THE PASSING YEARS.

BY EMILY J. BRYANT.

The gracious years of God are passing by,
Grieve not thou for the unreturning past;
The sad, dark places of earth testify
Of work undone;—the field is ripe and vast,
The gentle years of grace are passing by.
Each one seat by a Father's loving thought
Like a Father's hand from the bending sky,
Reach'd down with blessing richly fraught.

Wonderful years are passing by,
Age and decay and change the years defy,
Uncumbered as the host of midnight's sky,
Swift as a weaver's shuttle they fly.

Wonderful years for his dear Church to grow,
Wonderful years for the harvest of souls,
Wonderful years for hearts to work and glow,
Wonderful years are eternity rolls.

Wonderful years for the world's redemption,
To win the race to holy, sweet accord;
Years for man from sin to win redemption,
Years for the cause and kingdom of our Lord.

The New England Club.

On Thursday evening the Club had the largest attendance in its history.
While lacking somewhat in literary attributes, the programme was entirely new and novel, and was entered into with great zeal by young and old.

The Klingenberg and Austin orchestra won the praise of the company. It is but fair to state that the Club fully appreciates these young artists, and never tires of their music.

The next meeting will be on January 11th, 8 p.m., in Firemen's Hall. The programme will consist of readings and recitations, and music, with novelty sandwiches.

Senior Vice, A. T. Lobley
Junior Vice, H. E. Andrews
Chaplain, C. E. Osgood
Surgeon, Orville Bassett
Officer of the Day, H. J. Monfort.

We have received a copy of the "Memorial addresses on the life and character of William J. Sewell," which were delivered by eleven fellow U. S.
Senators and eight members of the House of Representatives, including
Mr. Gardner. It is a beautiful volume, and the addresses are worthy of close reading.

Happy New Year to all!

Would it not be a good idea for our local Grange and the School Board to petition Governor Stokes to fix an earlier date for Arbor Day in South Jersey. For several years it has come so late here that leaves were developing on the trees. They would be more likely to grow if set out about April 1st.

Saturday, Jan. 6th, will be the fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. David McAnney. The family propose to celebrate this golden wedding in fitting style. But because of their daughter's absence, the friends are invited for the following Monday evening, Jan. 8th.

The death of George Lillie Craik, of Folkestone, England, whose first wife was Dinah Maria Mulock, author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," has recently occurred. Mr. Craik had been connected with the English branch of the Macmillan company for over forty years, and had many warm friends among the eminent authors with whom he had relations.

Edwin Lefevre's story of Wall Street, "The Golden Fleece," is not so much out of mind that the identification of some of its leading characters is not of interest. It has been suggested that Richard Dawson, the banker to whom young Grinnell takes his millions in gold, has a prototype in James R. Stillman; the Mellens are supposed to correspond to the Rockefellers, and Isaac Herzog to Jacob Schiff. Mr. Lefevre, it is said, will neither affirm nor deny these suppositions.

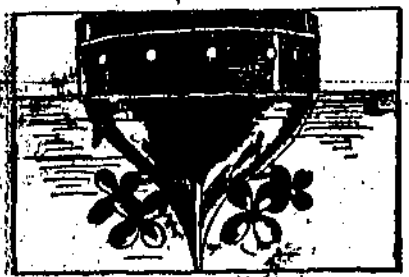

Tom Masson, whose "Corner in Women" is just out, has had a varied career. He was born in 1866, sailed over the globe when he was a mere boy, visiting England, France, Russia, Norway, Sweden, Spain and other countries. When he was sixteen he wrote his first article describing his attempt to secure a situation, upon which Dr. Hyman Abbott commented. At that time he was twenty he went through successive stages of business life, and at last began his newspaper career on The New York Sun, with the encouragement and help of Charles A. Dana. Mr. Masson began contributing to Life a few years after its start; he is now its managing and literary editor. The humorist lives in Glen Ridge, N. J.

Miss Greenaway fills a very small niche in the Temple of Fame, and yet she had a decided influence upon public taste. She did a great deal toward developing a fashion in children's dresses, which, if fantastic, was at least graceful and pretty, and a vast improvement upon the miniature of the modes of their elders. A new style of Miss Greenaway has been traced in large decorative forms, with many illustrations, by the Edmunds. There was a life of hard work, with success coming late; it was also a singularly uneventful life, and her biographers would have had little to chronicle but for her correspondence with Ruskin, some of which is reproduced. It was not a sparkling, important correspondence, but valuable in furnishing some slight insight into Greenaway's opinions. The pictures are a particularly attractive feature; though small, essentials similar to those in already published books, a large majority of them have not appeared before.

Apocryphal of the reflection of Edgar Allan Poe as eligible to the American "Hall of Fame," John S. Tabb is inspired to write a stanza he entitles "Rejected."

Onto the charnel Hall of Fame
The dead alone should go;
Then write not there the living name
Of Edgar Allan Poe.

THE PROPOSED MULTIPLE PROPELLER VESSEL.

The device herewith illustrated is designed by its inventor, R. Palnton, of London, to enable a vessel to cross the Atlantic in three days or less. Instead of a single screw of twin screws his scheme is to equip a vessel with half a dozen. They are on each side of the keel and are in constant use while the ship is in motion. With such multiple propellers, it is expected that the previous records will be broken and it is even promised that the voyage across the Atlantic will be reduced to a matter of three days.

Jack—So you are going to Miss Giotrox, I understand.
Tom—You know it.
Jack—Well, I don't know whether to congratulate you or not. She is very exacting, I hear, and if you marry her you will have to give up drinking and smoking.
Tom—Oh, well, it might be worse. If I don't marry her I'll probably have to give up eating.

A woman usually knows her husband is a liar, but she wants him to be truthful about it.

THE DEADLY TERMITE.

Noted for Ways that Are Dark and Tricks that Are Mean.

"For ways that are dark, and tricks that are mean," the termite is the meanest of bugs ever seen. However, the termite is not seen very often, and there's the rub which is agitating many American scientists, and likewise many owners of wooden structures in the United States.

The termite looks like an ant, but is not of the ant family. It is really allied to the dragon flies and May flies. It is of tropical origin, but somehow managed to colonize in the land of the free and the home of the brave. Fifty years ago a traveling entomologist reported that he was surprised to find termites "colonized in San Francisco and on the shores of Lake Erie, near Cleveland, O." The termites at some later date moved into Cleveland but their devastations were attributed to other causes until Prof. Oldenbach, a Jesuit scientist of that city, discovered a cozy family of about a million of them and reported his find to Washington. Since then the termites have greatly extended themselves in a residential way. How to offset their destructiveness has become a very serious proposition. The invasion of the United States by the termite has become very thorough. It has been found on mountain tops of Colorado at a height of 7,000 feet.

Not long ago an accumulation of books and papers, belonging to the State of Illinois was thoroughly ruined by their attack. In South Carolina a school library closed for the summer was found in autumn to be completely eaten out and valueless. Even in the department of agriculture at Washington an accumulation of records and documents stored in a vault, on examination proved to be thoroughly mined and ruined by these destroyers.

Three frame buildings in Washington were found recently to be so badly eaten up by this insidious foe that it was necessary to tear them down. Damage of the sort mentioned has occurred as far north as Boston.

As a destructive force in the United States, the terrible termite threatens to rival the forces of the elements. They work in the dark. Prof. C. L. Marshall, of the entomology department, states they cannot bear the full sunshine and when exposed to it they shrivel up and die. They first colonize underground, and then begin their attack on a building, seldom, if ever, coming to the surface.

Hence, a building seemingly firm by all its proportions suddenly falls apart as might a chess house of cards, carrying to death and ruin its living occupants.

There is a winged termite, but the real depredators are soft-bodied, large-headed and milky white, less than a quarter of an inch in length. A colony of termites in the tropics has a king and queen, the latter possessing an enormous capacity for laying eggs. In this country this queen has not been found. In her absence, however, the termites are able to develop from a young larva or nymph which would otherwise become a winged female, known as a supplementary queen, which is never winged and never leaves the colony. The late Prof. H. B. Hubbard discovered this supplementary queen—the parent insect of all the terrible termites in America.

SENATOR CLARK'S BIG NEW YORK RESIDENCE.

The new residence of Senator William A. Clark, of Montana, in New York City is one of the largest private homes in America, and, although it represents an immense outlay, it cannot be called a dignified piece of architecture. The Senator is reputed to have an income of about $1,000,000 a month, and he cannot claim that the unfavorable effect is due to financial stringency. The interior, however, is admitted to be exceedingly beautiful, and the Senator has spared no effort to make it the most unique and interesting in Gotham.

Popular Science.

Acetylene is used for lighting over 100 towns in France. The gas is made from calcium carbide. In 1903 the consumption of the latter was 14,500 tons.

The power generated in a modern steamship in a single voyage across the Atlantic is more than enough to raise from the Nile and set in place every stone of one of the great Egyptian pyramids.

Aluminum is a difficult metal to tool, as it clogs the cutter. It also shows a tendency to split and check on bending. Some of its alloys, as that with magnesium and called "magnalium," are said to be easily workable.

A new type of submarine torpedo-boat is undergoing tests in England. The boat is only 34 feet long by 6 feet 6 inches in diameter, and can be carried on the deck of a battleship, and launched when it is desired to bring it into action. It has a speed, when submerged, of eight knots, carries two torpedo tubes, and is navigated by a crew of three men.

The government of Ontario is expected to announce shortly a definite plan of forest preservation, the ultimate outcome of which will be a forest reserve of 40,000,000 acres, yielding a yearly revenue of at least $30,000,000. Under the proposed plan, which applies only to lands not suitable for agriculture, the timber is to be sold only as it comes to maturity, and the trees that have attained proper size must be marked by government employees before they can be cut.

One cubic foot of dry air at ordinary temperature and pressure weighs about 0.74 lb., or 1.18 oz. Some of the high efficiency fans throw over 335,000 cubic feet of air a minute. This means a volume equal to a cube over 69 feet on a side, and an actual weight of more than 12 tons. The weight is not striking, but the volume required to gather this, together with the friction and the heat of compression, all comprise a mechanical condensation of great significance.

Reflected solar heat is used to obtain very high temperatures in a new furnace designed by a French inventor. With it he expects to obtain a temperature of 3,500 degrees C., which is higher than that of the electric furnace. The reflector is built up of more than 6,000 mirrors arranged side by side in parallel rows, each measuring about 4x5 inches. The width at the top is 35 feet, at the base 18 feet and the depth 35 feet. With a previous and much smaller furnace, constructed on similar lines, a temperature of 2,000 degrees C. was obtained.

Geographers representing the principal nations are at work upon a map of the entire earth on a scale of 1 to 1,000,000, and Professor Penck, the German geographer, reports that 69 sheets out of 437 planned had been completed up to March last. On this map the United States will cover an area nearly 16 feet long. A distance of one mile will be represented by a space about one-sixteenth of an inch long. There are, of course, many maps of small areas on a much larger scale than this, but to represent the whole face of the known world on this scale is an undertaking of much interest.

The 50-ton steel car has now been in use about eight years and it would appear that 50 tons are the limit of capacity. This is not likely to be increased in the near future except for special purposes in a narrow territory. There are two principal reasons for this, which were pointed out by C. A. Seely in a recent address at Purdue University. The first is because the weight on the adjacent trucks of two loaded 50-ton cars, when coupled, produces a wheel load on track and bridges which is equal to that of a very heavy locomotive. The second reason is that castiron wheels have about reached their safe limit of strength in carrying 50-ton cars. It is not advisable to increase the number of wheels under a freight car, and no substitute has been developed which can be produced at a reasonable cost.

How Fog Strains the Eyes.
Many of the officers of steamships running in this port are afflicted with a new disease, which for want of a better name some of them call the "fog eye." It is an inflammation caused by peering into the fog, and while painful it soon passes away.

Captain Higgins and the officers of the United States Fruit Company's passenger and mail steamer Admiral Sampson, which arrived at Long Wharf this morning after a good run from Jamaican ports, were among those whose eyes were affected by the fog. Running through fog and trying to distinguish objects when it is almost impossible to see a vessel's length away is a heavy strain on the eyes, and fog, combined with the heat, produces a smarting sensation.—Boston Transcript.

DeSweet—Oh, I can manage it all right.

Mrs. DeSweet—But I'm afraid you would be lonely and miserable.

DeSweet—Not for a minute.

Mrs. DeSweet—Then I won't go.

Wife—Who was that man who just called?

Husband—That was one of our tenants who called to pay his rent.

Wife—You look so gloomy I thought it was a bill collector.

Husband—I feel gloomy every time I lose a good tenant. He is going to move.

Wife—Did he say so?

Husband—No. But he didn't ask for any repairs.

TRUMPET CALLS.

Ram's Horn Sounds a Warning to the Undeclared.

Many preachers prove their courage by whipping the lambs.

A chance comes to every man. When your chance comes, be ready.

THE SALARIED FOLKS.

Who Do Not Share in an Era of Prosperity, but Pay the Price.

If labor can get an increase of wages large enough to overcome the higher prices of the necessities of life it may be said to enjoy that much prosperity in addition to the largely increased chance of steady employment for men. But for a large class of munitions prosperity has a very different meaning, and many actually mean increased hardships. The laborer may in certain trades, by means of unions, force his wages artificially and maintain them for a long time, but that army of persons who may be fairly well described as salaried workers, distinguished from wage-earners, have no such recourse.

The economic term "immobility" applies to them and to the condition. It is a well-known fact that the economic world that the laborer wages has a long way after the war of prosperity. In the case of the salaried worker, country may pass through several years from prosperity to stagnation and to prosperity again, and the salaries of clerks, school teachers, professors, in colleges and the like usually remain at or near the same level. To this great army must be added the persons of small fixed income derived from investments in mortgages, bonds, annuities and other funds. These people are at a great disadvantage, because, with the development of the country and the increase of stored capital, their incomes actually tend to shrink because of the falling rate of interest.

What is to be done about it? Nobody knows. The labor unions—the organized workers—seem to be able to enforce their demands for a share of prosperity when it comes, and the salaried people and others in dread real prosperity—the price of living—as much as the capitalist dreads the hard times, the economic universe is to be added according to the sublimities which the zealous reformer sorts promise to usher in, with the fixed incomes ought to demand a hearing.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Danish Dinner Customs.

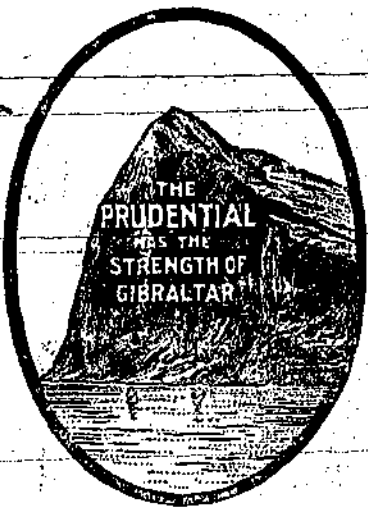

A pretty table observance in Danish families is for children, even little ones who can scarcely toddle, to go gravely after dinner to salute the parents and say, "Tak for mad" (thanks for the meal). When visitors shake hands with their host and hostess and go through the same formality.

What most of the dwellers in apartment houses would appreciate is a few law for suppressing piano-players after 9 p. m.

A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

To-morrow will close the year 1905,—a year fraught with events that make history interesting and important.

On Monday we open new pages in our Ledger, and, so far as possible, begin a new year with clear financial accounts. Every transaction for the next twelve months will date from that day, and all things human have reference to Jan. 1st. Many of us would gladly wipe out all our old scores and begin a clean new record book with 1906 at the head. We are none of us altogether proud of the pages last filled.

But there's the rub. This division of time is a human arrangement, based, of course, on Nature's movements. But in the divine economy this is not recognized. Eternity is the basis of God's plans, and days, months and years have no recognition in his decrees. The earth's revolutions continue without interruption, and leave no mark at the year's close; the planets move on in their fixed orbits, without a break; man's heart-beats are as regular as before, and his duty toward the Infinite is not affected by changing dates.

It is well that man should recognize these facts, and while preparing for the new year, see to it that his relations to his Creator are properly adjusted, that his never-changing obligations of love and obedience be realized and acknowledged.

This will make it a truly Happy New Year.

At the last regular communication of M. B. Taylor Lodge, F. & A. M., the following officers were elected and appointed:

W. M., A. B. Davis
S. W., John A. Hays
J. W., C. M. O'Connell
Treasurer, Robert Steel
Secretary, Geo. W. Russell
Trustee, Dr. J. A. Wane
Representative, Dr. Wane
S. H. C., Geo. W. Dodd
J. M. C., H. L. McIntyre
S. D., Dr. F. O. Burt
J. D., Edw. H. White
S. S., W. B. Mathack
J. S., Henry Mensley
Captain, C. F. Osgood
Marshal, Henry Poyer
Tyler, J. H. Marshall

The meeting was lively and very interesting.

"From grave to gay, from lively to severe," well describes an evening with Mr. Ellsworth Plimstead, the character delineator and impersonator, who will entertain in Hammononton on Wednesday evening, Jan. 3rd. His greatest successes have been achieved in nearly every branch he has attempted,—that is to say, in comedy, pathos and tragedy, as old man or small boy, or in every one of half a dozen different dialects. All this means that he is versatile,—versatile as an office-boy's excuses. He understands human nature, and "takes off" the people we see every day. In his "make-up" parts, especially, you see and hear, not Mr. Plimstead nor the character impersonated, but the character itself. Add to this a singularly pure and sympathetic voice, and you have a combination well worth hearing.

The Original Laxative Cough Syrup is Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar. It expels all cold from the system by acting as a cathartic on the bowels. It follows the logical conditions of the throat, draws out the inflammation, cures the cough and strengthens the mucous membranes of the lungs and bronchial tubes. Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar is a certain safe, prompt and luxurious cure for colds, croup and whooping cough. Sold by Mallack & Pison.

The friends of Rev. H. Marshall Thurlow, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, and his wife, must have appreciated their work during the past year, as they received no less than ten presents from them on Christmas, including a Gladstone bag, a fifteen pound turkey with the necessary trimmings, and a handsome sum of money. At the Holiday School entertainment, Mr. Thurlow thanked the givers in a few appropriate words.
