FRANK BALDWIN, Hammonton, N. J.

Germany annually spends 430,000,000 marks for its army, but not much less for its alcoholic drinks, - 406,000,000 marks. Intemperance furnishes thirty per cent of all the insane, fifty per cent of all the poor, and seventy per cent of all her criminals. These facts, adds the Christian Advocate, neutralize the claim so often set up that in Germany where beer is used almost universally, little drunkenness exists. The effects of liquor are much the same the world over and in all ages.

The first Congress during President Harrison's Administration will assemble at Washington this winter, and people will probably look to The New York Tribune for official interpretations of the policy of the Republican party at the National capital. Our metropolitan cotemporary is especially identified with a Protective Tariff, pensions for Union veterans, and various clauses in the Republican creed; and its endorsement, recently, as the official newspaper of the Republican clubs of the country makes it more than ever the principal National authority of the Republican party. Whatever else may be said of The Tribune, every one must concede that the paper is conducted with consumate ability. Its prospectus, printed in another column to-day shows that it will spend a good deal of money during 1890 for matters that can be read with interest by men of every political faith. The reader is referred to The Tribune's own statement of them for further particulars. Some very eminent and brilliant names appear among its list of contributors. Prizes worth $2,440 are to be given away to those who raise clubs of subscribers, including a free trip to New York and entertainment in the city; and there are a great many new premiums for readers. A 20 page Catalogue has been prepared, which will be sent in return for a 2 cent stamp. Address The Tribune publication office. New York City.

The New Jersey justice (Judge Gaunt, of Camden) "who coincides with the crowned heads of Europe that the indiscriminate sale of liquor is the best preventive of intemperance" is a genius who should no longer hide his light under a bushel. He should come out into the sunshine of universal publicity and advocate the analogous theory that the indiscriminate scattering of smallpox germs is the best method of preventan epidemic of smallpox.

"Le Reve" is divided into three acts and seven scenes. It is constructed regardless of stage conventions, and has no choruses or duets. In Zola's words, it is a simple musical conversation, carried on by just five persons. The characters will wear modern clothing-an especial novelty in an opera.

A Madman's Answer.

The aptness with which a madman will turn an argument is well-known. The following is an amusing instance. An inspector visiting the asylum at X. was requested by the medical superin-tendent to be very careful to address a certain patient as "your imperial ma-jesty," the poor man imagining him-self to be Julius Cæsar, and becoming furious if he did not receive what he considered proper respect. The inspector was careful to follow instructions, and all went well. On a subsequent visit he again addressed the pati-they lie user the throne of God, exciting our newer to all sternity by the contrast between its comparatively feeble light and the ligamination of heaven. The Bible, now, is the spatfolding to the rising temple, but when the building is done there will be no less for the scaffolding. The idea I shall develop to-day is, that in this world our knowledge is comparatively dim and unsatisfactory, but nevertheless is introductory to transfer and more complete vision. This is aminently true in regard to our view of God. We hear so much about God that we conclude that we understand Him. He is represented as having the tenderness of a father, the firminess of a judge, the pomp of a king cinde that we understand Him. He is repre-cented as having the tenderness of a father, the firmness of a judge, the pomp of a king and the love of a mother. We hear about Him, talk about Him, write about Him. We lisp His name in infancy, and it trembles on the tongue of the dying octogenarian. We high that we know very much about Him. Take the attribute of mercy. Do we under-stand it? The Bible blessoms all over with that word mercy. It speaks again and again of the tender mercies of God, of the sure marcles, of the great mercies, of the mercy that andureth forever, of the multitude of His marcles. And yet I know that the views of the tender mercies of God, of the sure marcles, of the great mercies, of the mercy hat sandureth forever, of the multitude of His mercies. And yet I know that the views we have of this great being are most indefinite, one sided and incomplete. When, at death, the gates shall fly open, and we shall dook directly upon Him, how new and surgings? We see upon canvas a picture of the morning. We study the cloud in the sky, the dew upon the grass, and the husbandman is the way to the field. Beautiful picture of the ferning. But we rise at daybreak, and it trees a hill to see for ourselves that which the first seemed to us. While we look, the being has a hill to see for ourselves that which the first seemed to us. While we look, the being has an extransfigured. The burnlahed case of heaven swing open and shut, to let have a first seem and hang pendant from arbora which start and have a methyst. The waters make this agreeves their scarred visage; and there is morning on the see. The bard agreeves their scarred visage; and there is morning on the see. The barding seems in contrast? Greater than that shall be the contrast between this scripti uplying of God and that which we shall like when standing face to face. This is a border of the morning; that will be the infining seems in contrast? Greater than that shall be the contrast between this scripti uplying of God and that which we shall it when standing face to face. This is a border of the morning; that will be the infining itself.
