STRANGE DISAPPEARANCES—THEATRES—
—THE NEW YORK PRESS, &c.

NEW YORK, DEC. 19, 1871.

It is piteable to see how strangers in New York are every month swallowed by the insatiable monster whose abiding place is "down among the docks." They arrive, register at the hotels, stroll out at night and disappear forever from the scenes of life. A day or two afterwards, you read in the papers that the body of an unknown person is awaiting recognition in the Morgue. Perhaps it has been rifled by the river thieves and is scarred all over with the marks of the murderer; perhaps the death was accidental. Friends come, identify what is left of the poor humanity, and the public learn for the first time the story of the corpse found drifting among the piers. But yesterday it was William M. Hall, a Massachusetts merchant, with his pockets showing a wealth of seventy-seven thousand dollars. At night a cry of help was heard—a splash—a gurgle. All the rest is mystery. So others are lost elsewhere in these eddying crowds almost every day. An old man is found wandering wildly around an up-town depot. A kind-hearted policeman carries him to the hospital. In a few hours he is confined and ready for burial. The dead man was a distinguished citizen of Vermont, and the compeer of many of her statesmen. Within a week a Mr. W. H. Ramsay, a prominent railroad official and lawyer, left the Fifth Avenue Hotel at night, and the next thing known of him was through the recognition of his body in the Morgue. Only to-day, J. B. Turkington, once a candidate for Mayor of San Francisco, was found floating in the East River. How many others find their mortal deaths and are engulfed in the great whirlpool of New York crime, God only knows. But their names are legion.

Mr. Byrnes, the female Rosenzweig, has been sent to the State Prison for seven years, and Izzy Lazarus, the noted pugilist, is to be incarcerated in Sing Sing for "repeating" at the polls. You may infer from these healthy symptoms that New York yet stands a chance of escaping a rain of fire and brimstone.

Laura D. Fair, the California murderess, publishes a long letter in the Herald, in which she reviews the course of the press of the Pacific slope towards her; scathes a number of public men, asks justice at the hands of the people, though it may only come to her child, and advertises the fact that she has dramatized "Lucille," a well-known poem by Owen Meredith. Theatrical, circus and Ethiopian performances, in spite of intensely cold weather, continue to attract their thousands every night, and from the receipts one might judge that New York is in a carnival of amusement. Fred Douglass draws a crowd to his lecture on St. Domingo, while artists, professors, dignitaries and female prodigies, less notorious, find their efforts on the platform crowned with more than usual success.

The political attitude of the city journals at the present juncture is a curious one. There is not one of the papers that does not accept President Grant as the next nominee, cum grano salis, but the majority of them show a disposition either to wait upon events or entirely throw him overboard. The Sun makes its usual antagonistic title. Everybody expects it from Charles Dana. The Herald wavers in its allegiance, but perceptibly leans against the present incumbent. The Times is still in its favor, with saving clauses sprinkled throughout its editorials, while the World and Tribune, so usually antipodean in their principles, unite for the nonce in demanding a gigantic reform that shall extend even to the chair of the chief magistrate. Judging from the tone of articles every morning published, the idea of impeachment is not entirely sensational, and whatever may be his faults or virtues, General Grant may yet be called upon to answer to the allegations of Charles Sumner and a score of his once best friends. Nous verrons.

that an impression has gone about through the county that this indictment was formed at my instance. Such a report does me too much honor, and is not in itself correct.

The circumstances of Frankel's newspaper till with me, are fresh in the memory of your readers. Finding himself in a very brief time, driven to the wall, he cowardly sought to patch up his reputation by recourse to law. He has had me arrested several times and in vain tried every plan to get me locked up; has published that he would have me indicted imprisoned, &c. At the last previous term of court, he made every effort to get me indicted but his efforts came very near resulting in his own indictment. At that term of court his conduct caused several leading citizens to insist upon my appearance before the Grand Jury to testify as to my knowledge of Frankel, but the Prosecuting Attorney objected to my going before the jury. Frankel subsequently went before them and his demeanor was such as to induce the Grand Jury to send for and examine me.

Before the adjournment of that term of court, several prominent citizens from different parts of the county decided to take steps for the indictment of Frankel at the term of court which has closed this day and it was understood that I should make the complaint; but it appears that Frankel, upon his failure to make me trouble before the Grand Jury of that term, at once commenced a civil (or uncivil) action against me, for a few weeks after, he had me again arrested and several of our citizens promptly gave bail for my appearance at this term. As I expected to be tried by a petit jury, I abandoned the idea of making a complaint against Frankel before the Grand Jury of this term, thinking if I did that the petit jury might consider I did it for the purpose of influencing their action. I had no knowledge that any steps were to be taken against Frankel before this Grand Jury; but it seems that they were possessed of sufficient information to institute proceedings against him, and I was sent for as a witness. My testimony was very brief, and related to Frankel's conduct towards my family. I am credibly informed that he was not indicted upon my testimony; certainly I was but a witness and not a complainant.

When the indictment was announced against Frankel, by the Prosecutor (who is also Frankel's Attorney against me) he spoke a good word to the Judge in open court, whereupon the Judge required the complainant in the case to file a statement of the particular acts charged that afternoon with the defendant. As Frankel was in reality his own accuser, no statement was filed and the indictment was allowed to drop, the individual members of the Grand Jury not caring to push the matter further at this term, thinking that the finding of a bill against him would either cause him to mend his ways or to leave this region, both of which would be very desirable.

This is the brief and true story of an affair which has caused a "broad grin" all over this county.

MILTON P. PEIRCE.
Egg Harbor City, Dec. 15th., 1871.

THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE, FOR 1872.

The consolidation of Italy, so long fragmentary and innocent, into one powerful State, with Rome as its capital; the humiliation of France through a series of crushing defeats, ending with the siege and capitulation of her proud and gay metropolis; the expulsion of the Bourbons from the Spanish throne, and the substitution for them of a son of the most liberal among royal houses, the virtual absorption of the kingdoms of Saxony, Wurtemberg, Bavaria, with Baden, Hesse, the Hanse Towns, &c., under the headship of Prussia, into the triumphant and powerful empire of Germany; and the armistice of Russia to reassert her preponderance in the councils of Europe, or to prosecute her often postponed but never relinquished designs on the great city founded by Constantine and the vast but decaying and anarchical dominion of the Sultan, all combine to invest with profound interest the ever-changing phases of our tidings from the Old World. The Tribune, through trusted correspondents stationed at all points in Europe where great movements are in progress or imminent, aims to present a complete and instructive panorama of events on that continent, and to mirror the prolonged struggle between middle age Feudalism and Ecclesiasticism on the one hand and Nineteenth-Century skepticism and secularism on the other. Recognition of a Divine Providence in all that proceeds and in it, looks hopefully on the great conflict as destined (like our own recent convulsion) to evolve from strife, disaster, and seeming chaos, a fairer and happier future for the toiling masses of mankind.

In our own country, a war upon corruption and rascality in office has been inaugurated in our City, whereby the government of our State has been revolutionized through an initial triumph of Reform which surpasses the most sanguine anticipations. It is morally certain that the movement thus inaugurated cannot, in its progress, be circumscribed to any locality or any party, but that its purifying influence is destined to be felt in every part of the Union, rebuking venality, exposing robbery, wresting power from politicians by trade, and confiding it in those worthiest and fittest to wield it. To this beneficent and vitally needed reform, THE TRIBUNE will devote its best energies, regardless of personal interests or party predilections, esteeming the choice of honest and faithful men to office as of all New Departures the most essential and auspicious.

The virtual surrender by the Democratic party of its hostility to Equal Rights regardless of Color has divested our current politics of half their bygone intensity. However parties may henceforth rise or fall, it is clear that the fundamental principles which have hitherto honorably distinguished the Republicans are henceforth to be regarded as practically accepted by the whole country. The right of every man to his own limbs and sinews—the equality of all citizens before the law—the inability of a State to enslave any portion of its people—the duty of the Union to guarantee to every citizen the full enjoyment of his liberty until he forfeits it by crime—such are the broad and firm foundations of our National edifice; and falsified be the hand which shall seek to displace them! Though not yet twenty years old, the Republican party has completed the noble fabric of Emancipation, and may fairly invoke thereon the sternest judgment of Man and the benignant smile of God.

Henceforth, the mission of our Republic is one of Peaceful Progress. To protect the weak and the humble from violence and oppression—to extend the boundaries and diffuse the blessings of Civilization—to stimulate Ingenuity to the production of new inventions for economizing Labor and thus enlarging Production—to draw nearer to each other the producers of Food and of Fabrics, of Grains and of Metals, and thus enhance the gains of Industry by reducing the cost of transportation and exchange between farmers and artisans—such is the inspiring task to which this Nation now addresses itself, and by which it would fair contribute to the progress, enlightenment and happiness of our race. To this great and good work, THE TRIBUNE contributes its zealous, persistent efforts.

Agriculture will continue to be more especially elucidated in its Weekly and Semi-Weekly editions, to which some of the ablest and most successful tillers of the soil will steadily contribute. No farmer who sells $300 worth of produce per annum can afford to do without our Market Reports, or others equally lucid and comprehensive. He should read nothing else but what relates to his own calling and its rewards, we believe that no farmer who can read at all can afford to do without such a journal as THE TRIBUNE. And we aspire to make it equally valuable to those engaged in other departments of Productive Labor. We spend more and more money on our columns each year, as our countrymen's generous patronage enables us to do; and we are resolved that our issues of former years shall be exceeded in varied excellence and interest by those of 1872. Friends in every State! help us to make our journal better and better, by sending in your subscriptions and increasing your Clubs for the year just before us!
