretty close connection with several dwellings, and they are not far apart on both Horton and Third Street.

Rain fell in abundance most all day,
Tuesday, but notwithstanding this, fire smouldered in the hay and rubbish of the ruins, and at 2:15 Wednesday morning the firemen were again called out,
as flames were issuing from the heap.
A dose from the chemical engine soon settled it.

A SQUARE DEAL!

A Recent Case Proves that Prudential Policyholders Get It.

A very important matter has come to notice recently in reference to a claimant on the life of William A. Hook, who was insured in the Prudential Insurance Co. This gentleman had carried a policy in The Prudential about two years, premiums being paid by the insured and his father, but a policy was allowed to lapse two years ago. At the time of the death of the insured, Supt. D. A. Leonard stopped at the home of the Hook family and informed them that they had a claim on the deceased. Twenty years' endowment policy. This at once was made, but the policy had been made in 1906, and the Hook family would not have known that there was any value to the policy if it had not been for the information they received from Supt. Leonard, who has charge of the Company's business in this vicinity. This is an important matter to the public and to over 20,000 policyholders who The Prudential Insurance Co. has insured in this city. The Prudential Insurance Co. of Newark, N. J., made the largest increase in insurance in force of any company in the world for 1906, and they deserve the honor of being not only the greatest life insurance company in America, but in the entire world.

IT IS WONDERFUL how much satisfaction can be obtained from a talk over the Bell Telephone.

A letter carries words, but the Bell Service has been brought up to such a point of perfection that the modulations of the voice are clearly heard.

The cheery tones show that the talker is well and in good spirits. The call may come from a suburban village or a distant city, but within the limits of the carrying power of the voice the Bell Service carries the tone as well. You get a personal interview with a friend hundreds of miles away.

DRILLANT SUNDAY SERMON BY DR. L. M. HALDEMAN

Seminaries at Monaca.

New York City.—Before an audience that taxed the capacity of the building, the Rev. Dr. L. M. Halde- man delivered the second sermon on "The Signs of the Times." His sub- ject was: "The Modern Theological Seminary as Monaca and Bethel." The text was II Kings, 11:16. He said:

Elijah, the mighty prophet of God, who defied the king, shut up the heavens that there was neither dew nor rain, but, according to his word, the prophets of Baal called for fire from heaven upon the altar, visited terrible judgment upon the land, is now to be taken up to heaven by a whirlwind, attended by celestial hordes and chariots of fire. Elijah, his successor in the prophetic office, accompanied him on his journey from Gilgal to Bethel, from Bethel to Jericho, where there was a theological seminary, and the sons of the prophets (the students of that day) said to Elijah: "Knowest thou that the Lord will take away thy master from thee this day?" And he answered: "Yes, I know it. Hold ye your peace. And they went on to the River Jordan. And after the sons of the prophets went and stood afar off to view what would happen. And Elijah took his mantle and smote the waters and they were divided, so that they two went over on dry ground. And Elijah said unto his servant: 'Behold, there be with us fifty strong men. Let them go and seek my master. And if they find him, let them say unto you: "Go not!"' And he said: 'I will not send them. The passing through Jordan typifies the passage from the old to the new. In Scripture, sets forth judgment, and is a type of the cross of Christ, where with an agony that rent the rocks and drew the veil of midnight darkness over the face of nature, He bore the judgment of sin. His blood cleanseth from all unrighteousness. "If ye love me, my God, why didst Thou forsake me?" Christ came, not to be an example or a teacher, but to be a sacrifice for the sin of the world. For He poured out His blood unto death."

The accusation of Elijah sets forth in type our own position in the world, through the shining portals of glory, to sit down on the right hand of our Father in heaven, and to be an enthroned an-purser, the vision man in the heavens in bodily presence. The spirit of Elijah resting upon him, shows the spirit of Christ incarnated in the Church. After our Lord's resurrection He breathed upon His disciples saying: "Receive ye the Holy Spirit," and on the day of Pentecost the promise of the Father was fulfilled, and they were endued with power from on high.

Our present-day theologians are like the theologians of Jericho of old. They perceive the spirit of Christ, but repudiate His material presence in heaven. All sorts of things are attributed by them to the Spirit of Christ. They tell us that the Spirit of Christ has given us the marvelous inventions of the day, rapid transit, wireless telegraphy, and the like, and the discovery of the North Pole. All these things of the spirit of the natural man, these Jericho theologians of our modern semina- ries tell us are the workings of the Spirit of Christ in man. Of course they have no other explanation for the things that are going on in the world than to say that it is the work of the Spirit of Christ. SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS

On the Sunday School Lesson by Rev. Dr. Lincoln for the International Newspaper Bible Study Circle by Rev. T. S. Lincott, D.D.

(Copyright, 1909, by Rev. T. S. Lincott, D.D.)

Paul on Self-Denial. (World's Temperance Lesson.) Rom. xiv:1-21.

Golden Text.—It is good not to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor to do anything whereby thy brother stumbleth. (Rom. 14:2.)

In reading this chapter you will see that Paul is trying to reconcile and bring into brotherly harmony two conflicting parties. Apparently there were among the Jews in Rome who had become Christians and who thought that the whole law of Moses should be kept. Or, at least, that some of it, such as the offering of sacrifices, was to be dropped, the provision of the law with regard to food should be rigorously served.

On the other hand, there were Gentiles—Greeks, Romans, and "barbarians," who had never lived under Mosaic regulations, and who were not at all inclined to accept of the law.

These two parties were in conflict, and Paul was trying to reconcile them. He was trying to bring them into brotherly harmony. He was trying to show them that it was not necessary to keep the whole law of Moses, but that it was necessary to keep the principles of the law.

Principles never change, but may be a good rule under one condition become a bad one under another? Give ex- amples.

There was a controversy in the church at Rome between the Gentile and the Jewish believers about meats and days; but in the eyes of God was it in any sense a moral issue, as to which were right those who observed certain days and refrained from cer- tain kinds of meat, or those who ate all kinds of food?

Did our Christian in Rome have any right to impose his law on another Chris- tian, who believed and, therefore, ac- cepted, differently in the matter of meats and days, to what the objector's con- science would allow him to accept?

Does a man's own conscience—not to judge, forbid us forming an opinion concerning any doubtful action of our brother, and if not, what does it for- bid?

Today one party in the church thinks that eating Jews is wrong, an- other that any kind of games in the church parlors are wrong, while others think quite the opposite on these mat- ters. Now has either party any right to "judge" the other party to be guilty of moral wrong?

What should be both the constrain- ing and the restraining influence with us, in all matters of conduct? (v. 12.)

Verses 14—Does God morally estab- lish actions in themselves, or the mo- tives which prompt the actions?

Give an example of how it is possible that one man may do a thing and please God, while another may do the same thing and condemn him.

How many outward actions can you think of that are always wrong under all circumstances?

Verses 16-18.—If your neighbor is very ill, and you sing and piano playing, is it wrong to refuse to deny yourself the pleasure of singing and playing, what kind of a person are you?

Can you enjoy and drink your glass of wine, when you know wine drink- ing is doing vastly more harm than good, what sort of a person are you?

To what extent should I deny my- self any pleasure when I am engaged in which hurts my neighbor?

No sensible parent will allow any- thing in his family, however good it may be in itself, if it proves to be in- jurious to the children, should he not deny himself the same principle to his neighbors?

Verses 17—Should our chief thought be given to the needs of the body or of the soul?
