Our Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 21, 1881.

Two important bills were introduced a few days ago by Representative Chalmers, of Mississippi, one on civil service reform, and the other to pay the public debt. The civil service reform bill provides for a commission similar to that proposed by Senator Pendleton, but as applicants from a distance may be unable to risk the uncertainty or expense of an examination open to the world, it provides next that the employees shall be divided between the States and Territories and the District of Columbia in proportion to population; that the employees of the departments shall be divided into four classes, and the term of service shall be four years, but the classes are so arranged that the term of service of only one expires each year, so that not more than one-fourth can go out in one year. When the new appointments are to be made, the Governor of the State, the superintendent of public education, the two Senators and the member of Congress from whose district the appointment is to be made, shall each nominate a candidate and the commission examine the candidate and select the one to be appointed. It is next made unlawful for any of these employees, voluntarily or otherwise, to contribute to election funds. The commission is to establish rules for promotion and dismissal, subject to the approval of the President. The old employees are made eligible to reappointment and allowed to contest before the commission for reappointment whether renominated or not. Similar arrangement is made for appointment from the Territories and the District of Columbia.

The bill to pay the public debt provides for the issuance of United States legal tender Treasury notes to the amount of $360,000,000, but no more. These notes are to be used to buy up all the national bank notes, in this way. Every bank that will make monthly exchanges with the Government for these new notes of all the national bank notes it may receive, is to be relieved of tax on its deposits and stamps on its checks. The treasurer will then call on the national banks to come up and redeem their notes, either in United States bonds or legal tender money. If redeemed in bonds, then both the bonds and the national bank notes are to be destroyed. If redeemed in legal tender money the bank notes are to be destroyed and the money appropriated to the payment of purchase of bonds. It provides that gold and silver coin shall be kept in the Treasury equal to thirty per cent of all the paper money of the Government outstanding for the redemption of the same on demand. It does not propose to inflate the currency nor to issue more absolute legal tender paper money. It simply substitutes Government paper of the same quality and quantity for the national bank notes.

The Senate Committee on Appropriations began an investigation yesterday into the disbursement of the Treasury contingent fund under ex-Secretary Sherman. Mr. Richard Hinton, editor of the Sunday Gazette, was called and questioned regarding the source of the information upon which he based certain allegations and charges published in his paper. He answered that before he replied he would like to know whether he was going to be on trial or Mr. Sherman. He wished that Treasurer Gillfillan should be subpoenaed to appear and bring with him the original Melrose testimony taken by the commission appointed to investigate the matter, which was under seal in the vaults of his office, and which would show that the report sent to Congress was not as generally supposed, based upon this testimony. Subpoenas have been issued for Treasurer Gillfillan, Judge Tarbell, O. L. Pitney and others. A majority of the Republican members are in favor of holding the investigation with closed doors, but it is stated that Senators Logan and Allison are perfectly willing to have it public. The friends of the latter deny that there is anything like a spirit to persecute Senator Sherman. The proceedings may be public, but the committee will, if possible, avoid the publication of any of the charges made by witnesses, until a refutation or explanation can accompany them.

"Jim" Cristy, the skeleton Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate, who, owing to the numerous investigations upon which he's served, has been celebrated in song as "Body-Snatching Jim," is at work again in his nightly preambulations, armed with subpoenas, in search of witnesses for the Treasury Department investigation. The select committee of the Senate and House of Representatives appointed to arrange the obsequies of the late President met in joint session Friday evening in the room of the Ways and Means Committee of the House. After quite an extensive discussion it was decided to invite the Secretary of State, James G. Blaine, to deliver the eulogy in the House of Representatives. A number of the committee members, including Senator Sherman, chairman of the Senate committee, expressed themselves in favor of the plan heretofore mentioned, viz: That one Senator and two Representatives be selected to follow the orator of the day with brief remarks. The matter was finally voted upon and the proposition failed. The date upon which the eulogy will be delivered will not be fixed until Mr. Blaine has been consulted.

The surgeons and attendants on the late President, with few exceptions, have agreed to a general bill for services to be sent to Congress. The amount only foots up $100,000, two-thirds of which is covered by the professional bills of Drs. Bliss, Agnew, and Hamilton. Surgeon general Barnes is to be retired as a major-general instead of a brigadier as a recompense for his services. Dr. Woodward is, under the programme, to be promoted to the special grade of colonel.

The President sent the name of Benjamin Harris Brewster, of Pennsylvania, to the Senate Friday to be Attorney-General of the United States. Mr. Brewster is one of the ablest lawyers in the country, and served as attorney general of Pennsylvania. He has been connected with the Republican party since the firing on Fort Sumter, and in politics is known as a Stalwart Republican. His wife is an accomplished lady, a daughter of the late Robert J. Walker, Secretary of the Treasury under President Polk.

It is generally conceded that Hon. Frank Hiseock, of New York, will be chairman of the Appropriation Committee. Mr. Hiseock is an experienced member of that committee, a legislator of enlarged views, and will be a safe pilot in charge of the people's resources.

Speaker Keifer will announce the House committees on Wednesday. This is official. Maj. Ben. Perley Poore and applicants for committee clerkships will please take notice. Congress will adjourn on Wednesday until Thursday, January 5th.

The Cabinet meeting Friday was a prolonged one, lasting from 12 o'clock until 3:30. The proceedings, however, were devoid of general public interest aside from the fact that it was Secretary Blaine's last appearance as a member of the cabinet. In taking leave of his fellow members there was perceptible in all a feeling of deep regret that was concealed by none.

When Mr. Blaine arose to go the President stepped forward and taking his hand between his own held it in silence for a moment before he spoke. He then expressed to the Secretary his sincere regret that their official relations were to be severed. The President exhibited the deepest feeling amounting to almost emotion. Secretary Blaine left for his department immediately upon leaving the Executive Mansion.

LIPPINCOTT'S Magazine.

An illustrated Monthly of Popular Literature.

At the beginning of the present year Lippincott's Magazine entered on a new series, at a reduced price, with the distinctive purpose of presenting such a variety of reading matter—for the most part light and entertaining, yet of real literary merit—as should commend it to the general readers of cultivated persons, and ensure it a welcome in every American home. Devoting a large proportion of its space to fiction, in which short stories are made a noticeable feature, and to sketches illustrative of social life and manners, it has included in its list of subjects and cities of science, especially natural history, popular travel, and adventure at home and abroad, sports and angling, and, occasionally, political, historical and educational topics susceptible of fresh and lively discussion. The serial stories published during the year have been marked by a pleasant originality, and have met with a warm reception; while the editorial articles of the magazine have gained for it a cordial approval and a greatly increased circulation.

The conductors of the magazine hope not only to maintain its reputation, but to enhance and extend it by constant improvement in the same direction. Their arrangements for the coming year embrace a larger number than ever before of contributions of a popular character.

A serial story entitled "STEPHEN GUTHRIE" in which some peculiar and striking phases of American life are vividly and dramatically treated, will begin in the January number and run through six months.

The editorial departments will maintain their present standard of acknowledged excellence, and the illustrations will be of a higher character than any that have hitherto appeared in the magazine.

Protest Against Salute of the English Flag at Yorktown.

WASHINGTON.—The following is the text of the preamble and resolutions which Representative Robinson, of New York, has made several attempts to introduce in the House without success:

Whereas on the centennial anniversary of the pulling down of the English flag at Yorktown by Washington and his patriots that English flag was hoisted and saluted without authority of Congress or custom; and whereas, at the very time when that salute was given the English government was trampling on the last vestige of free government by suspending the right of habeas corpus, suppressing public meetings and crowding their jails with honorable gentlemen unaccused of crime, some of them American citizens and others the chosen and honored representatives in Parliament of their own people; therefore

Resolved, That we extend our sympathies to those patriots and members of Parliament suffering imprisonment under unheard of despotism.

Resolved, That this House does not approve of the salute given to the flag representing this unheard of despotism; and, that said salute was untimely, unequalled for and unusual, and was insulting to the memory of the brave men who one hundred years ago pulled it down and hoped it would never be trampled on by an American soldier, insulting to millions of our fellow-citizens to whom and whose ancestors it was and is the emblem of tyranny, and insulting to other friendly Powers whose flags were not saluted, though they deserved equal, if not superior, recognition.

Resolved, That the Secretary of State is hereby directed to communicate to this House, at the earliest possible moment, any letter any person or persons claiming to represent any person or persons are now or recently have been suffering imprisonment in British jails, and if so what crimes are alleged against them; what efforts have been made to secure their speedy trial or release, with all correspondence relating to the same.

Resolved, That the Secretary of State is hereby also directed to communicate to this House copies of all correspondence with foreign Governments without the present year relative to the extradition of alleged criminals, or in relation to the sacred right of asylum in these United States.

Resolved, That while we appreciate the womanly sympathy of Victoria in the sorrows of our departed President's family, and can excuse her for not being familiar with our written Constitution, yet her Ministers should have known that the reception of any person of any kind whatever by any person holding office under the United States, without the consent of Congress, would be a violation of our Constitution and an invasion of the privileges of this House.

Engraving on Glass.

Cover the surface of a sheet of glass with a concentrated solution of nitrate of potash, by simply placing the glass flat on a table or in a shallow pan, and pouring the solution upon it. Then along the edges of the sheet place a platinum wire, keeping it tight in the solution, and place it in communication with one of the poles of a secondary battery. Having done this, let another fine platinum wire be joined to the other pole, and insert it into the solution, touching the glass at the point. With this wire trace a luminous streak will appear everywhere the wire touches, and however quickly it may be moved the design will be clearly engraved on the glass. If the drawing or writing be done slowly the lines will be engraved more deeply. Their width depends on the diameter of the wire at its end; if it be reduced to a fine point, the work may be performed with great exactness. The metallic thread conducting the electric current thus becomes transformed into a speculum for glass, and in spite of the hardness of the substance the operation requires no effort, for the corroding force is furnished by the action of the current upon the saline solution. Either pole may be used for engraving, but it requires a weaker current to engrave with the negative pole. If, instead of a plane surface, it is desired to engrave on a curved one, the same result may be obtained by thickening the solution with a gummy substance, in order to make it adhere to the glass, or by turning the object in a basin containing the solution, so that a freshly wetted surface may be continually presented to the operator. Mr. Gaskin Plante has obtained these remarkable results by means of secondary batteries, but for continuous work any other source of electricity may be made use of, provided it has volume and intensity enough. Thus a pile of a good many Bunsen's cells, or a gramme machine, or even an electromagnetic machine, with alternate position and negative currents, will do.—La Technologie.

The Concord (N. H.) Monitor says that many partridges are dying in that State, and offers this explanation:—A gentleman of this city a few days since, carefully examining one which was found dead, found three small ulcers upon the sides and top of the head, in each of which was a small tick, which had made its way through the skull into the brain, causing death."

Scientific Economy.

The moon was pronounced by Anaxagoras, 500 B. C., to be an earth having mountains and valleys.

A lump of fresh lime, the shape of a walnut, dropped into a pint of water, and allowed to stand over night, the water being poured off from the sediment and mixed with a quarter of a pint of the best vinegar, forms a good wash for scurf in the head. It is to be applied to the roots of the hair.

To Remove Warts.—A daily application of either of the three following remedies is effective in dispersing warts. Touch the wart with a little nitrate of silver (lunar caustic), or with nitric acid or argentic nitrate. The latter acid produces a black, which passes off in a short time, the vinegar scarcely discolors the skin. Sparks of frictional electricity, repeated daily, by applying the warts to the conductor of an electric machine, have been also successfully employed as a cure for these troublesome and unsightly excrescences.

The use of sawdust in mortar is recommended as superior even to hair for the prevention of cracking and subsequent peeling off of rough casing under the action of storms and frost. A house, exposed to prolonged storms from the sea-coast, had pieces of mortar to be renewed each spring; and after trying without effect a number of substances to prevent it, the owner found sawdust perfectly satisfactory. It was first thoroughly dried and sifted through an ordinary grain sieve to remove the larger particles.

The Republican.

(Entered as second class matter.)

ORVILLE E. HOYT,
Editor and Publisher.

HAMMONTON, ATLANTIC CO., N. J.

SATURDAY, DEC. 24, 1891.

The January Century, a large edition of which is on the press, will be delayed this month until the 23d. One of its novel features is to be a frontispiece printed in color, a portrait of ex-President Thiers, accompanying an article by the Hon. Elihu B. Washburne, our former Minister to France. A full-page portrait of Queen Margaret of Italy is given in connection with an article on the making of Borneo lace, for which the Princess Louise of England has made a sketch. The number also has another portrait of President Garfield from an autotype by Edward Bierstadt, N. Y., which will accompany an anecdotal paper by Colonel A. F. Rockwell, entitled "From Mentor to Elberon." The immediate friends of the late President regard this portrait as giving a somewhat different phase of the late President's character from that presented by the engraving by Cole in the December Century, and as revealing his affectionate qualities, while the latter was especially strong on the intellectual side of his nature. The autotype is also interesting as being the portrait Mrs. Garfield selected to send to Queen Victoria. The sale of the November and December Century still continues. A new edition of nine thousand of the latter number has just been issued.

The Regular Edition of St. Nicholas in England is now eight thousand copies. Ten thousand copies of the Christmas number are being sold there.

Editorial Selections.

If President Arthur goes on as he has begun, picking the best men for office, there is going to be mighty little fun in being a Statesman.

In seven months Secretary Blaine has secured a settlement of the Fortune Bay claims by the British Government, asserted the rights of American citizens before the Spanish mixed claims commission; promulgated an advanced doctrine with reference to the Panama canal; established cordial relations with France, Germany and England (others as it may seem); through the Yorktown celebration; interposed efficiently to protect the commercial interests of the United States in Europe; and, finally, attempted mediation between Chili and Peru on principles which all students of international law must admit are enlightened, humane, and justified by precedent—Chicago Tribune.

The appointment of ex-Senator Howe as Postmaster-General has been anticipated since Mr. James decided to retire at the beginning of the year. Mr. Howe served three terms in the Senate, and his long connection with public affairs gave him a wide acquaintance with the business of the Government and the departments. His more recent service was in the Monetary Commission at Paris. He possesses a keen intellect, and the general estimate falls short of doing full justice to his real ability. In his new position he will labor under the disadvantage of coming without special training and knowledge after the one man of all others who is best equipped in postal affairs and who has shown what great reforms and progress can be achieved by thorough business ability. At the same time he will find the path of success clearly marked out.

An editor in Chicago last week ordered a pair of new trousers from the tailor. On trying them on, they proved to be several inches too long. It being late on Saturday night the tailor's shop was closed, and the editor took the trousers to his wife and asked her to cut them off and hem them over. The good lady, whose chamber or melon had perhaps disagreed with her, brusquely refused. The same result followed the application to the wife's sister and the oldest daughter. But before bedtime the wife, relenting, took the pants, and cutting off six inches from the legs, hemmed them neatly and restored them to the closet. Half an hour later the daughter, taken with compunction for her unkind conduct, took the trousers, and cutting off six inches a hem and replaced them. Finally the sister-in-law felt the pang of conscience; she, too, performed a surgical operation on the garment. When the editor appeared at breakfast on Sunday, the family thought a Highland chieftain had arrived, for the trousers reached only to the middle of his thigh.

It seems a little strange that James A. Garfield was found in a wide-mouthed bottle. Only the Jim Jams of the narrow-necked bottle.

Do not let a man be liss. It is vulgar. Say that his conversation is devoid.

When a young man wants to protect a young lady he naturally puts his arm around her.

Dyspepsia in its worst forms will yield to the use of Carter's Little Liver Pills. They not only relieve pain, distress but strengthen the stomach and digestive apparatus.

RESCUED FROM DEATH.

William J. Coughlin of Somerville, Mass., says: In the fall of 1876 I was taken with bleeding of the lungs followed by a severe cough. I lost my appetite and flesh, and was confined to my bed. In 1877 I was admitted to the Hospital. The doctors said I had a hole in my lung as big as a half dollar. At one time a report went around that I was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of DR. WILLIAM HALL'S BALM FOR THE LUNGS. I got a bottle, when to my surprise, I commenced to feel better, and to day I feel better than for three years past.

I write this hoping every one afflicted with Diseased Lungs will take DR. WILLIAM HALL'S BALM, and be convinced that CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED. I can positively say it has done more good than all the other medicines I have taken since my sickness.

ONLY $2.00 for a bottle of PHILADELPHIA SINGLER. Equal to any other in the market. Remember, we send you a bottle free of charge. Write for it. This is a genuine cure for all lung troubles. All machines warranted for 3 years. Send for Illustrated Circular and Testimonials. Address: CHAS. E. WOOD & CO., 117 N. 3rd St., Philadelphia, Pa.

The January Century, a large edition of which is on the press, will be delayed this month until the 23d. One of its novel features is to be a frontispiece, printed in color, a portrait of ex-President Thiers, accompanying an article by the Hon. Elihu B. Washburne, our former Minister to France. A full-page portrait of Queen Margaret of Italy is given in connection with an article on the making of the Italian lace, for which the Princess Louise of England has made a sketch. The number also has another portrait of President Garfield (from an autotype by Edward Blandford, N. Y.), which will accompany an anecdotal paper by Colonel J. E. Hockenshaw, entitled "From Mentor to Elberon." The immediate friends of the late President regard this portrait as giving a somewhat different phase of the late President's character from that presented by the engraving by Cole in the December Century, and as revealing his affectionate qualities, while the latter was especially strong on the intellectual side of his nature. The autotype is also interesting as being the portrait Mrs. Garfield selected to send to Queen Victoria. The sale of the November and December Century still continues. A new edition of nine thousand of the latter number has just been issued.

The Regular Edition of St. Nicholas in England is now eight thousand copies. Ten thousand copies of the Christmas number are being sold there.

Editorial Selections.
If President Arthur goes on as he has begun, picking the best men for office, there is going to be mighty little fun in being a Stewart.

In seven months Secretary Blaine has secured a settlement of the Fortune Bay claims by the British Government, asserted the rights of American citizens before the Spanish mixed claims commission; promulgated an advanced doctrine with reference to the Panama canal; established cordial relations with France, Germany and England, (strange as it may seem), through the Yorktown celebration; interposed efficiently to protect the commercial interests of the United States in Europe; and, finally, attempted mediation between Chili and Peru on principles which all students of international law must admit are enlightened, humane, and justified by precedent—Chicago Tribune.

The appointment of ex-Senator Howe as Postmaster-General has been anticipated since Mr. James decided to retire at the beginning of the year. Mr. Howe served three terms in the Senate, and his long connection with public affairs gave him a wide acquaintance with the business of the Government and the departments. His more recent service was in the Monetary Commission at Paris. He possesses a keen intellect, and the general estimate falls short of doing full justice to his real ability. In his new position he will labor under the disadvantages of coming without special training and knowledge after the man of all others who is best equipped in postal affairs and who has shown what great reforms and progress can be achieved by thorough business ability. At the same time he will find the pathway of success clearly marked out.

An editor in Chicago last week ordered a pair of new trousers from the tailor. On trying them on, they proved to be several inches too long. It being late on Saturday night the tailor's shop was closed, and the editor took the trousers to his wife and asked her to cut them off and keep them over. The good lady, whose cucumber or melon had perhaps disagreed with her, brusquely refused. The result followed on application to the wife's sister and the eldest daughter. But before bedtime the wife, relenting, took the pants, and cutting off six inches from the legs, hemmed them nicely and restored them to the closet. Half an hour later the daughter, taken with compunction for her unkind conduct, took the trousers, and cutting off six inches hemmed and replaced them. Finally the sister-in-law felt the pangs of conscience; she, too, performed a surgical operation on the garment. When the editor awoke at breakfast on Sunday, the family thought a Highland chieftain had arrived, for the trousers reached only to the middle of his thigh.

It seems a little strange that James should always be found in the wide-mouthed bottle. Only the Jim Jams frequent the narrow-necked bottle.

Do not tell a man he lies. It is vulgar. Say that his conversation is repulsive to your mind a summer resort.

RESCUED FROM DEATH.
William J. Coughlin of Somerville, Mass., says: "In the fall of 1876 I was taken with bleeding of the lungs followed by a severe cough. I lost my appetite and flesh, and was confined to my bed. In 1877 I was admitted to the Hospital. The doctors said I had a hole in my lung as big as a half dollar. At one time a report went around that I was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of DR. WILLIAM HALL'S BALSAF FOR THE LUNGS. I got a bottle, when to my surprise, I commenced to feel better, and to day I feel better than for three years past."
