NO fine car can master hills exactly like the 1923 Chandler.

For only the Chandler is powered by the phenomenal Pikes Peak Motor, devel-

Although the new Chandler models are exceptionally beautiful—although the new prices are so low as to establish unprece-this year's Chandler success.

There is only one way to understand the amazing virility of the Pikes Peak Motor.

STATE POLICE TRICKED

According to a statement made by Antonio Tomassello, the young man who was arrested and severely beaten by Antonio Brown and Councilman Peter Tell, both of whom are under bail to answer charges of assault with intent to kill, somebody in the tavern in which Tomassello was brutally beaten pulled a neat trick on the State Police. Tomassello asserts that the three gambling machines seized by the State Police were no part of the four machines smashed by him, but were substitutions with little money therein.

LONG RUN TO FIRE

Hammonton firemen made a long run Tuesday in the bitter cold, responding to a call for help from Folsom, where a stubborn chimney fire threatened the home and store of John Fawn, at that place.

In order to give assistance it became necessary to send the downtown fire company to the blaze, and order the Main Road Company to the down town fire house. The latter covered close to three miles in their trip to and from their own firehouse, and the downtown company about six miles, a total of nine miles covered to extinguish a chimney fire. The latter, however, was of such nature that had the houses not been promptly handled, much damage might have been done. The fire was outside of this municipality, and it is not obligatory upon Folsom to compensate for the services rendered.

200 MORE BUNNIES

Game Warden Otto C. Small has just earned the approbation of hundreds of sportsmen by releasing two hundred young rabbits in the woods of this section of the county. The bunnies were of the species known as "cotton tail" and are expected to breed rapidly. Rabbits have been quite scarce in this section during the past year, and the addition of the two hundred, plus the possibilities from a breeding standpoint, have caused hunters to wear a pleased smile.

CONTINUATION SCHOOL WHAT IS IT?

Educators of the State, who realized that the boys and girls who secured their working papers when they became fourteen and who had passed the fifth grade in public school needed more training, are at least partly responsible for the establishment of the compulsory Continuation School Law of New Jersey. When employers state that such boys and girls come to them for work inadequately prepared for any but the lowest types of employment and usually not having general capacity for rapid advancement, it is a sufficient reason for us as taxpayers to remedy the condition. A town progresses just as fast as its school system and absolutely no faster. Towns and cities whose officials and citizens realize the advantages of adequate modern schools manned by competent supervisors and teachers are the municipalities to which home seekers and manufacturers are attracted. These are the towns and cities which show the greatest growth and economic progress.

The problem of the education of the boys and girls who leave school at the age of fourteen is perhaps as great if not greater, than the problem of educating the boys and girls of the same age who finish their public school education. These boys and girls may be either an asset or a liability to their community, depending upon the training and preparation they have for their life work.

In 1919 the Legislature passed an amendment to the School Law which made it mandatory for school districts, where twenty or more minors between the ages of fourteen and sixteen are legally and regularly employed, to establish Continuation Schools after July 1, 1920. It is the intent of this Continuation School Act to require these young people to continue their education for six hours a week during the working day in a school especially designed to give them the kind of instructions best adapted to their needs and capacities. From a financial point of view it has been estimated that these schools are fully justified. These boys and girls are turning back to society from their earnings enough not only to pay for their own education in the Continuation Schools, but also enough to support all the High Schools in the State in which, under the State Constitution, they have a right to full time instruction for at least four years at public expense.

As the word Continuation School implies, one phase of their education is a continuation of the subjects studied in the public school at the time of leaving. Reading, writing, arithmetic, English and spelling are the studies of this class which they pursue at Hammonton. Under the terms of the law it was possible for the Atlantic County Vocational Board of Education to take charge of the work. One direct advantage of this management in the providing of teachers especially trained along vocational lines. Mr. F.
 J. Freda, who has charge of the boys' classes meeting on the second floor of the Bantam Building, teaches in addition to the former subjects, health, hygiene, civics, agriculture and home mechanics, such as the doing of the ordinary jobs any man ought to be able to do around the home with ordinary equipment. Such jobs include filing saws, fitting handles to tools, correct use of tools, estimating for small buildings such as chicken houses, constructing stools, cabinets, etc. The girls, under Miss Frances H.
 Forman, meet in the Continuation School room on Second street, back of the post office. Here they study in addition to the continued subjects, health, hygiene, civics, cooking, sewing, laundering and care of children. A full kitchen and sewing equipment is supplied. Breakfasts, lunches and dinners are prepared, served and eaten. Individual dishes are made such as might give variety or aid to meals, or serve to utilize foods to better advantage. Blouses, skirts, waists, aprons and other articles of clothing are made from patterns and fitted to the owners.

The Red Cross nurse, Miss Cottrill, has given first aid talks and demonstrations to these pupils. These lessons have proven to be very much worth while and have prevented serious trouble in some of the homes where these pupils are members.

There are three classes of girls and boys, one of which meets on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of each week for six hours of study, recitation, discussion or work. In September there were thirty-one boys enrolled, January this year there are twenty-eight. At the same dates there were forty-four and forty-six girls divided into three groups according to their previous school training and natural ability.

This work does not end in the school room, as it is carried to the homes. They have learned to know something of civil government, first aid and some manual dexterity.
 Foods prepared in the school are prepared at home. These jobs done at school have prepared the way for work at home done better, more promptly and at a saving in cost. Proper books and magazines are also taken home where the whole family may read them.

So many have asked as to the function of these schools, what they were for, and why children should attend that I thought an article in our local papers would help to answer these questions. Visitors to these schools are just as welcome as to the regular public schools. They are doing a wonderful work and our taxpayers would do well to be glad to meet the teachers and learn something about the schools from first hand contact.

 Director of Atlantic County Vocational Schools of Agriculture and Home Economics.
