Who doubteth there is a God on high,
Eternal in his might,
Would doubt the forming of the earth,
Or sun that gives us light;
While all the brilliant orbs that shine—
The worlds on worlds on high—
Are showing forth His mighty works
On earth, and sea, and sky.

Indeeds there must be the mind,
That hath created all:
Omnipotent must be the voice,
That doth the planets call,
And who could frame this wondrous world
Too great for sceptic theme,
With all its vast sublimity,
If not the Great Supreme?

To-day General Grant visits the Capitol for the first time in life as a citizen, and also the first time since he was President. The Boys in Blue will, to the number of almost 200 receive him at the depot, and escort him to the residence of General Beale, whose guest he will be during his sojourn in Washington, which will be two or three weeks.

Ohio modesty in the matter of office-seeking is charmingly exemplified in this remark of a Lancaster, O., editor when interviewed as to his preference on the Senatorship: "My programme would be to put Sherman in the Senate, Taft on the Supreme bench, Mathews in the Treasury Department and so reserve Foster for Pendleton's seat, and if there is another place on the Supreme bench for an Ohio man, West would fill it admirably." If Ohio don't see what she wants she has only to ask for it.

Reporters are proverbially imaginative, although perhaps there is some injustice done them by the epithet. They have keen eyes for the motives of the movements of distinguished men, who are often at loss for an answer to the question why—and so forth. General Grant has at last solved the difficulty. An inquisitive Baltimore reporter asked him why he was going to Washington just now, and the General replied affably "Because I want to." That settled it. The reporter asked no more questions.

In an address to the "Boys in Blue," at Washington, Tuesday evening, among other good things, Gen. Grant said:

Since I left this city it has been my good fortune to have traveled a great deal and to meet a great many of our countrymen. I have met my comrades in every country that I have visited. In Europe, in Asia and in Africa I have met the boys who wore the blue, and as a rule I found them maintaining the honor and dignity of their native country. I met some of them anywhere who were ashamed of their country or who elevated my country above their own. To my sorrow, however, I am compelled to say I did meet some Americans abroad who magnified the virtues of the foreign countries in which they were and belittled their own homes and institutions.

Wax in the Ear.

This is regularly secreted, to protect the delicate mechanism from dust and insects, and to keep it supple. It should not, ordinarily, be cleaned out. A healthy ear takes care of itself.

But certain diseased conditions of the internal ear cause the wax to harden and accumulate, giving rise to serious tinnitus symptoms. Among these are necrosis of the ear, which sometimes becomes converted into seemingly real voices, and lead to hallucinations and temptations to suicide. A skilled physician can remove the hardened wax—and he alone can determine its existence.

Untaught children sometimes put into their ears beans, and other small bodies, around which the wax gathers and hardens. A little boy pushed beans into both ears. One was removed, but the other remained, the parents not being aware that there were two. During the young man's college course, brain disease developed, and he was forced to abandon his studies and to take himself to farming. Subsequently the bean, surrounded with wax, was removed, and the symptoms in the main disappeared, but the man's prospects for life were ruined.

A lawyer, fifty-four years of age, was forced to abandon his profession, as it was impossible for him to hear either the judge or the witnesses. He was, at length, however, able to return to it, after the real cause of the difficulty was surmised, and the wax was removed with warm water injections.

Progress in American Telegraphy.

The annual report of the president of the Western-Union Telegraph company furnishes many figures of interest to others than the stockholders of the company. The latter, however, appear to have no reason to complain, the net profit of the company for the year footing up over $5,000,000, the capital stock of the company being about $41,000,000. The net profits for the fourteen years from 1866 to 1880 exceed $45,000,000. The telegraph business of the year is represented by 29,215,509 messages, $12,789,894.53 receipts, $6,948,956.74 expenses, and $5,833,937.79 profits. The company has in operation 85,645 miles of line, 233,534 miles of wire, and occupies 9,077 offices. The new offices established and equipped during the year number 543. The number of messages sent was over 4,000,000 more than the year before. The increase in mileage of wire was 22,000 miles; the increase in miles of pole lines was 3,658. The ratio of expenses was 54.3-10 per cent. of the receipts, against expenses of 56.2-10 per cent. the previous year, and 63.9-10 per cent. the year preceding that, and the cost per message reduced to the average of 23.3-10 cents, against 23.1-10 cents the previous year, 25 cents the year preceding that, and 29.8-10 cents the years ending in 1877.

Altered Times.

In the year 1671, on the second reading of a bill in the house of commons or building a bridge over the Thames, at Putney, after a number of members had delivered speeches in ridicule of the idea, Sir Henry Herbert, just before the house divided, rose and said: "I honestly confess myself an enemy to monopolies. I am equally opposed to mad, visionary projects; and I may be permitted to say, that in the late king's reign several of these thoughtless inventions were thrust upon the house, but were most properly rejected. If a man, sir, were to come to the bar of the house and tell us that he proposed to convey us regularly to Edinburgh, in coaches, in seven days, and bring us back in seven more, should we not vote him to Bedlam? Surely we should, if we did him justice; or, if another, that he would sail to the East Indies in six months, should we not punish him for practicing upon our credulity? Assuredly, if we served him right." The journey from London to Edinburgh is now accomplished in something like eleven hours. What would Sir Henry think now, could he arise from his grave?

Lost $4,500 Because He Didn't Read the Newspapers.

A man named Demarest, from Englewood, N. J., had $4,500 of Hackensack commission bonds which were due on November 1. The commission gave notice through the papers that those bonds must be presented at the bank of Bergen county for redemption on the first of November. They were not presented, and after the bank failed the bonds were presented to the commission for redemption. The clerk of the commission refused to take them, because he claimed the commission had the money.

Old-Time Spelling.

A letter four hundred and two written by a boy in Eton

Tomestone Literature.

A correspondent of the New York Sun, who has been considerably busy, says: "The 'Rocks' (Rock Island) I find a stone at the head of the grave of a sailor who, the inscription explains, 'died in port.' Below is the following:

Rude Boreas' winds and Neptune's waves
Have tossed me to and fro;
By God's decree, you plainly see,
I'm harbored here below.

It was the old-time practice here to tell how the deceased person lost his life; hence I find in this cemetery scores of graves with the inscription after the names and dates:

Killed by a whale.

One stone says that the grave's occupant was "Shot by a gun," and another man I find "died by lightning." A handsome shaft stands in Sag Harbor cemetery, erected to the memory of sailors killed by whales. On one side of the monument is a cut representing a whale striking a small boat with his flukes, and a number of sailors trying to escape. Out on Block Island I found this over a sea captain:

He's done a catching cod
And gone to meet his God.

In New London, Conn., is a lot containing five graves, those of a man and his four wives. The women's form four sides of a square, and the man's is in the center, while the inscriptions are as follows:

My 1. wife.

My 2. wife.

My 3. wife.

My 4. wife.

My 5. wife.

From a tombstone in the same county I copied the following on a slab over a fat man:

Beneath this monumental stone
Lies half a ton of flesh and bone.

A gravesite at Silver Lake, Washington county, N. Y., bears this testimony:

Elizabeth McFadden, wife of David S. Field,
Died Feb. 28, 1859, in her 47th year.
She never done a thing to displease her husband.

At Fairfax, Va., over the remains of a young man accidentally shot:

O fatal gun, why was it him
That you should kill so dead?
Why did you go off a little higher
And fire above his head?

A Pennsylvania Diana.

In the midst of a large forest, five or six miles back of this village, lives Henry Merrill, a well-known hunter and trapper. He has but one companion in his solitary abode—a daughter, aged about eighteen years. Lettie Merrill can row a boat, shoot a gun or trap a bear as well and skillfully as any man in the county of Wayne. A day or two ago she started to cross a large inland lake, on the borders of which her home is located, in a light skiff. She carried, as was her custom, a small rifle slung across her shoulder by a leather strap. She was paddling along leisurely, and when nearly half way across the pond discovered an object moving in the water, and, upon approaching closer, found that it was an immense five-pronged buck, which had been driven into the water by dogs. She immediately drew her rifle and, after taking careful aim, fired. As she pulled the trigger the buck made a sudden movement, and the ball, instead of reaching its mark, entered the animal's neck, making an ugly and painful wound. The buck, enraged by the pain, struck at the boat with one of its forelegs, shattering the frail bark in pieces. The boat sank at once, leaving Miss Merrill in the water with the struggling and infuriated animal. But she was plucky and could swim. She grasped the buck by the horns and deliberately drawing her hunting knife, which was as sharp as a razor, from her belt, she plunged it into the deer's neck, killing him almost instantly. She then swam ashore, about an eighth of a mile, and hurried home, where she put on dry clothing and, after procuring another boat rowed out to where the dead buck was floating and towed the animal to shore. When dressed the buck weighed more than 275 pounds, and was the finest one killed in this section for years. This is the eighteenth deer Miss Merrill has killed, and she is proud of her last adventure, which is the most thrilling one she has ever had. She intends having the head stuffed, as a memento of her struggle for life. Miss Merrill is only good-looking, worth money and is well educated. She keeps up her Diana-like pleasures. Her father, who is a more civilized man, will not hear of any such thing. (Pa.) Letter to

TIMELY TOPICS.

The desirability of some form of government for Alaska begins to receive attention at Washington. A bill, prepared by Mr. Converse, chairman of the House committee on lands, provides for a governor, a council of six members and a judge. The only semblance of government in the purchase at present is the orders of the revenue collector and the fur company. Mr. Converse has become convinced that the undeveloped wealth of that country is incalculable.

The records of the trotters as made up for 1880 mark the past season as the most remarkable on record. Two hundred and sixty-six horses are named that trotted in 2:30 or better in 1880. Of these, one hundred and thirty-four were new to the turf at the opening of the year, seventy-two reduced their previous records and sixty did no better than in previous years. But the most notable event of the year was the achievement of the unsexed time of 2:10 1/4 by the six-year-old Maud 'S'. Twenty-three horses now on the turf made a record of 2:20 or better during the past season. It is confidently expected that the record of Maud 'S' will be beaten in 1881.

Consul Duncan, of Naples, says that next to the Irish and Germans no people in Europe are more inclined to emigration to the United States than the Italian peasantry. Various causes are operating to induce this movement, chief among which are the present oppressive system of taxation and the desire to avail themselves of the superior opportunities to better their condition and obtain more complete liberty and a better education for their children.

The Russians are about to establish a Greek-Russian church in San Francisco. A priest has been selected by the Russian synod, who will soon leave St. Petersburg for California, accompanied by deacons, acolytes and a full choir. Five thousand rubles have been appropriated for preliminary expenses, and the funds needed for the building of a church will be supplied when the mission is ready to start.

The inventive genius of a Scotchman has, if we are to believe the Scotch papers, found a way to accomplish something which man has never before dreamed of doing, namely, calming the stormy sea. Mr. Shields, of Perth, has invented a way of stilling the waves of the ocean, and is putting it into successful operation. He sinks bottles filled with oil; the bottles are opened by a process devised by the inventor, and the waves, thus reducing the proverbial "pouring oil upon the troubled waters" to practice. The invention has been tested at Peterhead with, it is said, amazing success. The Scotch papers are full of it. The invention may not be practicable upon the high seas, where a vast quantity of oil would manifestly be required to still a dangerous storm, but if the claims of Shields, the inventor, are genuine, it could be made very useful in calming open roadsteads or illy-sheltered harbors.

Advertising.

A correspondent of the Newspaper Reporter says: The man who says he doesn't believe in advertising is doing just what he deprecates. He hangs coats outside of his door, or puts his dry goods in his windows—that's advertising. He has printed cards lying on his counter—that's advertising. He sends out drummers through the country, or puts his name on his wagon—that's advertising. He labels the articles of his manufacture—that's advertising. If he has lost his cow he puts a written notice in the postoffice, or tells his sister-in-law—and that's advertising, too. He has his name put up in gilt letters over the door—what is that but advertising? He paints his shop green or red; or if a sailor, he wears the latest style; if a doctor, he has his boy call him out of church in haste; if an auctioneer, he bellows to attract the attention of passers-by; if a heavy merchant he keeps a large pile of boxes on his sidewalk in front of his store—and all for advertising. A man can't do business without advertising, and the question is whether to call to his aid the engine that moves the world—the printing press with its thousands of messengers working night and day, the steam engine adding to its repeating capacity untold power and marvellous speed; or, rejecting all these, go back to the days when newspapers, telegraph and railroads were unknown.

Emperor William as a Huntsman.

The Emperor William, of Germany, has returned from a hunting visit to Ludwigsburg. One day a stag was driven past him. He fired, but the stag bounded away and was afterward found dead in the cover by the royal keepers. When the sport was over the emperor looked at the game laid out as having been shot by him, and, pointing to the stag, asked, with a smile, of the chief huntsman, if he had really shot that particular deer. "Most assuredly, sire," was the answer. "Good," rejoined the emperor. "Now let me tell you a little story. Last year I was deer-shooting in the Hartz, where everybody was extremely kind and polite toward me, as, indeed, is the case everywhere. When the first day's shooting was over, twenty-three full-grown stags were shown to me as my share in the sport. 'Did I shoot all these?' I asked the upper forester, who had charge of all the arrangements. He repeatedly assured me that I had shot them, every one. I could not help laughing as I told him that was very odd, for that, quite by chance, I had counted the cartridges I had fired. They were sixteen in number. How I managed to kill twenty-three deer with sixteen cartridges I must leave to him to explain."

The custom of using mistletoe at Christmas as a decoration is said to be one of the remains of the religious observances of the Druids.

For Little Soldiers.

Be brave little soldiers,
Be ready for fight;
Be bold and before you
A foe is in sight.
Beware of the pitfalls
In ways yet untrod;
Be true to your manhood,
And so to your God.

You need for your weapons
A heart that is pure;
A will that is steadfast
To do and endure;
And hands that are willing
Right bravely to work—
Resolved, in the conflict,
No duty to shirk.

Be vigilant, soldiers!
Stand firm at your post;
Strike blows at each evil
In wrong's mighty host.
The enemy's crafty,
In league with all sin;
But the ranks of true manhood
The battle will win.

A Baltimore clergyman recently preached on the subject: "Why was Lazarus a beggar?" We suppose because he didn't advertise.—Burlington Hawkeye.

It is a fortunate thing for Shakespeare that he established a solid reputation before the newspaper critics of America had a chance to cut him up.—New Orleans Picayune.

"Annie," said a fond husband to his wife, "what were the current expenses for last month?" "Oh," she answered, "only twenty-eight cents." "Why, how was that?" "Well, you see I only baked cake twice and therefore used very few currants."

Punctuality.

It is astonishing how many people there are who neglect punctuality, and thousands have failed in life from this cause alone; it is not only a serious vice in itself, but it is the fruitful parent of many other vices, so that he who becomes the victim of it gets involved in toils from which it is almost impossible to escape. It makes the merchant wasteful of time; it saps the business reputation of lawyers, and it injures the prospect of the mechanic, who might otherwise rise to fortune; in a word, there is not a profession, not a station in life, which is not liable to the canker of the destructive habit. It is a fact not always remembered, that Napoleon's great victories were won by infusing into his subordinates the necessity of punctuality to the minute. It was his plan to maneuver over large spaces of country, so as to render the enemy uncertain where he was about to strike a blow and then suddenly to concentrate his forces and fall with irresistible power on some weak point of the extended lines of the foe. The execution of this system demanded that each division of the army should arrive at the specified time punctually; for, if any part failed to come up, the battle was lost. It was by imitating this rule that the allies finally succeeded in overthrowing the emperor. The whole Waterloo campaign turned on these tactics. At Mt. St. Jean, Blucher was punctual, while Grouchy was not; and the result was that Napoleon fell and Wellington triumphed.

In mercantile affairs punctuality is as important as in military. Many are the instances in which the neglect to renew an insurance punctually has led to serious loss. With sound policy do the banks insist, under the penalty of a protest, on the punctual payment of notes, for were they to do otherwise, commercial transactions would fall into inextricable confusion. Many a time has the failure of one man to meet his obligations brought on the ruin of a score of others, just as the toppling down in a line of bricks of the master brick, causes the fall of all the rest. Thousands remain poor all their lives, who, if they were more faithful in their word, would secure a large run of custom, and so make their fortunes. Be punctual if you would succeed.

Butter at Forty Dollars a Pound.

Gillhooley strayed into De Smith's grocery yesterday, accompanied by his dog. Suddenly the grocer cried out, as if in great pain:

"Your blame dog has eaten up two pounds of nice fresh country butter." "Well, if it don't hurt the dog it's all right, but I want you to understand he is a valuable dog, and if he dies you will have to pay about $40 a pound for that oleomargarine."—Galtston News.

THE GREAT KIDNEY REGULATOR AND DIURETIC.

KIDNEY is highly recommended and unsurpassed for GRAVEL or RHEUMATISM, GOUT, BRUISES, BRIGHT'S DISEASE, LOSS OF ENERGY, NEURALGIA, or any OBSTRUCTIONS arising from GRAVEL or BLADDER DISEASES, and for YELLOW FEVER, BLOOD and KIDNEY POISONING, in fact, in all the most important affections of the urinary system.

Prepared by the celebrated DR. J. C. ALBRECHT, of the University of Berlin, and is the only medicine which we have ever known to cure all the above diseases, and to give strength, vigor and a healthy color and every flow of urine. It can be taken at all times, in all climates, without injury to the system. Unlike any other preparation for kidney ailments, it has a very pleasant and agreeable taste, and any straining, scurrying, heating irritation is entirely removed, giving them strength, vigor and a healthy color and every flow of urine. THE BEST REMEDY

FOR

Diseases of the Throat and Lungs.

AYER'S

CHERRY

PECTORAL.

pulmonary diseases, affording prompt relief and rapid cures, and is adapted to patients of any age or either sex. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it readily. In ordinary Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Influenza, Clergymen's Sore Throat, Asthma, Croup, and Catarrh, the effects of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL are magical, and multitudes are annually preserved from serious illness by its timely and faithful use. It should be kept in hand in every household for the prompt relief it affords in sudden attacks. In Whooping-cough and Consumption, there is no other remedy so efficacious, soothing, and helpful.

Low prices are inducements to try some of the many mixtures, or syrups, made of cheap and ineffective ingredients, now offered, which, as they contain no curative qualities, can afford only temporary relief, and are sure to deceive and disappoint the patient.

Diseases of the throat and lungs demand a powerful and effective treatment, and it is dangerous experimenting with unknown and cheap medicines, from the great liability that these diseases may, while so trifled with, become deeply seated or incurable. Use AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and you may confidently expect the best results. It is a standard medical preparation, of known and acknowledged curative power, and is as cheap as its careful preparation and fine ingredients will allow. Eminent physicians, knowing its composition, prescribe it in their practice. The test of half a century has proven its absolute certainty to cure all pulmonary complaints not already beyond the reach of human aid.

Captain J. H. Siddons, in some interesting personal reminiscences in the Washington Republic, records that the father of the late Duke of Cambridge had a queer habit of thinking aloud, and particularly manifested this singularity during the performance of Divine service in the Protestant Episcopal Church. In the preliminary phrase from the pulpit, "Let us pray," he would add mutteringly and unconsciously, "by all means," "very proper." He would respond to the commandment, "Thou shalt not steal," "certainly not—very wrong to steal," and "Remember that thou keep holy the Sabbath day" received a commendatory response—"assuredly very right." It is recorded that on one occasion, when "prayers for rain" were about to be offered up, he exclaimed, "No use—no use—the wind's easterly."

Insurance.

CUMBERLAND MUTUAL

Fire Insurance Com. ny.

BRIDGE-TON, N. J.

Conducted on strictly mutual principles, offering a perfectly safe insurance for just what it may cost to pay losses and expenses. The proportion of loss to the amount insured being very small, and expenses much less than usual, had, nothing can be offered more favorable to the insured. The cost being about ten cents on the hundred dollars per year to the insured on ordinary risks, and from fifteen to twenty-five cents per year on hazardous properties, which is less than one third of the lowest rates charged by the stock companies, on such risks—the other two thirds taken by stock companies being a profit accruing to stockholders, or consumed in expenses of the companies.

The guarantee fund of premium notes being now Three Millions of Dollars.

If an assessment had to be made of five per cent. only, twice within the ten years for which the policy is issued, it would yet be cheaper to the members than any other insurance offered. And that large amount of money is saved to the members and kept at home. No assessment having ever been made, being now more than thirty years, that saving would amount to more than

One Million Five Hundred Thousand Dollar

The Losses by Lightning.

Where the property is not set on fire, being less than one cent per year to each member, are paid without extra charge, and extended so as to cover all policies that are issued and outstanding.
