"Peace on earth, good will to men."
"White Ribboners are true believers offering sons in patriotic service, deplore the cause of war, and believe that a firm stand for arbitration will some day win. And while urging in-the peace of the home-life, and of the individual relations we sustain to so-

"This thought of peace is so inter-know all hearts will be receptive to these truths."

A LEGEND.

There has come to my mind a legend,
A thing I had half forgot,
And whether I read it or dreamed it,
Ah, well, it matters not.

It is said that in Heaven at twilight
A great bell softly swings,
And man may listen and hearken
To the wonderful music that rings,
If he puts from the heart's inner chamber
All the passion, pain, and strife,
Heartaches and weary longings
That throb in the pulses of life;
If he thrusts from his soul all hatred,
All thoughts of wicked things,
He can hear in the holy twilight
How the bell of the angels rings.

And I think there is in this legend,
If we open our eyes to see,
Somewhat of an inner meaning,
My friend, to you and me;

Let us look in our hearts and question,
"Can pure thoughts enter in
To a soul if it be already
The dwelling of thoughts of sin?"

So, then, let us ponder a little,
Let us look in our hearts, and see
If the twilight bell of the angels
Could ring for you and me.

—Houshold.

Stood Death Off.

E. B. Munday, a lawyer of Henrietta, Tex., once fooled a grave-digger. He says: "My brother was very low with malaria fever and jaundice. I persuaded him to try Electric Bitters, and he was soon much better, but continued their use until he was entirely cured. I am sure Electric Bitters saved his life."
This remedy expels malaria, kills disease germs, and purifies the blood; aids digestion, regulates liver, kidneys, and bowels, cures constipation, dyspepsia, nervous diseases, kidney troubles, female complaints; gives perfect health.

LABOR NOTES

There are now nearly 1,000 trade unions in Canada. Less than three years ago there were less than 400.

Eight hundred organizers of the American Federation of Labor are now actively at work in the United States.

The Ohio labor commissioner reports that 300 new labor unions have been organized in the State in the past year.

In the last twenty years the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners has increased from 2,042 (1881) to 68,901 (1901).

As far as can be estimated in a conservative way, 300,000 pairs of shoes are turned out each working day in New England.

The different breweries of Cincinnati, Newport and Covington have conceded an eight-hour day to stationary firemen in their employ.

Large numbers of Japs are being hired in British Columbia to work in the mines of the Yukon at the rate of $1 per day. This is about one-fifth of the rate commanded by white labor in the Klondike district within recent times.

The longshoremen's strike in New Orleans ended in victory for the strikers. They now receive the highest rate of wages in their trade in the United States, viz.: Forty cents an hour for regular, 60 cents for over, 80 cents for Sunday time. Grain handlers get 50 cents, 75 cents and $1 respectively for the same kind of work. There are 900 negroes and 750 whites in the unions.

A labor war may be inaugurated between the union men who make cigars and the firms that deal in the product of the weed from Porto Rico. The duty is expected to result in a great reduction of wages among tobacco workers. It is possible that several firms will remove to the islands, where cheap labor abounds. To combat this it is said that the unions are preparing to unionize the tobacco workers on the island.

WOODLAND HYMN OF PRAISE.

Morning Sounds Caused the Organist to Forget the Hymn.

Some years ago, during a visit to friends at Sudeley Castle, Gloucestershire, the late Sir John Stainer, the famous organist and composer, joined in a badger hunt which had a most unexpected ending, one that was undoubtedly wholesome both for the badger and his hunters.

The manager of this estate amused himself by nightly meetings at certain woods where the badgers caroled, and Dr. Stainer—he had not then been knighted—having been told that there was to be a meet at a place called Pinnock Cliff, an extensive woodland in the Cotswolds, expressed a desire to take part in it.

At midnight, accordingly, in company with the manager, the Rev. Robert Browne, who was then curate of Sudeley, and a few others, Dr. Stainer started to tramp to the rendezvous, which was about four miles away. The beaters were left at a certain point with instructions to give them their half-hour's start. This being effected, they were quietly waiting the appearance of the badger, who, disturbed on his rambles by the beaters' dogs, would probably be long charged at the earth. While they waited, the approach of morning was heralded by that mysterious light which at that time of year—It was June—begins to be seen about 2 o'clock.

It was one of the finest mornings possible to imagine. There was no wind, the sky was clear, and the small patches of detached mist obliquely creeping up toward the ethereal blue overhead irresistibly suggested celestial beings winging their upward way.

The birds soon began their morning songs—the skylark with his trilling notes, then in the far distance the cuckoo, the wood-pigeon, and the dove cooing to his mate, and then the host of other birds, one after another, until all the woodland resounded with song. For a few moments the little party stood in silence; then Dr. Stainer, raising his hands, exclaimed:

"All that have life and breath sing to the Lord!" the opening words of Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise."

The manager caught at it in an instant, and hummed the trombone part. "Do you know it?" asked the doctor.

The manager nodded.

"Let us have the first chorus," said Dr. Stainer.

And so they sang from memory, as well as they could, the first chorus from "The Hymn of Praise." Dr. Stainer taking the treble, Mr. Browne the alto, the manager the tenor, and another the bass.

Naturally they did not get the badger. Never was badger in this humor wood, and it is easy to imagine the dazed beast, who never could have heard such singing in all his previous existence, giving his earth a wide berth.

When a farmer is fat, there is room for suspicion that he doesn't work very hard.

THIS DOOR YOU HAVE TO SHUT.

An Ingenious Invention of a Scotchman for Use on Vessels.

The invention is just announced of a door that is never closed and never open. It is the only door on earth that a person is forced to shut behind him under any and all circumstances. Water cannot pass through it, nor around the casing. It is the invention of Alexander Kircaldy of Glasgow, Scotland, and he has labored to bring it to its present state of perfection for ten years. Primarily, this door is intended for vessels, for its chief claim to distinction is that it is water tight. To the bulkhead where the door is fitted is bolted a hollow, cylindrical casing. In this casing are two doors, but they are not opposite one another, being located on two sides of the casing. Within this hollow casing revolves a hollow cylinder, and there is a doorway to this cylinder.

Now, when it is desired to pass through this novel door, the cylinder referred to within the casing is turned so that the door therein is opposite one of the doors in the casing. When the ingress doorway is in a line with a bulkhead doorway the passenger enters and stands on the bottom of the casing, and revolves the hollow cylinder by hand, until he brings the ingress doorway into line with the second bulkhead doorway, which permits of egress from the casing.

The remarkable feature of this double door is, as stated, that it is absolutely impossible to leave it open, as one door must of necessity be effectually closed before the other opens. The revolving cylinder is hung on ball bearings, and is easily brought into the position desired for ingress or egress. At the same time no gear, which is so familiar to other types of water-tight doors, is required.

The importance of this doorway to the modern vessel is hard to overestimate. Any one familiar with the construction of the modern ocean liner knows that the various compartments are connected by doors. It often happens that the sailors in entering these water-tight compartments are careless about leaving the doors open. It may be remembered that the loss of the steamship Elbe off the English coast several years ago is supposed to have been due to the fact that the compartments of the vessel were not closed properly. Had this door spoken of been in use such an event would have been impossible.

Let the sailors pass from one compartment to another as much as they may, it is not in their power to leave the connecting ways in such a condition as to be a menace to the vessel. Therefore this new invention removes a tremendous menace to the ocean traveler, provided it is, as it is stated it will be, generally adopted. For many years inventors have been endeavoring to evolve just such a door as this, because the demand therefor has been very great and urgent. Mr. Kircaldy is the first to succeed of the many who have attempted.—Philadelphia Times.

Lord Chatham's Farewell.

No parliamentary farewell was ever so impressive as that of Lord Chatham, when in a final burst of eloquence, he denounced the ill-fated policy of the North administration. A contemporary writer tells us that "he was not like himself; his speech faltered, his sentences were broken, and his mind was not master of itself, but as he proceeded his faculties regained some of their old clearness, his voice some of its old power."

It was a wonderful example of the power of the spirit battling with and overcoming the feebleness of the frame, and the House listened in a solemn silence akin to awe, as the old orator raising one feeble hand from his crutch, and turning his eyes to heaven, spoke his simple and pathetic farewell: "I am old and infirm. I have one foot more than one foot—in the grave. I am chosen from my bed to stand up in the cause of my country, perhaps never to again speak in this House."

Within the hour the aged peer, the noblest orator, the ablest statesman of his time, was carried in the arms of his friends from the House he had so often shaken with the thunders of his eloquence, never to return. No scene more dramatic, more impressive, has ever been witnessed in the "Gilded Chamber" of the Lords.

Uncle Jake—Why not?

"She says in the end it will cost her a good deal more than it's worth."

Science and Invention

The nut-cracking industry of St. Louis gives employment to over fifteen hundred people. The nut-crackers are driven by electricity, each nut being fed individually into the crusher. After the shells are cracked the nuts are winnowed by an air blast and the meat is picked from the crushed shells by hand.

A new and highly interesting method of obtaining the X-rays is described by M. Nodot. He claims that, if ordinary light falls upon an electrified aluminum plate, preferably upon one electrified negatively, the light penetrates the plate (the thickness of which is not stated) and issues from the other side in the form of X-rays.

The postal-savings-bank building in Amsterdam, Holland, is being constructed by the "Monier system," a new method of construction. A steel framework, like a bird-cage in appearance, is enveloped in Portland cement, which prevents the steel from rusting, while the cement itself is rendered elastic. The steel acts entirely in tension and the concrete in pressure. This construction is said to be strong, fireproof and waterproof, and to be growing in favor in Europe for government buildings and factories.

What man has learned by dint of thought and experiment some of the lower animals appear to know through instinct. An instance is furnished by the "spiral swimming" of certain organisms, such as the spherical-shaped rotifer and several elongated infusorians. As they revolve about the axis of progression—as does a projectile fired from a rifle gun, the consequence is, as Dr. H. S. Jennings points out, that they are able to travel in a straight line, as they could not do otherwise, the revolution compensating with absolute precision for any tendency to deviate from a straight course. Without such a device many of these minute creatures would simply describe circles, making no forward progress.

Although every housekeeper is painfully aware of the tendency of silverware to part with its brilliancy and become tarnished when exposed to ordinary atmospheric influences, many probably do not know that the cause of the tarnishing is the action of sulphur in the air. Unless frequently cleaned, the surface of silver will become black in the course of a few months. The best way to keep silver bright, without the necessity of cleaning, is said to be to coat the surface with a thin solution of collodion, varnish diluted with spirits of wine. After being applied with a soft brush the spirit evaporates, leaving a thin, glossy, transparent film on the polished surface. Warm water removes the varnish. Tarnished silver may be restored by careful rubbing with a soft cloth wet with dilute solution of potassium cyanide—one ounce to a quart of water—followed by rinsing.

The Magic Helmet.

Mortimer Menpes, the English artist who went to South Africa to paint during the war, says that he knew nothing of campaigning or the articles necessary for it. So he bought no tent and no provisions. But there was one article which he did chance to get, which proved as useful as a talisman. It was a field marshal's helmet. He says:

It was white; but I painted it khaki, and the oil in the preparation produced an aged, battle-worn look which gave me the air of a warrior before I had fairly started on my career. This helmet was my salvation. It carried me everywhere, commanded respect from everyone, and procured for me privileges which I should never have obtained in any other way. I was allowed, at the front, to stray about late at night, unquestioned. Guards turned out to salute me. Men made way for me. I did scores of things which to other correspondents (with ordinary felt hats) were forbidden. They would often say:

"Oh, let Menpes go first with his helmet and help us through."

I wore a khaki suit, and when I sallied forth with my weather-beaten helmet and the regulation khaki, the effect was simply magical. Every soldier I met saluted me, and each time I blushed and felt wretched. A group of men were at the station to see me off, and I shall never forget their faces when I first appeared upon the scene.

"Oh, look at him!" they cried, weak with laughter. "Look at the warrior!" They were men who had known me as an artist of the mildest appearance possible. The change was too much for them.

Tips to Germany.

The tip balance is even worse in Germany than in England or the United States, although the amounts expected are small. It is customary for household servants to receive gratuities from their employer's guests at luncheons, dinner parties, balls, receptions, and all other entertainments. If you accept the hospitality of a friend you are expected to tip his servants.

AURORAS MADE TO ORDER.

One Can Have a Brilliant Display Whenever It Is Desired.

The aurora borealis is a celestial phenomenon seldom seen in these latitudes, but according to a European scientist any family may have one if it is desired. By plunging the negative wire of a powerful induction coil in a vessel of water and bringing the positive wire into contact with the surface of the water, or slightly below it, he has succeeded in creating the perfect aurora borealis, or northern lights, we have been in the sky with such wonder and admiration.

The flickering streamers, now faint, now brilliant; the dark arc or half circle from which they flow—all the varied phenomena that have puzzled the mind of the observer are accurately repeated on a small scale.

M. Plante thinks that the aurora of our northern skies is produced by a flow of positive electricity through the upper regions of the air into planetary space, the fact that lightning and other similar phenomena are not frequent at the polar regions showing that the discharge is not toward the earth.

He believes that all the planets are charged with positive electricity, and that this flows out from the neighborhood of their magnetic poles. When it meets resistance it goes off in obscure rays, but when it encounters masses of vapor then it becomes the glorious aurora.

These mysterious lights, waving and dancing in the northern sky, have always been a marvel and puzzle to mankind, and any information that we can gain as to the cause of their coming and going is welcomed by old and young. This beautiful experiment proves that the aurora is but another form of the mysterious force that speaks to us through the telephone and telegraph, that heats our houses, cooks our food, gives us light in darkness and conveys us over land and sea.

SOME ANCIENT SLANG.

Old Sayings Still Current in the Mouths of the Peasants.

There are a few expressions in such common use to-day that they are not counted as slang and which date back many centuries, even as far back as the great days of Pompeii. People who do not pay for entrance to a place of amusement or who travel free of charge are called "dead-heads." In the glorious days of Pompeii, such people were given tickets bearing a small death's head, and so naturally in time they came to be called dead-heads.

In France when a guest had overstayed his welcome he was served with a cold shoulder of mutton as a gentle hint that he should make an end to his visit. When the matter was talked over in the privacy of family councils, someone probably said as a solution, "We simply must give him the cold shoulder." As people became more civilized in their manners and customs, the cold meat gave place to the more gentle hint of coolness of manner, but as it meant the same, the expression of "cold shoulder" remained, and has lasted until this day.

"And 'apple pie order.' Where do you suppose that originated? In the pantry of a certain notable Puritan housekeeper and cook, Hepzibah Meriton by name. It was her custom, every Saturday, to make two or three dozen apple pies. These she arranged primly on the shelves of her pantry with tags telling what day each was to be eaten. This was a pantry in 'apple pie order'—but really it must have been hard on the family that had to eat such old apple pies.

Monkey Worshipers.

All Hindus are monkey-worshippers; they recognize in him the incarnation of their great god Hanooman, and venerate him accordingly. While this is so, the monkey is the most mischievous of the entire animal kingdom. The half-tamed "town" monkey is the worst. A tribe of monkeys living in the neighborhood of a village will think nothing of dropping down from the trees on the roofs of the houses and playing havoc with the tiles or thatching. They do so with impunity; the occupants will not raise a stick or stone in defense of their property, but rather endeavor to propitiate the depredators with offerings of fruit and food. This, done once or twice, has the effect of teaching the monkeys to look on these gratuitous supplies as the outcome of their handwork; for no sooner are they hungry, or don't feel "up" to a legitimate forage in the jungle, than they make another descent on the houses, and undo all the work of repair that the wretched tenants had perhaps just completed. Mahometans and outcasts entertain no such respect for the animals, and their villages are, in consequence, never subject to the attentions of the mischievous monkeys.

Economy.

Mrs. Chungwater—What do you buy such cheap shirts for? They are the most expensive in the end. They're all worn out after you have had them washed half a dozen times.

Mr. Chungwater—Then they only cost me 60 cents for washing, and that's a big saving. You go on with your fruit canning. You can't teach me anything about buying shirts.—Chicago Tribune

Long Hair

"About a year ago my hair was coming out very fast, so I bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor. It stopped the falling and made my hair grow very rapidly, until now it is 45 inches in length."—Mrs. A. Boydston, Atchison, Kans.

There's another hunger than that of the stomach. Hair hunger, for instance. Hungry hair needs food, needs hair vigor—Ayer's. This is why we say that Ayer's Hair Vigor always restores color, and makes the hair grow long and heavy.—Ayer's Hair Vigor.

If your druggist cannot supply you, send us one dollar and we will express you a bottle. Be sure and give the name of your nearest express office. Address, J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

SUPERSTITION ON THE FARMS.

Odd Ideas Firmly Believed In by the Prosaic Agriculturists.

"Superstition is more prevalent among the American people than is generally supposed," said a book agent, "and even the hard-headed, intelligent farmers are, to a certain extent, afflicted with it."

"I remember asking a farmer 60 years old, a man of more than ordinary intelligence, the owner of 1,000 acres of fine land, well stocked, and who had several thousand dollars in bonds and other securities, why he did not build himself a better house. The one he lived in was old, small and dilapidated, a relic of the days when he was poor."

"Afraid to," was the reply.

"Afraid of what?" I asked.

"Well, you see, I have always heard that when an old man builds a new house he never lives long to use it."

"I laughed, but he was perfectly serious, and I found that in that neighborhood the superstition was generally believed in."

"Another saying was common in the same locality. 'The man who plants a tree generally lives to enjoy its fruit.' The belief in these sayings is shown by the number of poor farmers who, by the number of fine orchards in their neighborhood."

"Seed corn shelled at a dealer is another saying free in the corn belt. A farmer boasted that it was invented by him as an excuse for making work at night."

"Things planted during the moon produce the best generally accepted as true. Potatoes, carrots and onions are planted the light of the moon by many scientific farmers but superstition."

"The farmer who refuses a traveler's horse will see his stock suffer from thirst before the year is a belief of some localities as to insurance treatment to all travelers."

"Some farmers will wring a hen if she crows. They say a hen brings bad luck to the farmer. I heard one old farmer tell the women folks a bad example."

"Borrowed eggs always hatch, saying probably invented by a stingy man as an excuse for borrowing and lending."

"Those and hundreds of other superstitions are so generally believed in that they govern the customs of communities to a surprising extent."

KEITH'S THEATRE.

The Keith Theatre in Boston excepted, it is said to be the only theatre in this country that has given daily entertainments ever since November 4, 1889, says Sunday and the day on which President McKinley was buried. Altogether there have been 11,222 performances and 9860 specialities.

Keith's first attraction was Benjamin Franklin, a midget, and his original auditorium was no larger than the lobby of his eighth street theatre. Today he employs over 500 people every week; his enterprises have extended to London; his Boston theatre is the finest in the universe, and his representative states that "before another year shall have passed he will be operating two theatres in Philadelphia, and the Chestnut street house will surpass the Boston amusement temple."

Christmas means crowded houses day and night, and the programme is headed by the artist Rudolph, who has not been seen in this country for five years. He draws rapid "smoke pictures" which like the birds and makes wonderful shadow pictures of his hands.

RETROSPECTIVE.

The next issue of the REPUBLICAN will be the first number in its fortieth year. If we had a complete file of these two thousand and twenty-eight weekly issues, what a history of the County and Town they would contain! But, unfortunately, the early files, previous to about 1876, were mostly destroyed, by carelessness.

There are very few people now living, here or elsewhere, who knew Hammonton when the paper was moved here from Absecon, during the early winter of 1865; and every proprietor of the paper, up to the writer, has passed on to the silent majority.—Dorus B. Snow, Jos. S. Cordery, Alonzo Potter, Dr. H. E. Bowles.

A handful of us can remember the condition of things in town, away back in those early days, and the changes that thirty-six years have brought. Scarcely a building stands in the business section that was here in '65. Brick and mortar are succeeding wood in the construction of stores. Graded and graveled streets have taken the place of deeply rutted sandy roads, and curbed and paved sidewalks predominate. A single-track railroad then offered all sorts of concessions to attract patrons and settlers; now two double-tracked roads find ample business. Local trade has kept pace with the increase of population. There was not a meat-market in town; Wm. Bernshouse then ran a wagon from Winslow, and made money. Now, four markets are prospering and with from one to three wagons each cover the territory for miles around. The post-office was at Elvins' store—over a mile from the station, with a branch "behind the cheese-box," in P. S. Tilton's; now Uncle Sam's business is housed in a brick block, with all the modern conveniences. We have added a prosperous Bank during these years, and two Loan Associations have aided many to build homes for themselves.

In '65 there was but one completed church edifice in town—the Baptist. The Presbyterians had their house enclosed, and dedicated it soon after. The Methodists met in Elvins' Hall, and the Universalists in a finished room over H. T. Pressey's barn. Now, the Methodists have their second house; Presbyterians have a fine brick one, near by; the Universalists have a picturesque building, in a commanding position; Episcopalians, a tasteful structure, well furnished; Roman Catholics, a good stone house; the Italians worship in the original Presbyterian church, moved the second time. The Baptists still use the old building, but moved it down town, and made many improvements.

As for schools, we had then a small building on Third Street (now changed into a dwelling), and another at "Old Hammonton." Now we have two fine brick buildings in central section, with seven others in various parts of town, employ a Supervising Principal and twenty-one teachers, and have more than a thousand children of school age within the town limits.

We would like to compare the acreage of small fruits cultivated then and now, and give the number of farm owners within the corporate limits; but we do know that they have multiplied many times. We recall a spot on Main Road where, in those early days, looking north-east, the forest was but a few hundred yards away; now there are cultivated fields as far as the eye can reach, and away beyond, in all directions. Where swamps and ponds then nested mosquitoes, berries now grow. Where a hundred or so crates of berries were shipped, now whole train-loads go hence to the various markets every day, with peaches, pears, and sweet potatoes in their season.

But those were pleasant days, so long ago, when horses were few in number, and we traveled for miles on foot, in the shifting sand, to attend a social or a festival. And what socials they were! Everybody attended, without thought of seat or creed, and all entered heartily into the fun that prevailed.

Well, "the world do move," and most things have improved during the past third of a century; but as we sit here in the quiet of Christmas night, we are looking backward. Possibly, people of to-day might learn some things from those who lived and "ran things" a generation ago.

We have heard friends of the town water-works express regret that a special election was called for to vote on the question of bonding the Town, knowing the difficulty of getting voters out at even a general election. Well, it is done ; but perhaps Council will see their way clear to hold the special election on the same day that the town officers are chosen—next March. They have the date and details to arrange, and would thereby save about seventy-five dollars in expenses.

Christmas.

Many were greatly disappointed in the weather, this week. Instead of a white Christmas, it was a green one, and muddy, too. However, the children would not be deprived of their Sunday School exercises, and they all turned out for a good time. Of course, candy was given to the children at each service.

The Baptist Sunday School held their exercises on Monday evening. The house was filled, in spite of heavy rain, with many seated in the gallery. The program was composed of selections of appropriate and cheerful songs, recitations, and class exercises, which were well rendered. Among the most enjoyable features were a snow man, and the exercises and singing by the primary department. Every member of the school and home department received a box of candy.

A full house enjoyed the exercises in the Methodist Church, on Wednesday evening. The music, enlivened by the orchestra, and exercises by the children, were evidently appreciated, particularly Mrs. Santa Claus and her dolls (living, and in costume) from all nations.

The Presbyterian Church was also well filled on Wednesday evening, and chairs placed in the aisles. The usual decorations were used. Their program was entitled "A Royal Prince." The chief feature was a representation of the Annunciation: the shepherds lay asleep on the plain, were awakened by music, and a beautiful tableau showed the "Heavenly host." Of course, the Primary Department took a prominent part in the exercises.

A good time is promised to young and old this (Saturday) evening, at the Italian Evangelical Church,—service to begin at 7.30.

WERE THEY TOLTECS?

ORIGIN OF THE CLIFF DWELLERS
BEING STUDIED.

Mexican Archaeologist Traces This Strange People Back Through Ages to Establish Identity as Progenitors of Ancient Races of His Country.

Prof. Leopoldo Batres, Mexico's able archaeologist, has returned after several weeks spent in the land of the cliff dwellers at Mancos, Colo.

The object of Mr. Batres' expedition was to establish the identity of the people known as the cliff dwellers with the ancient Toltecs, and to prove that Huastlapalla, the "red city," from which the Toltecs, according to their traditions and the earliest records, started on their migration southward to Anahuac, was located in the caves of what is now the State of Colorado, says the Mexico Herald.

To a reporter who met him on the Central's express at Huastlapalla, Mr. Batres expressed the utmost satisfaction with his trip. "It has been a pleasure to me," he said, "to visit the United States and experience the boundless kindness and hospitality of the American people, and, in addition, I have been thoroughly successful in the scientific object of my expedition. I no longer entertain the smallest doubt that the underground city of the cliff dwellers, which I explored, was the Huastlapalla of the Toltecs. I purpose to set forth all the grounds for my conclusion in a book which I am going to write about my explorations. Briefly, all the objects which I found in the Colorado caves bear out my view. The grotesque of the ceramics are similar to those of the Milpa palaces, which are well known to be Toltec. Note, too, that Huastlapalla means the "red city"; and that the bones of the cliff dwellers were painted red, and so remain to this day.

The original excavations, and brought back with me a large collection of archaeological objects, including a skeleton with a fragment of a winding-sheet, a pair of painted pottery, implements of agriculture, a piece of wood for kneeling, a piece of an oster, and the ones made in the caves of the cliff dwellers a large collection of man desired to marry the daughter of a neighboring land owner, and invited the girl, with her parents, to a grand ball given at his castle. During the evening he found an opportunity of leaping the girl in a secluded part of the house, where she was seized by his men and placed in a carriage. The prince joined her, and in spite of the girl's entreaties started out to drive to a place where they could be married without much delay.

The girl's father, on finding that his son had disappeared with his daughter, gave chase, and being on horseback, overtook the carriage. He shot the nobleman without ado, and took his daughter home. The nobleman, however, had won her heart during the drive, and the girl was now reluctant to marry the man whom her father approved, but the stern parent insisted on the wedding taking place at once. The bride appeared in the church, pale but cool and collected. During the ceremony she drew a dagger and stabbed the bridegroom to the heart. Afterward she committed suicide.—Philadelphia Record.

Secretary of State's Duties.

The Secretary of State's duties are more ceremonious than those of any other cabinet member. At the New Year reception he presents the entire diplomatic corps to the President. He then returns to his own office and entertains the corps—with its dukes, marquises, counts, viscounts, barons and other nobles—at a magnificent luncheon. With great ceremony he will from time to time personally introduce to the President all new diplomats accredited to this country. He reserves one forenoon in each week for the reception of his office of ministers and charges d'affaires. He also attends to the correspondence between the President and the emperors, kings, sultans and other rulers of foreign States. When a royal child is born he frames a letter of congratulation to the parent. When a royal personage dies it is he who dispatches this nation's formal message of condolence. A clerk in the State Department copies these polite missives upon large sheets of gilt-edge paper, in a faultless copperplate hand. A messenger takes them to the White House for the President's signature. They are then returned to the Secretary of State, who seals them with the great seal of the United States.—Ladies' Home Journal.

A Marriage Epidemic.

Sorvia is in trouble now with an epidemic of marriages. The cause is the system of marriage banns founded on an encouragement to thrift, but which have proved to have quite an opposite effect. The young men and maidens of Sorvia begin paying in to these institutions at an early age on the promise of a premium on marriage. Immediately a small sum has been accumulated the desire for marriage grows overwhelming, with the result that the first offer is snapped up. In consequence marriages are premature and unhappy marriages are general. The matter has now reached such lengths that it is seriously troubling the government, and the advisability of abolishing these banns, which are held to be the root of the evil, is being debated.

Glad to See Her.

"So you overcame that old antipathy of yours," her husband remarked, "and called on Mrs. Bobbitt?" "Yes." "Do you think she was glad to see you?" "I am sure of it." "Ahem!—you must have some reason for that belief outside of her mannerisms." "I have. I had on the old dress that was made over twice, my hat was out of style and my hair had come uncurled; while she had on a gown that couldn't have come from anywhere but Paris. Could she help being glad to see me?"—Ladies' Weekly.

Heedless and extreme youth are equally garrulous.

An Up-Country Rising.

In spite of the old saying, the lawyer who conducts his own case does not always have a fool for a client. The Hon. Jeremiah Mason, who was admitted to the New Hampshire bar in 1791, was a man of great height, but during the early part of his professional career, says the Green Bag, was so slight and apparently frail in build that, as the phrase is, "he looked like a boy."

Traveling once in a sleigh after a great snowstorm, he met a countryman in a similar conveyance. Mr. Mason turned his horse and sleigh as far to one side as he conveniently could, and courteously requested the other person to do the same.

The other man, however, was sturdy of figure and stubborn of nature, and taking Mr. Mason's courteous speech as a sign of a craven spirit, he refused to budge an inch, and demanded a freer way for his vehicle.

At this Mr. Mason's eyes flashed. The day was cold and he had sunk deeply into the robes of his high-backed sleigh, but now he drew himself up and sat erect on the seat for a moment; then he began slowly to divest himself of his wrappings and to get upon his feet, gradually displaying his real proportions—to the astonished countryman who exclaimed:

"Say, mister, you needn't rise any more. I'll turn out!"

Naturally people want to be well for Christmas, for nothing so promotes happiness and good cheer. Therefore, take Garfield Tea now; it cures all derangements of stomach, liver, kidneys or bowels; it cleanses the system and purifies the blood, thus removing the cause of rheumatism, gout and many chronic diseases. "Who comes there?" called little Willie, the sentry, in threatening tones, as he brought his deadly wooden gun into shooting position.

"A friend!" answered little Tommie from behind the rocking chair.

"Advanced and give the countersign," hissed the sentry, "or I'll shoot your head off."

An ominous silence followed this terrible threat, then Tommie said plaintively:

Editorial Responsibility.

The troubles of the literary man are seldom better exemplified than in the case of the seely looking poet who wandered into an English newspaper office, venturing to hope that the editor would accept his offering.

"Give me your address," said the editor.

"That, sir," was the frank reply, "depends entirely on yourself."

"On yourself?" said the astonished editor.

"How so?"

"Well, you see," went on the un- finished poet, "it's this way; if you take the poem my address will remain 77 King street; if you don't take it I shall have no address. My landlady is a woman of her word."

Yours for Health

Lydia E. Pinkham

How Truly the Great Fame of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Justifies Her Original Signature.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It will entirely cure the worst forms of Female Complaints, all Ovarian troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Falling and Displacement of the Womb, and consequent Spinal Weakness, and is peculiarly adapted to the Change of Life.

It has cured more cases of Backache and Leucorrhoea than any other remedy the world has ever known. It is almost infallible in such cases. It dissolves and expels tumors from the Uterus in an early stage of development, and checks any tendency to cancerous humors.

Irregular, Suppressed or Painful Menstruation, Weakness of the Stomach, Indigestion, Bloating, Flooding, Nervous Prostration, Headache, General Debility quickly yields to it.

Womb troubles, causing pain, weight, and backache, instantly relieved and permanently cured by its use. Under all circumstances it acts in harmony with the laws that govern the female system, and is as harmless as water.

It quickly removes that Bearing-down Feeling, extreme lassitude, "don't care" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feeling, excitability, irritability, nervousness, Dizziness, sleeplessness, flatulency, melancholy or the "blues," and backache. These are sure indications of Female Weakness, or some derangement of the Uterus, which this medicine always cures.

Kidney Complaints and Backache of either sex the Vegetable Compound always cures.

No other female medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles.

Those women who refuse to accept anything else are rewarded a hundred thousand times, for they get what they want—a cure. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Refuse to be deceived.

Self-Discipline.

The method of maintaining discipline in the State prison at Folsom, California, is declared to be very successful. There are no dungeons or dark cells, and none of the old modes of punishment are recognized in this institution.

When a new prisoner is received, he is informed that they have three different bills of fare in the prison, and that it is option with each man as to how well he lives. If he is industrious, orderly, well-behaved and in all things conforms strictly to the rules of the prison, he is served with excellent food, nicely cooked. He can have chops, steaks, eggs, tea and coffee, milk and white bread; if he is only fairly well-behaved and does not do his allotted task properly, is inclined to growl and grumble at the regulations of the institution, he is given ordinary prison fare, mush and molasses, soup and corn bread; and if he is ugly and insubordinate, he is permitted to feast on unlimited quantities of cold water and a rather small allowance of bread.

There is said to be an intense rivalry among the convicts to enter the first class, and once there, it is very seldom that one of them has to be sent back to a lower class.

Wish All a Merry Christmas!

And tell them of Garfield Tea, which cures indigestion and liver disorders and insures the return of many happy Christmas Dinners by removing the cause of dyspepsia and ill health.

We may all be generous to a fault, when the fault is our own.

How He Felt.

A certain Chief Justice of the Supreme Court in one of the Western States was noted for his disinclination to admit that he was ill, as well as for his roundabout method of expression.

One day he was approached by the State Librarian, who courteously asked after his health.

"William," said the Judge, cautiously, "I am not well, but I am better than I was when I was worse than I now am."

Bridge Hunting Pigeons.

Those who visit Port George, and who yield to a very natural impulse to have a look at what is going on down on the Speedway, are apt to have their attention drawn by a sound of many fluttering wings as they descend the steep paths and stairways close beside the Washington Bridge. The wings belong to runaway pigeons from near-by private estates, the birds making their new found home in the bridge's stone abutments and the iron arches.

The pigeons are there summer and winter. They live in the indentations which have been left in the masonry to prevent the sweating of the rock. These indentations provide the coziest sort of homes for them, just big enough for two. When the fledglings are strong and able to fly they soon find mates, and also croon somewhere in the rocks of the bridge to set up housekeeping on their own account.

No man ever arrived suddenly at the summit of pure contentment.
