The ladies have taken this space for one year, and are responsible for all that it may contain.

Who was to Blame?

"A two dollar bill came into the hands of a relative of mine," writes a lady in Boston, "which speaks volumes on the horrors of strong drink, or the traffic in it. There was written, in red ink, on the back of it, the following:

"Wife, children, and over $40,000 all gone. I am alone responsible. All has gone down my throat. When I was twenty-one I had a fortune. I am not yet thirty-five years old. I have killed my beautiful wife, who died of a broken heart; have murdered my children with neglect. When this bill is gone I do not know how I can get my next meal.
I shall die a drunken pauper. This is my last money, and my history. If this bill comes into the hands of any man who drinks, let him take warning from my life's ruin."

And he might well have added: If it comes into the hands of any man who does not drink, but who by his vote justifies the drink traffic for reward, let him remember that he is his brother's keeper.

ADIES, Clean your Kid Gloves with La Jelle Glove Cleaner, for sale only by W.
J. Black, headquarters for Kid gloves, in dressed and undressed. All the new shades.

One day this week a stranger called at Feinberg's clothing store, and bought certain goods, tendering in payment a check on the Peoples Bank, signed Daniel Ballard. He endorsed this "Harry Lambert," and received his change. W. J. Black cashed this check, but on offering it for deposit was told by Cashier Tilton that the signature was doubtful. Mr. Ballard declared it to be a forgery. The same man purchased a pair of shoes at Murdoch's, paid for them with an exactly similar check, same amount, and received the change.
This was also a well executed forgery.
No one by the name of Lambert is known here, and the man has disappeared. We do not know that any steps have been taken to find him.

of back upon itself, so as to take different direction, and cover the space which would be exposed by the ordinary method of folding; these hangers, unless they are done tightly and correctly, will split to slaps and derange the whole. To avoid this, the operator should avoid half turns, by letting the rollers take its natural course, and then connect back to cover the exposed part; but this method, besides requiring large hangers, does not effect the required purpose so neatly and efficiently. One mode of fastening a hanging bag is to split it up into short distances, so as to leave two ends, which can be made round the limb, and tied. It should be remembered, however, that the object in applying the hangers is to give firm and uniform support, without undue pressure upon any part; and to effect this properly, the strain in each limb should be equal, and the roll should be made so that the support be in proportion of it. This strain should not be relaxed during the progress of the operation.

Caution to be observed.

Nancy—Poor girl! Were your affairs thus so profoundly interested?

Mary—No'm; it was him talking to me.

Jack Bachelor (engaged)—Or could I realize that matrimony is a very important step, and all that.
